Geo. Gowan Had a Narrow Escape
From Being Killed

He Was Crushed Between a
Trolley Pole and Horse —
"Green" Animals Were Scared
by Automobile—Gowan is in a Serious Condition.

George Gowan, employed as a teamster for Alvah D. Boynton of 1438 Gorham street, was nearly killed shortly after 10:30 o'clock this morning as a result of being crushed between a horse and a trolley pole at the corner of Broadway and Fletcher street when the horses which he was driving became frightened and, running away, smashed into the pole.

The injured man was attended by two physicians and later taken to the Lowell hospital where upon examination it was found he was suffering from a compound fracture of the right leg, simple fracture of the left leg and probably internal injuries. At the time of going to press neither of the man's lower limbs had been amputated and the surgeons are in hopes that it will not be necessary. His condition is precarious.

Mr. Boynton has a contract for hauling coal from the railroad yards to the Beaver Brook mills in Collinsville, and this morning Gowan and several helpers after delivering one load of coal were going back to the yards for another. To the large wagon were attached four horses, the two leaders being horses which had been used for several years, while the other two were "green" horses.

Gowan was driving and while passing through Fletcher street at a point near Cross street, an automobile operated by Dr. Forster H. Smith, city physician, came down Cross street and the "green" horses becoming frightened started to run. They swerved to one side of the street and when the wagon collided with a tree the other two horses became frightened and the four made a dash for the sidewalk.

Gowan exerted every effort to regain control of the animals but they continued along the sidewalk until they reached the corner of Broadway where they collided with a trolley pole, one of the leaders taking one side of the pole and the other the opposite side.

When the crash came Gowan was thrown between the horses and the pole and was badly crushed. Bystanders rushed to offer assistance and while several grabbed the horses other extricated Gowan from his perilous position.

Dr. Smith did everything possible to stop the flow of blood and alleviate the man's pain and he was later assisted by Dr. John H. Donovan who had been notified of the accident. Gowan, despite the fact that one of his legs had been twisted out of shape and he was bleeding freely from various lacerations, displayed wonderful courage and his first thought was for the care of the horses and later he asked one of the crowd of people that had collected to telephone to his employer and notify him of the accident.

The ambulance was summoned and upon its arrival a hasty trip was made to the Lowell hospital.

GIVEN SIX MONTHS CONTAGIOUS HOSPITAL

Walter Hartwell Sent to House of Correction for Larceny

Walter W. Hartwell was sentenced to six months in the house of correction at Cambridge by Judge Hadley in police court this morning after he pleaded guilty to a complaint charging him with the larceny of $37.50 from John F. Lazarakis, a cigarette maker with a place of business in Suffolk street.

It is alleged that Hartwell posing as a United States inspector had visited the store on various occasions and each time took several packages of cigarettes which he told Lazarakis he sent to Washington to be tested as to their purity. Last week he called upon Lazarakis and asked him to cash a check for $37.50, which the latter did, but when he presented the check at one of the local banks he found that Hartwell had no account there. The matter was reported to the police which resulted in Hartwell's arrest.

When he was arraigned in court he entered a plea of not guilty and asked for a continuance in order that he might secure counsel and was allowed to go on $100 bonds for his appearance for examination in police court the following morning.

When the time appointed for the trial arrived Hartwell failed to put in an appearance and he was declared defaulted. That afternoon he was arrested in the South station, at Boston, by Inspector Grady of the liquor squad and Court Officer Cawley and brought back to this city and his bail was increased to $500.

Inasmuch as Hartwell had been posing as a United States officer, the federal authorities made a thorough investigation and swore out a complaint charging Hartwell with impersonating a United States officer and it was expected that the matter would be pressed this morning. Deputy United States Marshal James H. Waters was in court, but after hearing the sentence handed out to Hartwell, decided not to press the other complaint.

DAVIDSON STREET HOUSE RAIDED
Sergeant Ryan and Patrolmen Petrie, Cornelius Sullivan and Molloy, raided the house at 36 Davidson street shortly after 10:30 o'clock and arrested three men and a woman and sent them to the police station where they were booked for drunkenness. They gave their names as Joseph and Georgina Mayo, Ida Desrosier and Alice Polier. When arraigned before Judge Hadley in police court this morning all entered pleas of guilty with the exception of the Polier woman who declared that she was not drunk when arrested. The officers testified that there had been considerable beer drinking going on in the place of late and that the house was in a filthy condition. The Polier woman was found guilty and sentenced to the state farm. She appealed but later withdrew her appeal. The other three were fined $2 each.

Trio of Girls Arrested

Mary Bedard and Florida Begin, each of whom is 18 years of age, and Mary Lefebvre, 16 years, were arrested in a room in a block in Middlesex street last night by Lieut. Freeman and Patrolmen Sheridan and Keefe. In court this morning the Bedard and Begin girls were charged with being lewd, wanton and lascivious persons in speech and behavior, found guilty and sentenced to the women's reformatory at Sherborn. The Lefebvre girl was arraigned at a special session and continued until next Friday morning when she will appear at the juvenile session of the court.

MAY BE SENT TO HOUSE OF CORRECTION

The arrest was brought about by the activities of Patrolman Sheridan, who had noticed the girls smoking cigarettes in the windows and accosting men in the street. When the police entered the room last night they found the three girls and two young men. The floor was strewn with empty cigarette boxes and there were about three dozen empty beer bottles scattered around the room.

Drunk and Disorderly

Patrolman Petrie arrested Joseph Duchesne in Central street last night for drunkenness and in court this morning testified that the man besides being drunk, was disorderly and annoyed people in the street. He was ordered to pay a fine of $10.

Other Offenders

John Connors denied that he was drunk when arrested at the Middlesex street depot last night, but after Patrolmen Winters and Sheridan had testified as to the man's condition he was found guilty, and a fine of $2 was imposed. Two first offenders were fined $2 each.

SHOT HER BROTHER

Girl Thought That Revolver She Used Was Empty

NEW YORK, April 22.—A young employment and who is staying for a few days with the Bartines while she looks for another place. The mother of the Bartine children died twelve years ago. The father, William Bartine, is proprietor of the Bartine Portrait studios at 4 St. Mark's place, Manhattan, a photographic concern doing copying and enlarging and photographic work for reproduction purposes.

The father does not come home to lunch. In his absence the house is left in charge of the others, with the youngest sister looking after things while her older sister is in the store.

Allice Campbell is not far from the age of the older Bartine girl. The four young persons had been in the habit of having a good deal of fun while they were together and yesterday noon at luncheon there was considerable teasing going on. Florence Bartine says, however, that no one became angry and that a moment afterward she did not recall what the topics of conversation had been but just what the teasing was about. Her friend, Allice Campbell, and her sister also say that none of the four became angry.

In order to start for Manhattan as early as possible Florence Bartine left the table as soon as she had finished eating and before the others. All four were laughing and talking at once when she left the table, according to the stories of the three who still are alive. The dining room is at the rear of the ground floor flat. Adjoining it is a bedroom, and the girl went into this bedroom for her hat and coat. Lying on the bureau in plain sight, she says, was an old revolver owned by her brother and frequently before used by them in play. The weapon had not been loaded in six years until yesterday morning.

Flicking up the revolver, Florence Bartine ran back into the dining room and just as her brother looked up at her approach pointed it at him and pulled the trigger. There was a report and the boy slid softly off his chair on to the floor near the window by which he had been sitting.

The shot had been fired from a distance of only two or three feet and the bullet entered the right temple. Dropping the revolver the sister bent over the boy on the floor but he could not speak to her. While the younger sister, May, cried in her fright, Allice Campbell ran out and telephoned for an ambulance. The call was passed along to police headquarters and Policeman Anderson was sent around from the Ralph Avenue station. When Anderson got there the girl was still holding her brother in her arms. The policeman saw that the boy was dead and the ambulance surgeon, arriving a moment later listened at the boy's heart for a moment and went away again. It was only the insistence of the sister, sobbing with the body of her brother in her arms, that caused the ambulance surgeon to examine the boy at all. The wound in the temple was enough.

The Bedard and Begin girls were the first to be sentenced by the local court under the new title of the institution at Sherborn. Heretofore when a clerk was sentenced to Sherborn the clerk would announce that she be sentenced to the women's prison at Sherborn, but as a result of a legislative act which went into effect yesterday the word "prison" is omitted and now the place is known as the women's reformatory.

"OLD HOMESTEAD"

DENMAN THOMPSON'S FAMOUS

PLAY ENJOYED BY MANY

"The Old Homestead," Denman Thompson's most famous of plays was the attraction at the Opera House last evening and to the large audience which attended it was like an eloquent eulogy of the deceased actor-playwright whose name was and will ever be a household word among the theatre-going public. The dear old play, mellowing as it does with age was finely presented by the company from Ed. L. Snader, who most cleverly interpreted the part of Joshua Whitcomb. Mr. Thompson's own part, down the line. The spirit of Denman Thompson pervaded the atmosphere of the play and as the audience smiled and wept with the varying emotions brought forth by this tale of real life, many a silent requiem was breathed for him who has departed hence. The play was excellently staged and finely presented in every detail.

Water Board Thinks Location at
Farm Might Contaminate WellsEngineer of State Board of Health to be Called in to
Decide Upon the Matter

Before the contagious hospital commission decides upon a location for the proposed hospital the water board will ask the state board of health to look into the matter.

The location that a majority of the commission favors is on a direct line with the Cook wells and while the danger to those wells may be very remote the water board believes that it is best to take the safe side and run no risk. The board met last night and decided to ask the state board of health to send an engineer here to look the ground over.

Dr. McCarty, chairman of the board of charities, is a member of the hospital commission and he is not in favor of the site selected at the Chelmsford street hospital for the proposed contagious hospital. The site favored by a majority of the commission lies between Chelmsford street and the hospital and Dr. McCarty objects to it because of the fact that it blankets the view from the street and he says the lot is not large enough to build upon in future. He would locate the contagious disease hospital at the farm, near the Chelmsford line where there is no view to obstruct and where there is plenty of land.

A like objection is raised, however, against the site favored by Dr. McCarty. It is on a line with the Washington wells but is not as near to these wells as is the other site to the Cook wells. All of the territory will be looked over by the state board of health and what the state board says will go.

Smaller Pipes Too

Another important matter considered by the water board at its meeting last night had to do with a reduction in the size of pipes leading from mains to the supply pipes used by the electric sprinklers. The board has received a great many complaints of late relative to rust in the water. There is considerable iron in the city water, but the iron does not create a rust unless it meets with violent disturbance. That is what is rushing back and forth through the pipes and it is for the purpose of checking this disturbance that the board voted to reduce the size of the pipes from the mains to the supply pipes. The reduction will apply to the outdoors and three inch instead of six inch pipe will be used. The great force from the six inch pipe is what disturbs and rusts the water and it is believed that the trouble can be overcome by the use of a smaller pipe.

The city mains will be blown off tomorrow afternoon between the hours of 1 and 5 o'clock. The water board makes this announcement in another column in order that the water takers may well find themselves inconvenienced by lack of water for household purposes during the afternoon.

NO FIGHTING YET

But Mexican Insurrectos and Federals Are Ready for Battle

Young Madero is Not Anxious to Make Peace—2000 Rebels are Camped Outside of Juarez—Americans Supply Articles of Food to the Mexicans

EL PASO, Texas, April 22.—Whether the day will develop peace or a fight, only Francisco I. Madero, Jr., can say. Yesterday afternoon, the Mexican government gave orders to drop all negotiations with him, declaring that he is unreasonable. Last night his aged father arrived after an effort of several weeks to plead in the interest of peace. This resulted in a stay of activity until the father can have a talk with the son. Pending the outcome of this conversation the two armies are resting within rifle shot of each other. Each side has its cannon in position and in each army the soldiers are keeping close to their rifles. Juarez is not making any attempt to take the offensive in the campaign and the Madero men therefore do not have to be as careful as do the defenders of the town. The garrison inside Juarez must watch every minute for the expected assault. The insurrectos have to be ready only to go into action at the pleasure of their commander-in-chief for they have no idea that there is to be an assault from Juarez and in fact there is no danger of one inasmuch as the garrison in Juarez numbers but 750 men as against 2000 outside the town in the rebel ranks. The insurrectos have not changed their position. They still occupy the mountain range in a crescent shape about the city, one point of the crescent being northwest of Juarez and the other southeast, the army extending around the west side. The mountains, the draw or gulches and the foothills are full of dirty, unkempt, half clad men carrying arms of every description and wearing clothes of an equally conglomerated character. They busy themselves during the pending negotiations washing their meagre clothing supply at the river; but it is a very noticeable fact that there are more Americans performing this task, regardless of their small percentage in the army, than there are Mexicans—bathing their tired feet or begging from the Americans who crowd along the Texas side of the river in automobiles, on street cars or on foot. As the stream is not wide, the Americans can with ease toss cigarettes, small articles of food, lemons, bananas, oranges and other things over the line. The American soldiers patrolling the border make no effort to prevent this but keep a watchful eye for any attempt to get ammunition over the river.

Mrs. Francisco Madero spent the night in the camp with her husband and made several efforts to induce him to listen to his father and try to secure terms of peace, but he has held a deaf ear to her pleadings as well as to those of others. The father will have a meeting during the day with his son. The senior Madero spent the night in El Paso at a hotel, after a short visit in camp with his son, following his arrival last night and today their conversation will turn on peace, but as he has nothing more to offer his son than was offered yesterday and Thursday by the other peace commissioners there was little faith in the ability of the older Madero to have the fight stopped.

PEACE MISSION

MADERO, SR., TO TALK TERMS WITH HIS SON

EL PASO, Texas, April 22.—Francisco Madero, Sr., and the other members of the peace mission, went out to the insurrecto camp today for what was intended to be a thorough discussion of the situation. The elder Madero, who is exceptionally proud of his son, the rebel leader, said that his mission "would come out right." Incidentally, he told of the remarkable change in his son's way of living about a year ago.

"It is remarkable," said the father, "my son, he liked good wine and good beer, you know, and good food of all kinds. He was what you call a good fellow. One day he just quit everything, almost. He stopped drinking and smoking and eating meat, all at the same time. He won't eat even eggs. He is a vegetarian."

"In those days he could not make a speech, could not even return simple thanks at a dinner. I have seen him blush and stammer when called upon. Now they tell me he talks wonderfully to large crowds. I have not heard him but they say he is a fine orator. Never did a boy change so."

It is not to be inferred from the foregoing that young Francisco was previously dissolute, for he was not. His habits were temperate.

Colonel Tamborel, commanding the military post at Juarez, expressed himself in sarcastic vein today with reference to Madero's announcement that he would not attack the city within 24 hours.

"Bah, bah," exploded the colonel. "He will never attack. He is afraid. He will make one excuse after another but there will be no attack. You will see."

Madero and the leaders under him would like to take the city across the river. They outnumber the federal forces and believe that the task would be comparatively simple despite Navarro's artillery. Madero does not wish to waste life, however, and he listened today with great attention to the argument that the revolution already has accomplished every reform demanded except the resignation of Diaz and the latter is a consummation not to be desired, it is argued. There can be no doubt, also, that Dr. Gomez has impressed him with the fear of American intervention. That is a development no Mexican desires on either side.

MANSLAUGHTER

Is Charged Against Boston Man

BOSTON, April 22.—James E. Downey, 23, of 54 Nashua street, West End, was arrested by officers yesterday afternoon on a charge of manslaughter, it being charged that he caused the death of Stephen O'Neill of 52 Nashua street, who died at the Relief hospital yesterday from a fracture of the skull.

Downey and O'Neill were implicated in a street fight on April 13, on Carraway street near Nashua street, and as a result of a push, O'Neill fell and struck his head.

In court his bail was placed at $1000 for further hearing.

Hunton, head of the department of mining and metallurgy of the Sheffield Scientific school at Yale, today announced his resignation to go into private business in New York. He came to the university in 1904 after extensive experience in the mining sections of the west and later became a full professor and departmental head.

LUTHER C. LADD

Story of His Last Night in Lowell

AND HIS FAREWELL TO HIS FRIENDS

Told By His Roommate, Mr. Theodore F. Gardner, Son of Mrs. Gardner, Who Conducted the Boarding House on Machine Shop Corporation.

Here is a little story that seems to have escaped the writers who sought reminiscences of the martyrs for the 50th anniversary of their fall at Baltimore: Theodore F. Gardner, residing at 75 Pine street, this city, whose sons are known as the firm of Gardner Bros., was the room-mate of Luther C. Ladd. On coming to Lowell as a mere stripling, young Ladd became a boarder at the house kept by Mrs. Mary C. Gardner, No. 25 Machine Shop corporation. There he roomed with Theodore F. Gardner, son of the boarding mistress, and about the same age as young Ladd.

One night, says Theodore F. Gardner, young Ladd came home late and threw something so heavily on the bed that it woke me up. It was his uniform. I asked him if he was going. "Yes," he said; "it is all settled; I go tomorrow."

"Tomorrow? I said, getting up in the bed. Isn't that awfully sudden?"

"Yes," he said, "but the company goes and I will not be alone. I would like a little more time to prepare though."

"Then," said Mr. Gardner, "the poor boy sat down to write letters to his parents and friends and I was so much grieved myself at his going that I lay awake speaking to him occasionally for I noticed the tears streaming down his cheeks as he wrote letter after letter to dear friends whom I suppose he felt even then he might never see again. It was after 3 o'clock when he finished writing and turned into bed, and he had not a few hours to sleep. On his departure he seemed more cheerful. He bade everybody in the house a fond good bye, and as he was about to say a last farewell to all he bled a cute little baby girl with whom he had often toyed, and running back he kissed the baby and in a moment was on his way, only turning to wave adieu to those who watched him until he passed out of sight. The name of the baby was Annie Leach and she is now a member of the Calvary Baptist church."

"Everybody at the boarding house loved young Ladd, and all were deeply grieved on hearing of his fall just three days after he left Lowell."

As to the manner of his death Mr. Gardner says the report at the time was that when the detached company, a big husky fellow, tackled Ladd and tried to take his gun away from him, in the tussle Ladd's gun fired, the bullet severing the femoral artery and causing him to bleed to death. "The companies held out too long without firing in compliance with the order not to shoot until attacked by firearms."

REBEL CHIEF

Identified as Oscar Wheelock, a Boston Absconder

BOSTON, April 22.—Through photographs taken on the Mexican border, Oscar Creighton, the daring Mexican rebel leader, recently killed, was yesterday identified as Oscar M. Wheelock, the absconding auditor of the Massachusetts Bonding & Insurance company of Boston.

As Captain Creighton, soldier of fortune, Wheelock during the past three months gained widespread fame on the Mexican border as a dare-devil rebel leader. His forte was the dynamiting of roadways and bridges, and he was marked as an extremely bold and dangerous man by the United States troops guarding the border. In a foolhardy attack against the federals he was shot down.

Two days ago photographs of Captain Creighton, the American soldier of fortune, were published and at once recognized by scores of his friends as Oscar M. Wheelock, the one time chess and billiard expert of Boston and the embezzler of nearly $10,000 from the bonding company, who left Boston in 1910.

President T. J. Falvey of the bonding company and every member of the office staff of the concern were unanimous yesterday in declaring the picture of Captain Creighton to be none other than that of Oscar Wheelock. Billiard and chess players by the score, men who know him well during his sporting days in Boston, stated positively last night that they recognized the portrait on the day it was first published.

"There is no mistake," said one well known billiard player. "I played chess

TRY THIS FOR WIND BURN

If exposure to sun or a stinging wind burns your face and roughens the skin, dust on a little Comfort Powder and the annoyance will vanish.

Comfort Powder is a healing toilet powder—don't compare it with talcum loaded with perfume that irritates the skin. Comfort Powder is noted for keeping the skin smooth and free from all rashes, chafings and itchings. Trained nurses and physicians say it is the only toilet powder good enough for babies. # LEAGUE SEASON AD WOLGAST AND "ONE ROUND" HOGAN AS THEY WILL APPEAR IN RING

Will Open at Spalding Park on Monday Afternoon

Parade and Band Concert Prior to Game—Mayor Meehan Will Pitch First Ball—Team Looks Good at Start

The New England league season will open on Monday and Lowell will play its first game at home with Worcester as the opposing team.

The opening exercises will start with a parade of the principal streets at 12.30 o'clock by the players of both teams headed by the Lowell Cadet band. The latter will give a brief program in Merrimack square after which cars will be taken for Spalding park. At the park at 3 o'clock, His Honor Mayor Meehan will throw the first ball and the game will then be on.

Lowell will present a much stronger team than at the opening of last season, and will have a first division proposition for the season. Out of the unusually large number of recruits tried out, Manager Gray has selected a promising looking aggregation.

One cannot judge the strength of the local team by the exhibition games as the management gave all the recruits a chance to show what they could do, regardless of what the results might be. In many cases since the boys started playing, the home team had the game well in hand but lost it by putting in green players toward the close, the idea being to give everyone a chance, and the survival of the fittest.

To begin with, Lowell has an outfield that can't be beat in the league, in Magee, Barrows and Fluharty. In the infield, Moulton has shown the necessary goods at second base, while Gates has done likewise at third. Corner is all right at short stop. Then there is Jake Boutles. The management wants him to pitch this season but Jake wants to play third again. At first base there are two candidates who will be held for a time, Wright and Wright, while he has not been coming with the ball is still held. Coming directly from Panama he has not become acclimated as yet. He is a graceful fielder. J. John-Dugan is a heavy-hitting candidate.

Behind the bat there are Harry Huston and Spring anyway, whose ability is well known. A young catcher named O'Connor from Attleboro blew in yesterday and will be tried out. He is said to be one fine catcher.

In the pitching department there are Wolfgang, Duval, Yount and Hadley for a starter. Hadley is a new recruit who has made a favorable impression every time he has gone on the slab and he looks awfully good to the critics.

DIAMOND NOTES

All up for the opening of the league season Monday with Worcester as the attraction, band concert, Mayor Meehan to pitch the first ball and a fine time generally. Bring your overcoat.

"Dead Rabbit!" came a voice from the players' bench as Jimmie Magee scooped in a fly, and we knew that Harry Huston had struck town.

Pitcher Yount, just as fat as ever, is on hand. Young came all the way from the south, and found quite a change in the climate.

The can was applied last night to the following: Connolly, Murray, catchers; Still, Stevens and Munroe, pitchers; Rossman, outfielder; Wildes, O'Neill and Peterson, infielders; and Evans, third base.

Wright and Dugan are still held as first base candidates. Wright is highly recommended by Magee and Fluharty, yet has not been connected at the bat while Dugan has, though Wright seems to be a more graceful fielder.

Gates looks good at third base and likewise Moulton at second.

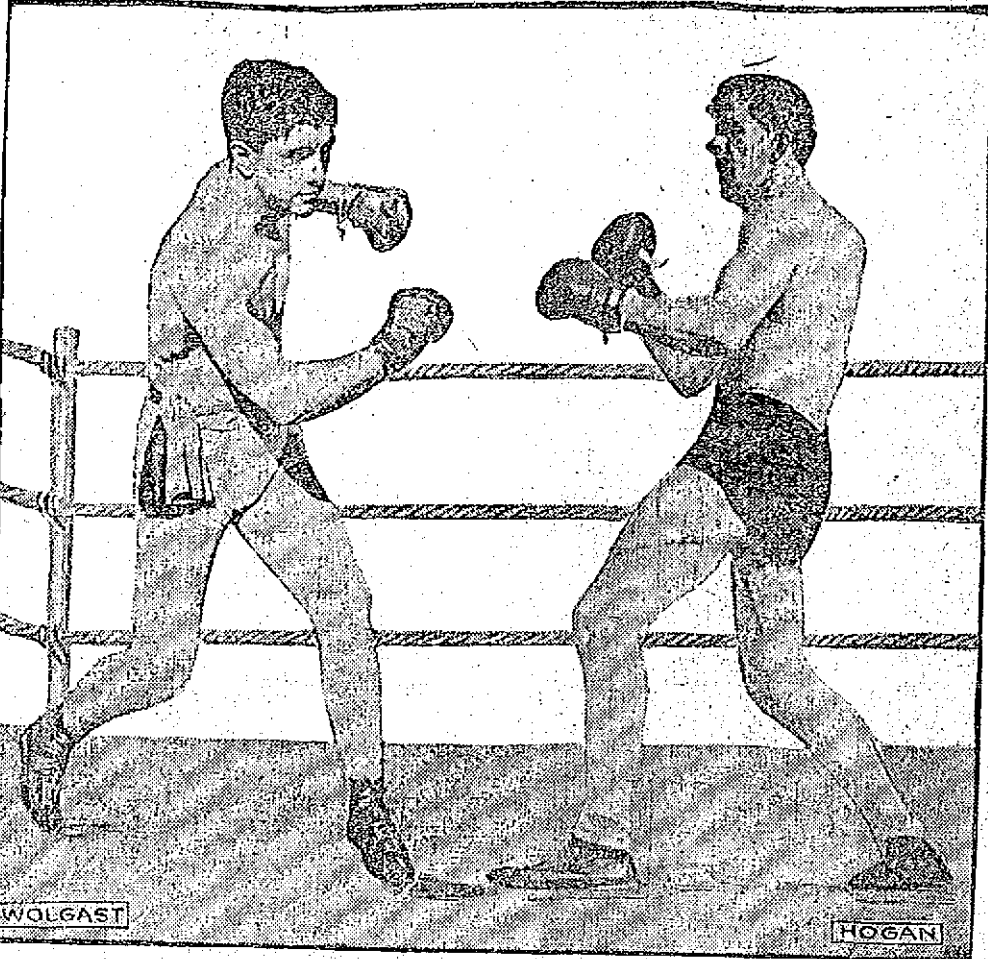

Steve Managan of Brockton has purchased Pitcher, Bazick from the Boston Americans and Catcher Wright from Hartford of the Connecticut league. Bazick pitched for Lynn a short time last season.

"We must be pretty close to the North Pole," remarked Harry Huston yesterday as he kicked himself to keep from freezing. He had just come from New Mexico where the flowers are in bloom and swimming is good.

GREEN PITCHERS

Lost Yesterday's Game at Spalding Park

Troy handed it to Lowell to the tune of 13 to 7 at Spalding park yesterday, rookie pitchers being responsible for the defeat. For instance Percy Still, a big husky proposition, was tried out toward the end of the game and they got five passes and a home run off him in one little inning. Did the management? Sure. Immediately after the game, and Percy took a late train for "home" a little town with a name like a sneeze. In New York state, but Lowell's defeat doesn't mean that the team is no good, for Manager Gray

NEW YORK, April 22.—Ad Wolgast, the champion lightweight, and "One Round" Hogan are in due fettle for their ten round engagement at the Madison A. C. here April 26. The battle promises to be one of the classic held in this section in some time, not excepting the recent McFarland-Murphy.

Wolgast has been training as he never trained before, because his fight with the champion may be the turning point in his career. Hogan has positively declared that if he is beaten by Wolgast he will never put on a boxing glove again. If he succeeds in decisively beating the champion the title will be his. So that whichever way the fight turns out it means much to Hogan. The Frisco boy says he will try hard to drop the lightweight champion for the count in the first two or three rounds. Wolgast says he is in better shape now than ever before and expects to add another knockout to his belt.

VICTOR L. BERGER REAL ESTATE

WASHINGTON, April 22.—Representative Victor L. The constitution, Mr. Berger said, is an antiquated and obsolete instrument and is not adapted to the needs of present day government. His resolution provides that congress shall have the power of calling constitutional conventions to amend or revise the constitution as occasion arises. ### TALKED-ON PRINTING

Mr. James C. Reilly gave an interesting talk on the history of the printing art before the members of the G. G. T. club at the Y. M. C. A. last night. The speaker showed that he was conversant with the art of printing, and beginning with the earliest printers, the Chinese, he explained in detail the different stages of advancement up to the present time.

ANNUAL PARTY THE FRATERNITIES

MAJOR JACQUES

MAJOR E. IRENE HOGAN

Of Officers of Lowell High School Girls' Battalions

Associate hall was the scene of a delightful social last night, the occasion being the 16th annual party of the officers of the Lowell High School Girls' Battalions. The interior of the hall was decorated in an artistic manner with bunting and potted plants. There was a large attendance, the young people predominating and many of the former pupils of the school together with college students were present.

White and green were predominating colors in the decorations, while the orchestra which furnished music for dancing was hidden behind potted plants and greenery.

One of the features of the evening was the grand march in which fifty couples participated and which was led by Mr. William Sullivan and Major Irene Hogan, while following them were: Mr. Harry Brown and Major Mary Jacques; Mr. Herbert Blauve and Captain Charlotte Greene; Mr. William Liddell and Captain Pauline Woodworth; Mr. Bruce Deacon and Captain Margaret Woodworth; and Mr. Waterhouse and Captain Dorothy Bramhall. Then came captains and lieutenants and sergeants and other non-coms, with their escorts.

The young lady officers and members of the battalions were attired in dresses of white and pink instead of the regulation uniform with shining buttons and gold braid.

During the evening the battalions went through the band and dumb bell drills. The first battalion, commanded by Major Irene Hogan, drilled with Indian clubs, while the second battalion, commanded by Major Mary Jacques, gave a delightful band drill. The corps of drummers and buglers, under the direction of the school had general supervision of the drilling.

The order of dances was entered upon about 9 o'clock and continued, with intermission until 1 o'clock this morning.

The matrons of the party were: Miss DeMerritt, Miss Webster, Mrs. Irish, Miss Draper, Miss Cassidy and Miss Baker.

The management of the party was under the direction of the following officers of the battalions:

General manager, Major Irene Hogan; assistant general manager, Major Mary Jacques; floor director, Capt. Charlotte Greene; assistant floor director, Captain Pauline Woodworth; chief aids, Capt. Margaret Woodworth, Capt. Dorothy Bramhall, aids, Captains, Helen Hunter, Mildred Emerson, Harriet Mansur, Carlotta Abels; first lieutenants Dorothy Estes, Lillian Powers, Zola Read, Beatrice Naylor, Helen Cary, Hilda Brazier, Elizabeth Lesurer, May Cluin; second lieutenants Lillian Read, Olive Eveleth, Joanna Shanley, Ruth Hyton, Marion Martin, Addie Clough, Helen Brazier, Elizabeth Page.

At a meeting of the students yesterday it was voted to hold "Upstream" Day on Thursday, May 11, at the Martin Luther grounds in Tyngsboro. The steamboat "Governor Allen" and the crew, "Onions," have been chartered for the day and will leave the Pawtucket street wharf at 9 a. m. A first class band has also been engaged to furnish music during the sail up the river and during the festivities on the grounds.

The annual baseball game between the faculty and students will be held on this day as will the spring interclass track meet. After returning from the trip, the students and faculty will attend the performance at one of the local theatres. Dinner and supper will be served on the grounds as usual.

The young soldier of the O. M. I. Cadets who won the gold medal for the largest boy Thursday evening is not John Gillis but Fred Gillis.

The children's home gave a dinner party yesterday. The guests were five little children brought over from the police station, whose mothers had neglected them. Later in the day they were taken to Boston by Mr. Richardson of the Humane Society and placed in the care of the state.

FRED E. JONES, Regent

Highland Council, Royal Arcanum, Has an Interesting History

In the spring of 1886 the late Jacob Murphy, then a member of Lowell Council No. 8, Royal Arcanum, conceived the idea of forming another council in Lowell and having obtained a dispensation from the Grand Council, he immediately commenced to solicit names for the charter list. A sufficient number was soon obtained and on the 18th of May in that year, Highland Council No. 970, Royal Arcanum, was instituted in Highland hall, Branch street with the following 25 charter members:

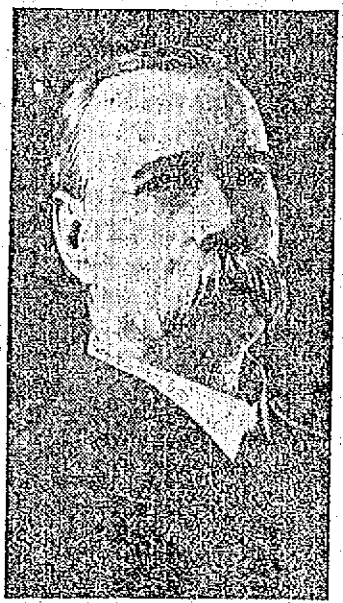

Jacob Murphy, Harry King Boardman, Benjamin F. Hale, George H. Prescott, Arthur W. Early, Alfred I. Smith, Willis G. Eaton, Charles A. Grant, Charles E. Frost, Horace P. Grosvenor, Charles E. Park, Fred C. Raul, Charles H. Cutter, Alfred E. Nichols, George E. Bicknell, Charles E. Graves, John E. Logan, Henry A. Weber, Julian W. Coburn, Herbert V. Hildreth, John T. Farrell, E. F. Lovejoy, William A. Harris, John B. Carmichael, John Oliver and Clarence W. Whitden.

The first board of officers was: Regent, Harry K. Boardman; vice regent, B. F. Hale; orator, G. H. Prescott; past regent, Jacob Murphy; secretary, A. W. Early; collector, A. L. Smith; treasurer, W. D. Eaton; chaplain, C. A. Grant; guide, C. E. Frost; warden, C. P. Grosvenor; sentry, C. E. Park; trustees, F. C. Rand, C. H. Cutter and A. E. Nichols.

The instituting officer was Willis P. Burbank, grand regent of Massachusetts, and at that time a resident of Lowell. A history of Highland Council cannot be written without making it largely a history of the last thirteen years of Mr. Murphy's life. His interest did not cease with the institution of the council. With indomitable energy he and his fellow members continued to increase the membership until at the first anniversary in May, 1887, there were one hundred names upon the roll book of the council. In Arcanum circles, Mr. Murphy was always called "The Father of Highland Council," and the name was aptly chosen. The council was his ideal and outside of his domestic life, no work was too arduous, no sacrifice too great, if the welfare of the council demanded it. He was present at every meeting and fought with voice and vote for what he conscientiously thought was right. From the time of the institution of the council until his death in 1899, he personally secured over one hundred applications for membership. The one hundredth name proposed by him was Rev. Ransom A. Greene, and on the night of his initiation, the council honored Mr. Murphy and the occasion by a banquet and entertainment.

In April, 1893, the council celebrated the initiation of its two hundredth member by a banquet, the entire board of grand officers being present on that occasion. From that time on a healthy growth was maintained with no concerted action to increase the membership. In 1901, the Grand Council proposed that the councils of Lowell which then numbered five, should hold a "Class Initiation," each council to present as many candidates as possible. The suggestion met with favor and a joint committee was immediately formed.

Huntington hall was secured and the date set for Nov. 13th. Friendly rivalry immediately sprang up between the councils and Highland Council entered into the work with a determination to lead. When the eventful day arrived it was found that the combined efforts of the different councils had brought together a class of 118 candidates. Of this number Highland Council alone presented 45, the largest number presented by any other one council being 27. Notwithstanding the great amount of work necessary to relieve this great success, continued efforts added 9 more names during December and January. In February, 1902, the council planned another class initiation of its own to take place on March 27th in Odd Fellows Temple on which date 24 more names were added to the roll, making a total of 81 new members admitted to Highland Council within a period of five months. The growth of the council continued month by month, interspersed with "classes." One held in October of the same year added 12 members, one in March, 1905, 20 members and one in May of the same year 9 members. In June 1906, occurred the memorable "change in the rates" by the supreme council, when the assessments which previous to that time had been abnormally low, were re-arranged to conform to a mortality table embracing a study of more than four hundred thousand lives, thus placing the order upon an absolutely permanent basis. This radical change, however, occurring as it did so soon after the collapse of so many of the so-called "bonus orders," naturally alarmed many of the members, especially the new ones who had been admitted in the recent class initiations and they "made haste quickly" to get out thinking that it was a forerunner of the end, and the council lost many of its members by suspension, but time has revealed the wisdom of the change and the Arcanum of today offers more than ever before to its members, and commends itself most strongly to those in search of the cheapest protection for their homes consistent with absolute safety and permanence.

Since its organization Highland Council has had upon its roll the names of 692 members. Its greatest membership at any one time, which was in the early part of 1905, was 467. Its present membership is 345. Seventeen out of the twenty-four past regents of the council are living and still connected with the council. One of these, Aionzo G. Walsh, has been honored with the highest office in the state having served as grand regent and is at present a member of the supreme council. Since 1901 the council has maintained a degree staff, which has been second to none in the state, and has been called upon to perform the degree work in many other councils not only in Highland city but elsewhere. The staff is in charge of Past Regent Arthur H. Dana, who is its regent; the other members of the staff are Fred Johnston, Fred E. Jones, J. E. Stuart, P. R. Kinney, W. J. Carey, J. W. McKee, C. E. Stuart, Fred Hall and L. M. Fuller. Much enthusiasm prevails in the council at the present time. This is due largely to the energy of its present regent, Fred E. Jones. Twenty new members have been admitted thus far this year under his administration, and a class initiation held April 15th by which fifteen new members were taken into the council owes its success largely to his efforts and was the largest class admitted to any council in this locality since 1905. The other officers of the council are: Vice regent, George E. Hutchins; orator, W. J. Carey; past regent, Arthur H. Dana; secretary, W. D. Hill; collector, A. M. Hutton; treasurer, C. F. Butterfield; chaplain, Fred Hall; guide, J. W. McKee; warden, L. M. Fuller, and sentry, Fred Hall; representatives to Grand Council, A. H. Dana, R. E. Maynard; alternates, Alanson Gray, Felix Langevin; auditing committee, Fred Johnston, Charles W. Brown; financial committee, A. H. Dana, George E. Hutchins, William J. Carey; entertainment committee, William J. Carey, Loren M. Fuller, Fred Johnson, Earl Kinney, John Orrill, Charles Stewart, James Stewart, Charles Taylor.

Highland Council, since its organization has collected from its members and paid over to the widows and orphans benefit fund of the supreme council the sum of $172,259.32. Forty-seven of its members have died and to their beneficiaries the supreme council has paid out of the W. and O. B. fund the sum of $117,000. The amount paid by the deceased members to the W. and O. B. fund was $12,533.25, thus showing that the sum of $104,465.77 has been paid to the beneficiaries in excess of the amount into the W. and O. B. fund by the deceased members. The amount paid into the W. and O. B. fund by the council in excess of the amount received in settlement of death claims has been $55,279.52. The largest sum paid by one member to the W. and O. B. fund was by Bro. L. A. Worcester who died May 6th, 1906, and paid the sum of $311.15. His beneficiary received the sum of $3900. Bro. Wm. J. Morlia, who died Dec. 16, 1903 paid the smallest sum $4.68. His beneficiary received $1000.

These figures deal entirely with the monthly assessments which are paid directly into the W. and O. B. fund. The quarterly dues paid by the members are controlled by the council and are used to promote social events which are a distinctive feature of Highland Council. No other council offers more in the line of entertainment of all kinds and everything is free to members of any council. Highland Council pays the dues and assessments of its members when sick for a period of four months and being connected as it is with the R. A. hospital association four weeks free treatment in any hospital is also secured to the member when necessary.

Highland Council is financially strong and in point of membership ranks seventh among the 153 councils of Massachusetts. On May 18th next it will celebrate by a dance and whilst party the anniversary which marks the close of a quarter century of active and earnest work which extends the hand of brotherhood to a fellow-man and carries comfort and consolation as far as possible into the home of the widow and the orphan.

The past regents of the council are: Jacob Murphy elected at organization, H. K. Boardman, C. W. Whitden, B. F. Hale, A. W. Early, W. A. Harris, A. G. Walsh, Alanson Gray, J. C. Coran, W. Dana Hill, Erwin McKee, E. E. Maynard, J. F. Parker, C. A. Barnes, Frank Dodge, E. G. Crockett, James W. Jackson, C. E. Stillings, W. B. Smith, P. M. Robitaille, E. E. Mansur, F. D. Langevin, L. A. Jelley, M. H. Sawyer, A. H. Bixby and A. H. Dana.

The present secretary, Mr. W. Dana Hill has been in office for the past 12 years, while the collector, Mr. A. M. Hutton has held that position for 25 years. Mr. Frank Butterfield also holds a record as treasurer, for he has been in office for six years.

TO REDUCE THE SUGAR TARIFF

There is a movement on foot to reduce the tariff on sugar. It is estimated that about two cents per pound of the present price of sugar is tariff. If that were knocked off the price of sugar would be reasonable, but the trust would soon find some other pretext for increasing the price.

THE INCOME TAX AMENDMENT

The Massachusetts house is solidly for the income tax amendment. The efforts of Speaker Walker had no effect in preventing the affirmative vote. It is time Massachusetts, that elected a democratic and reciprocity governor, should take her place among the more progressive states that have declared in favor of the income tax amendment.

TO ADMIT ARIZONA

It is quite likely that Arizona will be admitted to the union regardless of the constitution which she has adopted and from which she will not recede. The chief objection to it in the eyes of most members of congress is, that it would apply the recall to the judiciary. Oregon has the same provision already in operation and Arizona is not going to take a back seat in the line of radical innovations.

HATTIE LEBLANC AGAIN

Lawyer Johnson of Waltham is reported to be on his way to see Hattie LeBlanc for the purpose of advising her in regard to the proceedings in the Glover will case. It is alleged that certain other lawyers feel that Hattie has information that would be of great importance to them, and Mr. Johnson doubtless wishes to have Hattie properly advised as to how far she should go in this direction.

TO REGULATE AIRSHIPS

The newspapers are poking fun at Governor Foss over his message suggesting laws to govern the use of aeroplanes. Some think his Excellency premature in this matter, but he is nothing of the sort. The prosecution of aviators in Europe for flying over certain forts indicates the wisdom of the governor's suggestion. Besides there are certain rules to be observed for the protection of life and property, and it is time to have them definitely stated.

RHODE ISLAND'S AMENDMENT

Next fall the state of Rhode Island will probably vote upon a constitutional amendment to abolish the property qualification for voting. Little Rhode is the last state in the Union that has any such anachronism on its statute books. It cannot rid itself of the disgrace any too soon. There is a vigorous element of the younger voters in both parties in favor of the reform, and it is bound to come in the near future, although a resolution in its favor has recently been sidetracked in the house. Louisiana has a property qualification for voters, but it is made an alternative for the ability to read and write. That is the nearest approach to the Rhode Island arrangement existing in the country today.

AFTER THE CONSUMER AGAIN

The state of Pennsylvania, that hotbed of graft, is preparing a scheme to put a higher tax on coal. Some few years ago there was a coal strike which is still well remembered. The strike was settled with the understanding that the operators had to pay in increased wages they would add to the price of coal. They laid a heavy burden upon the consumer, and it has remained there ever since. Now the schemers at Harrisburg think they can make the consumers of the country pay still more for coal. When will this thing of levying upon the consumer come to an end? How is the consumer to stand all the raids that are directed at his pocket-book? It is time the consumer did something to stop these raids. He has the power but does not seem to know how to use it. He will have an opportunity in 1912.

DEMAND FOR MILL BOSSES AND SECOND HANDS

Some local mill agents complain of a difficulty in finding mill bosses and second hands. Somehow the present system does not qualify a man for a position higher than that which he holds. The aim is not to give the operatives a chance to rise, but to have them do the best work possible in the positions they hold. It was supposed that the Textile school would give the mill hands a chance to fit themselves for the position of boss and second hand, but yet the difficulty of getting the right kind of men for these positions is as great as ever.

In the meantime, however, the Textile school is turning out young men fitted to be mill agents, mill engineers and master mechanics, and these are going for the most part out of Lowell to fill positions in their own towns or elsewhere, while we support the Textile school and get what appears to be a wholly inadequate return in the number of our Lowell men helped to go higher.

Why would it not be a good idea for the Textile school to devote part of its attention to this particular problem of fitting experienced mill operatives for the positions of boss or second hand? Is it not strange that while we are supporting a very fine Textile school, it does not help the average mill worker to any great extent? Can the Textile school remedy this state of affairs? Undoubtedly it can by adopting a system of instruction that will come within the reach of the practical workers who, while they know their special lines of business, may have but little education by which to enable them to explain the process. There is something wrong in the plan upon which the Textile school work is cast as indicated by the fact that neither the Lowell mill operatives nor the Lowell mills derive anything like the benefit they should derive from the Textile school as at present conducted. Some of the mills perhaps gain more from it than others and all gain more than do the operatives; but on the whole it must be said that the school exerts its best and highest efforts for the whole United States and not only that but for Japan, China and South America.

And we are the dreamers of dreams,

And sitting by desolate streams—
World losers and world forsakers,
On whom the pale moon gleams:
Yet we are the movers and shakers
Of the world for ever, it seems.

With wonderful deathless ditties
We build up the world's great cities,
And out of a fabulous story
We fashion an empire's glory:
One man with a dream, and pleasure,
Shall go forth and conquer a crown;
And three with a new song's measure
Can trample a kingdom down.

We in the ages living

And Babel itself in our mirth;
And overthrow them with prophesying

For each age is a dream that is dying,
Or one that is coming to birth.

In a special cabin of the United Fruit steamship Zacaapa, arriving last night from Colon and the West Indies, were three Siamese cats, including a big mouse of the Siamese sex that came pretty near losing the number of his mess on the way up. Each cage was marked with the name of the cat. One of the cats, a male, was named "Oradell," after the cat of the late Senator Oradell. The cat was a rare breed and look a bit like a leopard. They are of a light gray color with black. Their glistering eyes were a wild look, but they are really highly tame and affectionate, although the cats belong to the wife of the Peruvian minister to Panama, Federico Pezet, who had intended to come here with her husband and the cats, but who became suddenly ill at Colon and was compelled to give up the trip. Senator Pezet's cat, the cat of the late Senator Oradell, was not at the pier to take them as they were very rare and precious to Senora Pezet. Pursuer Squire, who was responsible for the animals, got into a sweat just after the ship left Kingston, Jamaica, when he found that the big tom had vanished from his

Why Should I Use Cuticura Soap?

"There is nothing the matter with my skin, and I thought Cuticura Soap was only for skin troubles." True, it is for skin troubles, but its great mission is to prevent skin troubles. For more than a generation its delicate emollient and prophylactic properties have rendered it the standard for this purpose, while its extreme purity and refreshing fragrance give to it all the advantages of the best of toilet soaps. It is also invaluable in keeping the hands soft and white, the hair live and glossy, and the scalp free from dandruff and irritation.

While its first cost is a few cents more than that of ordinary toilet soaps, it is prepared with such care and of such materials, that it wears to a wafer, often outlasting several cakes of other soap, and making its use, in practice, most economical. Cuticura Soap is sold by druggists and dealers everywhere, but the truth of these claims may be demonstrated without cost by sending to "Cuticura," Dept. G, Boston, for a liberal sample cake, together with a thirty-two-page book on the skin and hair.

THINKING OF YOU
Remembering you, I picked the four-leaf clover
I chanced to find upon my homeward way
And to myself I softly whispered over
"For this is luck; I'll see you dear, today."

One short-stemmed early violet I found,
That smiled at me from out a shell-
I knelt beside it on the springy ground
And kissed it, for it had your modest grace.

The first pale pink of dawn in eastern skies
Is like your cheeks when with the sun
And in the clear brown pools I see
Your eyes—
Now dark with shadow, now with sunshine touched.

The sudden flash of gayly colored
The hint of spring that trembles in the air,
And all the promise of unfolding things
Remind me of your sweetness every-

OF INTEREST TO MASON

Rev. John Whitehead, A. M. Th. B. of Boston will give a lecture in Middlesex hall, 20 Palmer street, Sunday evening at 7.30 o'clock on the symbolism of the temple of Christ's body and the symbolism between the temple of Solomon and the church as the body of Christ. The symbolic character of the sacred scriptures is shown and applied to the incarnation, the works and the resurrection of Christ. The lecture will be illustrated by charts and will be open for questions at the close. Swedenborg's doctrine of correspondences will be used to show that the Bible has a spiritual meaning within the literal story. The public is cordially invited. Seats free.

THE OPERA HOUSE

Last two performances of Cleveland Moffatt's sensational play of business and tenement life "The Battle" will be given at the Opera House today, afternoon and evening. This play that held the boards for over six months at the Savoy theatre, New York city, and attracted wide attention, Messrs. Thompson and Flynn's clever players are giving a fine performance of this play and one well worth seeing.—Adv.

"THE WHITE SISTER"

Next week's bill at the Opera House commencing Monday night, will be "The White Sister," in which Miss Viola Allen, is now appearing and in which she was seen here last spring. "The White Sister" is the work of F. Marion Crawford, the famous novelist who was selected as the official biographer of the late Pope Leo. In it, Mr. Crawford has succeeded in giving the stage a drama of love and duty in which the ending is at no time in plain view, but all the time the auditor is hoping the end will come about just as it really does in the final act.

Miss Viola Allen, who is now appearing in "The White Sister," is meeting with great success everywhere. Her managers, Messrs. Liebler & Co. have received the following telegram from Joseph M. Hanley, representing the Catholic citizens of Charleston, S. C.: "The Catholics of Charleston feel grateful to Miss Viola Allen for her services to the cause of the poor. They have filled our theatre for a week and she remained. We wish her Godspeed and will look for her return next season in 'The White Sister.'"

In presenting this play at the Opera House next week, it will be one of the best times that a stock company has been allowed to present a play that was still in use by a prominent star.

STATE MACHINE

Cannot Line Up Republicans for Langtry

BOSTON, April 22.—The republican state organization, better known as the state machine, is having some trouble lining up the republicans of the house for its candidate for secretary of state, Representative Albert P. Langtry of Springfield.

Both the democrats and the republicans are going to caucus on candidates next Tuesday morning at 10 o'clock. Yesterday the legislature voted to have the joint convention for the election of a successor to Col. William M. Olin, late secretary of state, next Wednesday afternoon at 3 o'clock.

The ballot will be a secret one and the democrats have high hopes of being able to unite on a candidate, and by casting the united democratic strength of 128 votes for him, land the job. The republicans are afraid that their political enemies will succeed and about 20 of them not committed either to Representative Langtry or Representative Russell A. Wood of Cambridge held a secret conference yesterday lasting for more than an hour.

At the conclusion of the conference the following statement was given out:

After the session this afternoon about 20 republican members of the house met to discuss the question of a candidate for secretary of the commonwealth. Representative George H. Ellis of Newton was chairman. After some talk it was voted to appoint a committee to bring in the names of one or more candidates for the office and to report at an adjourned meeting of this conference to be held at 12 o'clock on Monday, when further action will be determined. This committee is made up of Nathan A. Tufts of Waltham, Courtenay Crocker of Waltham, Robert N. Turner of Waltham, George H. Ellis of Newton, Roger Wolcott of Middlebury.

The new move on the republican side is taken to mean that Langtry's candidacy is not altogether satisfactory to these members. In addition to these there are a number of others who are claimed by Representative Wood but still Langtry and his friends say that they are sure he will receive the caucus nomination Wednesday.

Unless the republicans go into the house united, it would seem as if the democrats had an excellent chance of handing their man. On the democratic side there is a change in the situation. The names of Messrs. McCarthy of Marlboro and Pope of Westminster, and of Frank J. Donahue of Boston, are still being talked of, with Donahue in the lead.

BIG FIELD DAY

TO BE HELD AT ST. JOHN'S PREPARATORY COLLEGE

Active preparations are in progress at St. John's Preparatory college, Danvers, for the second field day, which is to be held on Bunker Hill day, June 17th. Two meetings have already been held at the first of which the chief officers were appointed. (Mr. D. T. Drenahan of Peabody was reappointed permanent chairman.) At the second meeting, committees were selected from the nearby cities and towns to represent their respective schools, and the following heads of tables were chosen: Messrs. Jane Murnane, Salem; Mrs. M. J. Flynn, Danvers; Mrs. Carney, Beverly; Mrs. Shannahan, Peabody; Miss Mary Sullivan, Marblehead; Miss Collins, South Lawrence; Mrs. McManus, Lynn.

A third meeting has been called for Sunday afternoon, April 23d, at which it is expected that all remote preparations for the event will be completed. It is the aim of those in charge to have this field day surpass that of two years ago at which it is estimated 6000 persons were in attendance, and with this end in view every effort is being made to make the affair as attractive as possible. In addition to the field and track events in which most of the high schools and athletic associations of Essex county will be represented, there will be a baseball game between the school's first team and a team representing the Father Mathew T. A. society of Lynn.

Rev. John Whitehead, A. M. Th. ## "MADAME SHERRY"

Local playgoers are fortunate not to be compelled to wait a year or longer before they are given a chance to enjoy "Madame Sherry." Usually it requires two seasons for a success of such proportions as this unique French vaudeville to reach here from New York, but in the case of this phenomenal success, the local public will have a few of the principal cities of the special treats of the year, "Madame Sherry" is without a doubt the most talked-of musical comedy of a generation, and is sure to prove as great here as it was in Paris, Berlin, London, Chicago and New York. Seats go on sale Monday morning.—Adv.

"THREE TWINS"

Theatregoers of this city will be delighted to learn that Jos. M. Gaites' "Three Twins" with Clifton Crawford and the original New York cast and production will come to the Opera House, Saturday matinee and night, April 29th. This amusing and clean musical comedy contains real humor and furnishes a great diversity of entertainment. The wit is as brilliant as the stage settings, costumes and effects. Clifton Crawford, the bright particular star of an exceptionally clever cast is excruciatingly funny at all times; Jos. Allen and Hugh Fay are also mirth provoking. Mayme Gehrue has a great hit in the unique "Yama Yama" song. Others in the cast are: Dan Kivett, Daisy Leon, Elsie Myrnes, George Herbert, Russell Lennon, Ralph Locke. The chorus is made up of pretty girls who sing, dance and work with well trained precision.—Adv.

HATHAWAY THEATRE

A good laugh is better than a bottle of medicine for many a spring ailment and good laughs by the score may be had at the Hathaway theatre next week when the Donald Meek stock company with Seyfrin DeDeyn will present Louis Mann's funniest of comedies, "All On Account of Eliza," which has made countless hundreds roar with laughter. It is a laugh-a-minute production whose chief aim is to cause merriment and written as it was by a most eminent actor-playwright, the object has been attained. Mr. Mann in writing the play created a part for himself that would best bring out his droll humor, the character being that of a crusty old German who runs his town and everyone in it except his own housekeeper who succeeds in bossing him. This part will be presented next week by Donald Meek who excels in comedy roles and whose versatility and ability to delineate character parts is well known to Lowell theatre-goers. Mr. Meek has previously played the part at the Castle Square theatre where he scored a tremendous hit. The play deals with the experiences of a pretty little school teacher who gets a position in a small town and who in a short time has the entire town at her feet to the evident disgust of the women who proceed to make things interesting for her. Even the old German succumbs to her charm and confides in his son who is at the top of the list of the school teacher's admirers. By gosh, she's a nice gal." As may be expected from the nature of the play it is extremely funny and without any coarse or horseplay features, being replete with genuine humor. Laugh follow laugh from curtain to curtain. Miss Estelle, Miss Nedderer, Miss Allen, and Mr. DeDeyn, Mr. Cairns, and in fact every member of the company will be found in a congenial part, each contributing an ex-

MERRIMACK SQUARE THEATRE

The management of the Merrimack Square theatre announces one of the biggest and best programs of the season for the sacred concerts on Sunday. Seven first-class vaudeville acts and a fine series of daylight motion pictures will be included in the bill. Nelson and Milledge will give a sketch which was put on at Tony Pastor's theatre, New York city, by them many years ago. This is their first appearance at a Sunday concert. James J. Morrison, who is also playing at this theatre this week, will present a series of impersonations of famous stage people and the others to contribute to the day's bill will be Wilkins and Wilkins, Chas. Gilday, Hulley and Noble, Miss Sadie Graham and Emuth, the singing violinist. The third in the series of famous paintings by Paul Philippoteaux, will be shown tomorrow. Its subject will be "Battle of Shiloh," and it is claimed to be one of this great artist's best efforts. These paintings are of some local interest because of the fact that they are owned by Mr. Orrin L. Griffin of this city.

Next week's offering will again introduce some really new features. Banda Roma, an organization of 20 musicians, with Sig. Guisepi Strigiano, the eccentric leader, at its head, will give a series of selections that should prove entertaining. Anna Arline, known as "The Somewhat Different Girl," a comedienne whose work has attracted more than ordinary attention from theatrical critics in all of the cities where she has appeared, will give a most entertaining sketch, and Hickey and Nelson in their comedy creation, "Twisted and Tangled," are sure to talk and dance themselves into favor. Hoop rolling is Carmen's specialty and his act is said to be most unique. The soloist for the week will be Johnnie Graham, and the motion pictures will be the very best that can be secured.—Adv.

ACADEMY OF MUSIC

An extra fine vaudeville and picture program is presented at the Academy today. The Katzenza Troupe of Japanese acrobats and jugglers are very clever. The Terry Twins are surprisingly like each other and have a monolog offering and funny boxing finish and Frederick Wright & Co., in a dramatic playlet, "The Master of Men." A sacred concert will be given on Sunday with special program. The vaudeville features for Monday include McKee's clay model, The Stanton, singers and talkers, and Steart Sisters and Escoffiers, singing, dancing and costume changing.—Adv.

THEATRE VOYONS

Today's feature at the Theatre Voyons is a magnificently staged and fine acted story of mother love entitled Madame Rex, the sacrifice of a woman of the world who puts away her life's happiness for that of her only daughter is well told and the whole subject is strong from beginning to end. Tomorrow the usual excellent Sunday concert will be given and included in the program will be found several pictures of the very highest class. On Monday a bill of unusual excellence will be offered the feature being a most thrilling dramatic subject "The Mother."—Adv.

COLONIAL THEATRE

The vaudeville includes Louie & Duol who present the laughing playlet, "Dad's Daughter Nell." Felix Thibault, singing comedian; George Whalen, a lion juggler without an equal. The company is making a big hit. The hundred seats at 5c, 10c at 10c. Sacred concert Sunday.—Adv.

MRS. SCOTT CHOSEN If It's in the Sun You'll Hear From It

Illinois Woman Again Elected President General of D. A. R.

WASHINGTON, April 22.—Mrs. Matthew T. Scott of Illinois was declared last night to have been re-elected president general of the Daughters of the American Revolution for the next two years.

Of the 1936 votes cast, Mrs. Scott received 614, her opponent, Mrs. William C. Story of New York, 165, and six of the ballots were blank.

The tellers spent almost 24 hours in counting Thursday's vote and the result, which, it was expected, would be announced at the morning session of the congress, had to be postponed until last night.

With Mrs. Scott was elected the entire administration ticket, except one vice president general who received 100 votes less than the number necessary to elect and for which position a new ballot will be taken today.

Then Mrs. Scott entered Continental hall after the vote had been announced, preceded down the center aisle by a dozen charming young women, and followed by a score more bearing great baskets and arms full of American beauties, bouquets, and other flowers. She received with wild applause.

Severely had she mounted the platform before Mrs. Story asked recognition. She declared that she felt no bitterness because of her defeat, and urged all the members of the organization to uphold as she intended to do, the hands of their newly-elected president-general.

The officers elected were: Mrs. Henry L. Mann, vice president general in charge of organization of chapters, Miss Elizabeth Pierce chaplain general, Mrs. Howard T. Hodgkins, recording secretary general, Mrs. W. A. Dennis, corresponding secretary general, Mrs. Gathus Brumbaugh, registrar general, Mrs. William D. Hoover, treasurer general, Mrs. Charles Bassett, historian-general, Miss Annyrills Gillette, librarian-general, all residents of the district of Columbia, except Mrs. Bassett, Maryland, and Mr. Thompson, Massachusetts.

Ten vice presidents general were to be elected, but only nine received enough votes. All elected were Scott candidates, as also was Miss Harriet L. Lake of Iowa, although 10th in point of numbers had 10 votes too few to elect. The nine declared elected, in the order elected, were:

—Miss Sophie Waples, Delaware; Mrs. Clayton R. Truesdale, Ohio; Mrs. Allen P. Perley, Pennsylvania; Mrs. Jay P. Brantley, Michigan; Mrs. Ben Gray, Jr., Missouri; Mrs. James M. Fowler, Indiana; Mrs. Edwin C. Gregory, North Carolina; Mrs. Charles B. Bryan, Tennessee; and Mrs. R. H. Edmondson, W. Virginia.

Mrs. J. Morgan Smith of Alabama was elected an honorary vice president general and Mrs. Elroy M. Avery was re-elected editor of the American Monthly Magazine, the official organ of the D. A. R.

In thanking the society for her reelection Mrs. Scott said that while the members sometimes differed in interpretation of questions of privilege or points of order, when it comes to questions of vital patriotic principles the D. A. R. heart beats true.

After last night's session a reception was given to Mrs. Scott at the hotel where she has her headquarters.

GOOD FRIDAY
Observed at the Greek Church

Good Friday was observed in a fitting way at the Greek Orthodox church in Jefferson street last night. Services began at 7 o'clock and consisted of the singing of hymns and a sermon by the pastor, Rev. Costas H. Demetriou. A huge epitaphion of flowers on which rested a sacred icon, representing the dead body of Christ was placed near the sanctuary, and two rows of members of the Greek military society, in uniform, opened a way to it from the choir to the sanctuary. Between these two rows of military guards, hundreds of men and women passed. Near the epitaphion were also placed huge baskets containing natural flowers, and to each of the faithful a flower was given. The Greek priest and several acolytes, stood about the epitaphion and chanted during the long service which lasted four hours. Shortly before 10 o'clock a procession took place. The procession was headed by the Lowell Military band and 150 men of the Greek Holy Regiment. The priest in his vestments preceded the flower epitaphion which was carried by 12 deacons of the Greek community, six men relieving the first six bearers half way along the route. A large number of the lines of march was from the church through Little, Dimmer, Market, Adams, Cross, Suffolk and Lewis streets, back to the church.

The floral epitaphion was a remarkable structure, standing about eight feet high and about six feet long. The flowers were fastened upon a wooden frame, the lower part of which represented a couch, from which rose pillars supporting a dome. All of the frame was covered with carnations and roses of a bright hue, lilies and greenery, the effect being superb.

Servants will be held again tonight beginning at 10 o'clock and lasting until 12 o'clock, at which time the faithful will receive the blessed communion. This is called the welcome of Easter and tomorrow Easter will be observed with an elaborate program.

A LIVELY SCENE

In Mayor's Office in
Lawrence

LAWRENCE, April 22.—Paving block purchases by the city of Lawrence are again forcefully brought before the public by the claim of Michael J. O'Donnell of the Lawrence Granite company, that he is being unfairly treated in not being given an opportunity to submit bids.

He complained to the mayor a day or two ago that Superintendent Lyons had recently purchased from Shaw & Horsfall of Lowell, seven car loads of paving blocks for which from $10 to $15 more per thousand had been paid than he would have furnished them had he been given an opportunity.

The mayor arranged for a conference in his office Friday, and the two men met there. Mr. O'Donnell repeated his accusation, but the superintendent would neither acknowledge or deny the truth of it. The superintendent felt insulted by the insinuations said to have been made by Mr. O'Donnell and refused to answer his questions. The men nearly came to blows during the "conference," and were prevented from a clash by the mayor who stepped between them. Superintendent Lyons soon after left the office.

The mayor said he had no authority to compel Superintendent Lyons to answer the questions of Mr. O'Donnell, nor had he any supervision over the purchase of supplies for the street department. Mr. O'Donnell differed with him and a warm discussion followed between them. Mr. O'Donnell said he should bring the matter before the board of aldermen at the meeting next Monday night.

Neither the superintendent nor Mr. O'Donnell would talk on the trouble last night.

DRASTIC BILL
To Prevent the Use of Cigarettes

DENVER, Colo., April 22.—The lower house of the legislature yesterday passed a drastic anti-cigarette bill which at the time it was introduced was considered a joke. The bill makes it a misdemeanor to buy, sell, give away, or have in one's possession cigarettes or cigar papers. Credit for the passage of the measure is given to the Federated Women's clubs who have conducted a lobby several weeks at the state house. Friends of the bill declare that it will pass the senate.

BOTH LEGS FRACTURED CONTAGIOUS HOSPITAL

Geo. Gowan Had a Narrow Escape
From Being Killed

He Was Crushed Between a
Trolley Pole and Horse—
"Green" Animals Were Scared
by Automobile—Gowan is in
a Serious Condition

George Gowan, employed as a teamster for Alvan D. Boynton of 1488 Gorham street, was nearly killed shortly after 10:30 o'clock this morning as a result of being crushed between a horse and a trolley pole at the corner of Broadway and Fletcher street when the horses which he was driving became frightened and, running away, smashed into the pole.

The injured man was attended by two physicians and later taken to the Lowell hospital where upon examination it was found he was suffering from a compound fracture of the right leg, simple fracture of the left leg and probably internal injuries. At the time going to press neither of the men lower limbs had been amputated and the surgeons are in hopes that it will not be necessary. His condition is precarious.

Mr. Boynton has a contract for hauling coal from the railroad yards to the Beaver Brook mills in Collinsville, and this morning Gowan and several helpers after delivering one load of coal were going back to the yards for another. To the large wagon were attached four horses, the two leaders being horses which had been used for several years, while the other two were "green" horses.

Gowan was driving and while passing through Fletcher street at a point near Cross street, an automobile operated by Dr. Forster H. Smith, city

LAWRENCE, April 22.—The agony is over! The licenses have been granted, and while there are some disappointments the grant as a whole seems to have given satisfaction to those interested.

The commissioners went into session in the early evening and at 8:30 o'clock

WOMAN TESTIFIED

Told Her Story at the Trial of the Camorristi Today

VITERBO, Italy, April 22.—Today it was Vincenzo Avolio, the butcher, who disputed the law with the judge; Antonio Peruccio, the seller of tortoise shells to Chicagoans, frankly expressing the hope that he would get some free advertising out of his misfortune; and Maria Stendardo, "the beauty of Naples," who chose imprisonment rather than betray the man she loved, that were the principal performers in the trial of camorristi.

The two men are charged with being present at the meeting of camorristi leaders at the Alda tavern in Bagnara on May 18, 1908, when Gennaro Guccolo was condemned to death, the state being engaged just now chiefly with those accused of formulating the plot resulting in the murder of Guccolo and his wife. When Avolio replaced the blood-stained apron of his meat shop for street dress he chose the best in texture and cut, and this morning he fairly dazzled the spectators with his fashionable get-up. He is a

Farm Might Contaminate Wells

Engineer of State Board of Health to be Called in to
Decide Upon the Matter

Before the contagious hospital commission decides upon a location for the proposed hospital the water board will ask the state board of health to look into the matter.

The location that a majority of the commission favors is on a direct line with the Cook wells and while the danger to those wells may be very remote the water board believes that it is best to take the safe side and run no risk. The board met last night and decided to ask the state board of health to send an engineer here to look into the matter.

Smaller Pipes Too
Another important matter considered by the water board at its meeting last night had to do with a reduction in the size of pipes leading from mains to the supply pipes used by the electric sprinklers. The board has received a great many complaints of late relative to rust in the water. There is considerable iron in the city water, but the iron does not create a rust unless it meets with violent disturbance that sends it rushing back and forth through the pipes and it is for the purpose of checking this disturbance that the board voted to reduce the size of the pipes from the mains to the supply pipes. The reduction will apply to the outskirts and three inch instead of six inch pipe will be used. The great danger from the six inch pipe is what disturbs and rolls the water and it is believed that the trouble can be overcome by the use of a smaller pipe.

The city mains will be blown off tomorrow afternoon between the hours of 1 and 5 o'clock. The water board makes this announcement in another column in order that the water users may not find themselves inconvenienced by lack of water for household purposes during the afternoon.

40 CASES OF SMALLPOX

MONCTON, N. B., April 22.—Nearly 40 cases of smallpox have developed at Fox creek and along the Painswick road just outside of this city, and in an attempt to prevent a further spread of the disease two schoolhouses have been closed indefinitely. Most of the cases are of a mild type. There are three cases of smallpox in this city which have originated from the Fox creek and Painswick road district.

I send my goods to the United States, particularly to Chicago, and I do hope that in the midst of my misfortunes that this trial will be a good advertisement for my wares."

There was special interest in the examination which followed of Maria Sando, who is the only woman among the prisoners. She is the common-law wife of Nicola Morra, other wise known as "Red Sandy," and one of the alleged principals in the murder of the beauty that attracted numberless suitors in her youth. She has the manner of the women of the nobility. Of humble birth, she was given in marriage at an early age to a dock laborer. They set up a lodging-house which attracted the attention of the police. The meagre fortune of the husband was threatened. The beautiful Maria visited the local delegate and there after the Palazzo Amendola was not disturbed. Soon afterward, Maria, beautifully gowned, frequented the most fashionable restaurants. She met Nicola Morra and the state alleges, became a power in the camorra, controlling a certain low element and exercising powerful influence in the higher places. All these allegations she denied today, saying:

"I was arrested only because I was a friend and companion of Morra and refused to comply with the wishes of the carabinieri that I denounce the man that I love and whom I know to be innocent."

6 O'CLOCK SHOT HER BROTHER

Girl Thought That Revolver She Used Was Empty

NEW YORK, April 22.—A young Brooklyn girl, Florence Bartine, of 291 Koscusko street, shot and killed her brother, Harold, yesterday noon with a revolver, which she supposed to be empty. The girl was arrested, but later was paroled in the custody of a probation officer and was allowed to return home.

The shooting occurred at the dinner table. Florence Bartine, who died of the shooting, is 19 years old and has been working as a saleswoman at a Williamsburg department store. She had decided to make a change and was planning to come to Manhattan yesterday afternoon to apply for a place in a drug house. The others at the table were another sister, May, 12 years old, and Alice Campbell, a friend of Florence Bartine's, who is out of employment and who is staying for a few days with the Bartines while she looks for another place. The mother of the Bartine children died twelve years ago. The father, William Bartine, is proprietor of the Bartine Portrait studios at 4 St. Mark's place, Manhattan, a photographic concern doing copying and enlarging and photographing work for reproduction purposes.

The father does not come home to lunch. In his absence the house is left in charge of the others, with the younger sister looking after things while her older sister is in the store.

Alice Campbell is not far from the age of the older Bartine girl. The four young persons had been in the habit of having a good deal of fun which they were together and yesterday noon at luncheon there was considerable teasing going on. Florence Bartine says, however, that no one became angry and that a moment afterward she did not recall what the topics of conversation had been or just what the teasing was about. Her friend, Alice Campbell, and her sister also say that none of the four became angry.

In order to start for Manhattan as early as possible Florence Bartine left the table as soon as she had finished eating and before the others. All four were laughing and talking at once when she left the table, according to the stories of the three who still are alive. The dining room is at the rear of the ground floor flat. Adjoining it is a bedroom, and the girl went into this bedroom for her hat and coat, lying on the bureau in plain sight, she says, was an old revolver owned by her brother and frequently before used by them in play. The weapon had been loaded in six years until yesterday morning.

Picking up the revolver, Florence Bartine ran back into the dining room and just as her brother looked up at her approach pointed it at him and pulled the trigger. There was a report and the boy shot softly off his chair on to the floor near the window by which he had been sitting.

The shot had been fired from a distance of only two or three feet and the bullet entered the right temple. Dropping the revolver the sister bent over the boy on the floor but he could not speak to her. While the younger sister, May, cried in her fright, Alice Campbell ran out and telephoned for an ambulance. The call was passed along to police headquarters and Policeman Anderson was sent around from the Ralph Avenue station. When Anderson got there the girl was still holding her brother in her arms. The policeman saw that the boy was dead and the ambulance surgeon, arriving a moment later, halted at the boy's head for a moment and went away steadily. It was only the insistence of the sister, sobbing with the body of her brother in her arms, that caused the ambulance surgeon to examine the boy at all. The wound in the temple was enough.

| RALLY IN PROGRESS AT THIS CLOSE  |  |  |  |
| TODAY  |  |  |  |
| Volume of Trading Well Sustained In the Second Hour—Rallying Movement Brought Substantial Recovery.  |  |  |  |
| NEW YORK, April 22.—The active issues sold off in the opening transactions at the stock exchange today. U. S. Steel dropped to 74, the lowest point of the week on the first sale of 2400 shares. U. P. Reading and Missouri Pacific declined fractionally. International Harvester gained a point.  |  |  |  |
| The market was weak and feverish during the first hour. Heavy selling concentrated upon United States Steel which fell to 73 1/4, but the entire list was heavy, many of the active issues showing losses that ranged from substantial fractions to a point or more. U. P. and Reading recovered the most, severe declines of 1 1/2 and 1 3/4 respectively. About the only exceptions to the market's all-around heaviness was International Harvester, which gained two points in anticipation of its forthcoming annual report. Sloss Sheffield Steel and U. S. Rubber yielded two points. |  |  |  |
| The market closed active with the rally in progress. The volume of trading was well sustained in the second hour and the list showed little recuperative power until just before the close, when a rallying movement brought substantial recoveries from the low level. There was some weakness in the local traction stocks. International Harvester bid declined 2 1/2 points.   |  |  |  |

AMERICAN PAVILION OPENED

ROME, April 22.—The American pavilion at the international art exhibition was formally opened today by King Victor Emmanuel and Queen Helena. There were gay festivities throughout the grounds of the Villa Catteria. Ambassador Leishman, together with the American commissioner, Harrison S. Morris, the staff of the American embassy, and members of the colony in Rome, awaited the arrival of their majesties at the entrance to the pavilion. All around was a riot of color formed by the flags of many nations and plants and flowers in profusion, while above all on the colonial flagpole waved the American banner. The American building stands on the highest point of the undulating grounds, affording a magnificent view of the whole exhibition.

The king and queen arrived on the scene, accompanied by Count Di San Martino, president of the committee, and by their civil and military suites. Their majesties shook hands cordially with the American officials and then entered the pavilion, making a thorough inspection. They admired the simple colonial architecture.

The king, queen and authorities congratulated Ambassador Leishman and Mr. Morris warmly on the large participation of American artists in the exhibition.

GIVEN SIX MONTHS

Walter Hartwell Sent to House of Correction for Larceny

Walter W. Hartwell was sentenced to six months in the house of correction at Cambridge by Judge Hadley in police court this morning after he pleaded guilty to a complaint charging him with the larceny of $37.50 from John F. Lazarakis, a cigarette maker with a place of business in Suffolk street.

It is alleged that Hartwell posing as a United States Inspector had visited the store on various occasions and each time took several packages of cigarettes which he told Lazarakis he sent to Washington to be tested as to their purity. Last week he called upon Lazarakis and asked him to cash a check for $37.50, which the latter did, but when he presented the check at one of the local banks he found that Hartwell had no account there. The matter was reported to the police which resulted in Hartwell's arrest.

When he was arraigned in court he entered a plea of not guilty and asked for a continuance in order that he might secure counsel and was allowed to go on $300 bonds for his appearance for examination in police court the following morning.

When the time appointed for the trial arrived, Hartwell failed to put in an appearance and he was declared defaulted. That afternoon he was arrested in the South station, at Boston, by Inspector Grady of the Haver square and Court Officer Cawley and brought back to this city and his bail was increased to $500.

Inasmuch as Hartwell had been posing as a United States officer, the federal authorities made a thorough investigation and swore out a complaint charging Hartwell with impersonating a United States officer and it was expected that the matter would be pressed this morning. Deputy United States Marshal James H. Waters was in court, but after hearing the sentence handed out to Hartwell, decided not to press the other complaint.

Davidson Street House Raided
Sergeant Ryan and Patrolman Petrie, Cornelius Sullivan and Melony, raided the house at 36 Davidson street shortly after 10:30 o'clock and arrested three women and a man and sent them to the police station where they were booked for drunkenness. They gave their names as Joseph and Georgianna Maye, Ida Desrozier and Alice Petrie. When arraigned before Judge Hadley in police court this morning, all entered pleas of guilty with the exception of the Petrie woman, who declared that she was not drunk when arrested. The officers testified that there had been considerable beer drinking going on in the place of late and that the house was in a filthy condition. The Petrie woman was found guilty and sentenced to the state farm. She appealed but later withdrew her appeal. The other three were fined $2 each.

ELEVATOR CASE

On Trial in Superior Court at Adjournment

The case of Percy W. Coffin, P. P. A. vs. Aberthaw Construction Co., went to trial in the superior court yesterday before Judge Morton, and the plaintiff's case had not been finished when court adjourned at night until Monday.

The plaintiff, who, it is claimed, was under 16 years of age, was employed in connection with the construction of the new storeroom of the Massachusetts mills on Bridge street, October 28, 1910. With a number of other men he was on the elevator, when an accident occurred, causing the boy to be thrown down, and his leg was caught between the platform and the ledger board, or cross board, at the ninth floor. He suffered a fracture of the thigh, and other injuries. It is claimed that there was no safety clutch or other device, whereby the elevator could be stopped. Also, a violation of the statute, is alleged, in that the boy was under 16.

James T. O'Hearn and John W. McEvoy appeared for the plaintiff and Messrs. Trull and Wier for the defendant company.

"OLD HOMESTEAD"

PLAY ENJOYED BY MANY
The "Old Homestead," Denman Thompson's most famous of plays was the attraction at the Opera House last evening and to the large audience which attended it was like an eloquent eulogy of the deceased actor-playwright whose name was and will ever be a household word among the theater-going public. The dear old play arranged at a special session and concluding as it does with age was finely presented by the company from Ed. L. Snader, who most cleverly interpreted the part of "Joshua Whitcomb." Mr. Thompson's own part, down the line. The spirit of Denman Thompson pervaded the atmosphere of the play and as the audience smiled and wept with the varying emotions brought forth by his tale of old life, many a silent requiem was breathed for him who has departed hence. The play was excellently staged and finely presented in every detail.

NO FIGHTING YET

But Mexican Insurrectos and Federals Are Ready for Battle

Young Madero is Not Anxious to Make Peace—2000 Rebels are Camped Outside of Juarez—Americans Supply Articles of Food to the Mexicans

EL PASO, Texas, April 22.—Whether the day will develop peace or a fight, only Francisco I. Madero, Jr., can say. Yesterday afternoon the Mexican government gave orders to drop all negotiations with him, declaring that he is untrustworthy. Last night his aged father arrived after an effort of several weeks to plead in the interest of peace. This resulted in a stay of actively until the father can have a talk with the son. Pending the outcome of this conversation the two armies are resting within rifle shot of each other. Each side has its cannon in position and in each army the soldiers are keeping close to their rifles. Juarez is not making any attempt to take the offensive in the campaign and the Madero men therefore do not have to be as careful as do the defenders of the town. The garrison inside Juarez must watch every minute for the expected assault. The Insurrectos have to be ready only to go into action at the pleasure of their commander-in-chief for they have no idea that there is to be an assault from Juarez and in fact there is no danger of one inasmuch as the garrison in Juarez numbers but 750 men as against 2000 outside the town in the rebel ranks. The Insurrectos have not changed their position. They still occupy the mountain range in a crescent shape about the city, one point of the crescent being northwest of Juarez and the other southeast, the army extending around the west side. The mountains, the draw or gulches and the foothills are full of dirt, un-kempt, half clad men carrying arms of every description and wearing clothes of an equally conglomerated character. They busy themselves during the pending negotiations watching their meager clothing supply at the river, but it is a very noticeable fact that there are more Americans performing this task, regardless of their small percentage in the army, than there are Mexicans—bathing their tired feet or begging from the Americans who crowd along the Texas side of the river in automobiles, on street cars or on foot. As the stream is not wide, the Americans can with ease toss lemons, bananas, oranges and other things over the line. The American soldiers patrolling the border make no effort to prevent this but keep a watchful eye for any attempt to get ammunition over the river.

Mrs. Francisco Madero spent the night in the camp with her husband and made several efforts to induce him to listen to his father and try to secure terms of peace, but he has held a deaf ear to her pleadings as well as to those of others. The father will have a meeting during the day with his son. The senior Madero spent the night in El Paso at a hotel, after a short visit in camp with his son, following his arrival last night and today their conversation will turn on peace, but as he has nothing more to offer his son than was offered yesterday and Thursday by the other peace commissioners there was little faith in the ability of the older Madero, to have the fight stopped.

PEACE MISSION

MADERO, SR., TO TALK TERMS WITH HIS SON

EL PASO, Texas, April 22.—Francisco Madero, Sr., and the other members of the peace mission, went early to the Insurrecto camp today for what was intended to be a thorough discussion of the situation. The elder Madero, who is exceptionally proud of his son, the rebel leader, said that his mission "would come out right." Incidentally, he told of the remarkable change in his son's way of living about a year ago.

"It is remarkable," said the father, "my son, he liked good wine and good beer, you know, and good food of all kinds. He was what you call a good fellow. One day he just quit everything, almost. He stopped drinking and smoking and eating meat, all at the same time. He won't eat even eggs. He is a vegetarian."

"In those days he could not make a speech, could not even return simple thanks at a dinner. I have seen him bluish and stammer when called upon. Now they tell me he talks wonderfully to large crowds. I have not heard him but they say he is a fine orator. Never did a boy change so."

It is not to be inferred from the foregoing that young Francisco was previously dissolute, for he was not. His habits were temperate.

Colonel Tamborel, commanding the military post at Juarez, expressed himself in sarcastic vein today with reference to Madero's announcement that he would not attack the city within 24 hours.

"Bah, bah," exploded the colonel. "He will never attack. He is afraid. He will make one excuse after another but there will be no attack. You will see."

Madero and the leaders under him would like to take the city across the river. They outnumber the federal forces and believe that the task would be comparatively simple despite Navarro's artillery. Madero does not wish to waste life, however, and he listened today with great attention to the argument that the revolution already has accomplished every reform demanded except the resignation of Diaz and the latter is a consummation not to be desired, it is argued. There can be no doubt, also, that Dr. Gomez has impressed him with the fear of American intervention. That is a development no Mexican desires on either side.

and billiards with Oscar Wheelock for years and I am dead sure that this picture of the Mexican rebel leader is he. The very expression on his face, the pose, everything about it convinces me. I knew it the moment I first saw it and remarked it at the time, and that was before it was even suspected that Captain Creighton was Oscar Wheelock."

LUTHER C. LADD

Story of His Last Night in Lowell

AND HIS FAREWELL TO HIS FRIENDS

Told By His Roommate, Mr. Theodore F. Gardner, Son of Mrs. Gardner, Who Conducted the Boarding House on Machine Shop Corporation.

Here is a little story that seems to have escaped the writers who sought reminiscences of the martyrs for the 50th anniversary of their fall at Baltimore: Theodore F. Gardner, residing at 75 Pine street, this city, whose sons are known as the firm of Gardner Bros., was the room-mate of Luther C. Ladd. On coming to Lowell as a mere stripling, young Ladd became a boarder at the house kept by Mrs. Mary C. Gardner, No. 25 Machine Shop corporation. There he roomed with Theodore F. Gardner, son of the boarding mistress, and about the same age as young Ladd.

One night, says Theodore F. Gardner, young Ladd came home late and threw something so heavily on the bed that it woke me up. It was his uniform. I asked him if he was going. "Yes," he said; "it is all settled; I go tomorrow."

"Tomorrow? I said, getting up in the bed. Isn't that awfully sudden?" "Yes," he said, "but the company goes and I will not be alone. I would like a little more time to prepare though."

"Then," said Mr. Gardner, "the poor boy sat down to write letters to his parents and friends and I was so much grieved myself at his going that I lay awake speaking to him occasionally, for I noticed the tears streaming down his cheeks as he wrote letter after letter to dear friends whom I suppose he felt even then he might never see again. It was after 3 o'clock when he finished writing and turned into bed, and he had but a few hours to sleep. On his departure he seemed more cheerful. He bade everybody in the house a fond good bye, and as he was about to say a last farewell to all he kissed a little baby girl with whom he had often toyed, and running back he kissed the baby and in a moment was on his way, only turning to wave adieu to those who watched him until he passed out of sight. The name of the baby was Annie Leach and she is now a member of the Calvary Baptist church.

"Everybody at the boarding house loved young Ladd, and all were deeply grieved on hearing of his fall just three days after he left Lowell."

As to the manner of his death Mr. Gardner says the report at the time was that when the Baltimore mob closed in upon the detached captives, a big husky fellow tackled Ladd and tried to take his gun away from him. In the tussle Ladd's gun was discharged, the bullet severing the femoral artery and causing him to bleed to death. The companies held out too long without firing in compliance with the order not to shoot until attacked by firearms.

REBEL CHIEF

Identified as Oscar Wheelock, a Boston Absconder

BOSTON, April 22.—Through photographs taken on the Mexican border, Oscar Creighton, the daring Mexican rebel leader, recently killed, was yesterday identified as Oscar M. Wheelock, the absconder and auditor of the Massachusetts Bonding & Insurance company of Boston.

As Captain Creighton, soldier of fortune, Wheelock during the past three months gained widespread fame on the Mexican border as a dare-devil rebel leader. His forte was the dynamiting of railroads and bridges, and he was marked as an extremely bold and dangerous man by the United States troops guarding the border. In a foot-hold attack against the federals he was shot down.

LEAGUE SEASON

Will Open at Spalding Park on Monday Afternoon

Parade and Band Concert Prior to Game—Mayor Meehan Will Pitch First Ball—Team Looks Good at Start

The New England league season will open on Monday and Lowell will play its first game at home with Worcester as the opposing team.

The opening exercises will start with a parade of the principal streets at 12:30 o'clock by the players of both teams headed by the Lowell Cadet band. The latter will give a brief program in Merrimack square after which cars will be taken for Spalding park. At the park at 3 o'clock, His Honor Mayor Meehan, will throw the first ball and the game will then be on.

Lowell will present a much stronger team than at the opening of last season, and will have a first division proposition for the season. Out of the unusually large number of recruits tried out, Manager Gray has selected a promising looking aggregation. One cannot judge the strength of the local team by the exhibition games as the management gave all the recruits a chance to show what they could do, regardless of what the results might be. In many cases since the boys started playing, the home team had the game well in hand but lost it by putting in a green player toward the close, the idea being to give everyone a chance, and the survival of the fittest.

To begin with, Lowell has an outfield that can't be beat in the league. In Magee, Barrows and Fluharty. In the infield, Moulton has shown the necessary goods at second base, while Gates has done likewise at third. There is Jake Bouttes. The management wants him to pitch this season but Jake wants to play third again. At first base there are two candidates who will be held for a time, Wright who comes from Panama, was brought here on the recommendation of Magee and Fluharty who have played with him. These men would not foist any gold brick on the management and hence Wright, while he has not been connecting with the ball is still held. Coming directly here from Panama he has not become acclimated as yet. He is a graceful fielder. John Dugan is a heavy hitting candidate.

Behind the bat there are Harry Huston and Spring aaway, whose ability is well known. A young catcher named O'Connor from Attleboro blew in yesterday and will be tried out. He is said to be one fine catcher.

In the pitching department there are Wolfgang, Duval, Yount and Hadley for a starter. Hadley is a new recruit who has made a favorable impression every time he has gone on the staff and he looks awfully good to the critics.

DIAMOND NOTES

All up for the opening of the league season Monday with Worcester as the attraction, band concert, Mayor Meehan to pitch the first ball and a fine time generally. Bring your overcoat.

"Don't Rabbit!" came a voice from the players' bench as Jimmie Magee scooped in a fly, and we knew that Harry Huston had struck town.

Pitcher Yount, just as fat as ever, is on hand. Young came all the way from the south and found quite a change in the climate.

The can was applied last night to the following: Connolly, Murray, catchers; Still, Stevens and Munroe, pitchers; Rossman, outfielder; Wildes, Orent and Peterson, infielders; and Evans, third base.

Wright and Dugan are still held as first base candidates. Wright is highly recommended by Magee and Fluharty as yet has not connected at the bat while Dugan has, though Wright seems to be a more graceful fielder.

Gates looks good at third base and likewise Moulton at second.

Steve Flanagan of Brockton has purchased Pitcher Buzick from the Boston Americans and Catcher Woodleigh from Hartford of the Connecticut league. Buzick pitched for Lynn a short time last season.

"We must be pretty close to the North Pole," remarked Harry Huston yesterday as he kicked himself to keep from freezing. He had just come from New Mexico where the flowers are in bloom and swimming is good.

GREEN PITCHERS

Lost Yesterday's Game at Spalding Park

Troy handed it to Lowell to the tune of 13 to 7 at Spalding park yesterday, rookie pitchers being responsible for the defeat. For instance Percy Still, a big husky proposition, was tried out toward the end of the game and they got five passes and a home run off him in one little inning. Did the management? Sure. Immediately after the game, and Percy took a late train for "home" a little town with a name like a sneeze in New York state. But Lowell's defeat doesn't mean that the team is no good, for Manager Gray

CELEBRATION OF PUBLICATION OF THE ENGLISH BIBLE

NEW YORK, April 22.—Celebrations will be held throughout the civilized world commemorating the three hundredth anniversary of the issuance of the King James version of the English Bible. Since the year 1611 the revised Bible as approved by King James has been the book authorized to be circulated by the leading religious authorities. In the United States meetings have been announced to be held in various cities for the observance of the anniversary. King George V. of England and President Taft have written letters of congratulation to be read at the meeting in New York the night of April 25 at Carnegie hall. Bishop David H. Greer is to be the presiding officer of this assemblage. Governor Woodrow Wilson of New Jersey will speak at the commemorative meeting to be held in Denver, May 7 in the Auditorium. Governor Shafroth of Colorado will also deliver an address. Throughout Great Britain meetings will be held and will be addressed by government and church dignitaries. Ambassador Bryce of Great Britain will deliver a lecture in New York on the influence the Bible has had on the world's progress.

AD WOLGAST AND "ONE ROUND" HOGAN AS THEY WILL APPEAR IN RING

NEW YORK, April 22.—Ad Wolgast, the champion lightweight, and "One Round" Hogan are in line for their ten round engagement at the Madison A. C. here April 28. The battle promises to be one of the classics held in this section in some time, not excepting the recent McFarland-Murphy go. For the past two weeks Hogan has been training as he never trained before, because his fight with the champion may be the turning point in his career. Hogan has positively declared that if he is beaten by Wolgast he will never put on a boxing glove again. If he succeeds in decisively beating the champion the title will be his. So that whichever way the fight turns out it means much to Hogan. The Frisco boy says he will try hard to drop the lightweight champion for the count in the first two or three rounds. Wolgast says he is in better shape now than ever before and expects to add another knockout to his belt.

Mayor Fitz Threw First Ball Over

BOSTON, April 22.—Before state and city officials, Gov. Foss occupying a box and Mayor Fitzgerald throwing out the first ball, Boston won the first home game of the season yesterday by defeating Philadelphia, 13 to 1. Credit went to the whole team, but the home team before play began there was the customary parade to centerfield and a flag raising. The day was extremely chilly. The score:

TOMMY BERGIN

Was Not So Clever as Kid Mercier

LEWISTON, Me., April 22.—Kid Mercier of Lawrence, Mass., and Tommy Bergin of Lewiston fought two six-round bouts before a large crowd in city hall last night. The men were in fine condition. Mercier was the cleverer and averaged to land about two blows to Bergin's one and was entitled to the decision had one been given. The match was about even up to the fourth round, when Mercier administered severe punishment to the Lewiston fighter. The fifth and sixth rounds were Mercier's and Tommy was groggy when the going soured.

In the second half of the Bergin fight was kept on the defensive, although he landed some telling blows toward the end of the fifth round. There was considerable clinching.

For the semi-final offering, Mike Cunningham and Morris McCormick, both of Lewiston, fought two six-round bouts. Mike had a shade better of the match.

DROPS BURKE TWICE

NEW YORK, April 22.—Tom McMahon gave Sailor Burke a sound wallop in a 10-round bout at the Twentieth Century Athletic club at the St. Nicholas rink last night. McMahon dropped Burke twice to the floor. It was a slugging affair.

Of the rounds except the sixth and ninth McMahon had the better of the argument.

VICTOR L. BERGER REAL ESTATE

Socialist Says Constitution is Obsolete Transactions Recorded During the Week

WASHINGTON, April 22.—Representative Victor L. Berger, the only socialist in the house, who is displeased with the constitution of the United States, has introduced a resolution which he hopes will pave the way toward amending it. The constitution, Mr. Berger said, is an antiquated and obsolete instrument and is not adapted to the needs of present day government. His resolution provides that congress shall have the power of calling constitutional conventions to amend or revise the constitution on occasion arises. "Our constitution," said Mr. Berger, who declared that his first resolution is only the beginning of his efforts to improve the state of the nation, "is antiquated, obsolete and really a hindrance to any reasonable growth in our public life, and therefore it should be changed. Our present constitution was framed at a time when this nation was born and when the country had about 3,000,000 inhabitants. Since that time, tremendous economic changes have taken place. Steam and electricity have been utilized, wonderful inventions have been made, and the entire economic structure has been changed. And yet we are still living under a constitution made for hunters and farmers. My amendment proposes a method to bring about a constitution in accord with the social life of today."

MINOR LEAGUE

Electric Light Five Took Two Points

The Lowell Electric Light team took two points and the total from the El Toros in a game in the Minor League series last night. The losing team put up a fairly good battle during the first and second strings, but went to pieces in the third. Atkinson's triple of 308 was high.

The Hustlers trounced the Jolly Five of the East Merrimack league in a game last night, but lost the first string by the narrow margin of one run. McDougal was high man and his string of 121 was the feature of the game.

ANNUAL PARTY THE FRATERNITIES

MAJOR JACQUES

Of Officers of Lowell High School Girls' Battalions

Associate hall was the scene of a delightful social last night, the occasion being the 10th annual party of the officers of the Lowell High School Girls' battalions. The interior of the hall was decorated in an artistic manner with hanging and potted plants. There was a large attendance, the young people predominating and many of the former pupils of the school together with college students were present.

White and green were predominating colors in the decorations, while the orchestra which furnished music for dancing was hidden behind potted plants and greenery.

One of the features of the evening was the grand march in which fifty couples participated and which was led by Mr. William Sullivan and Major Irene Hogan, while following them were: Mr. Harry Brown and Major Mary Jacques; Mr. Herbert Blaney and Captain Charles Greene; Mr. William Liddell and Captain Pauline Woodworth; Mr. Rexell Teeson and Captain Margaret Woodworth; and Mr. Waterhouse and Captain Dorothy Bramhall. Then came captains and lieutenants and sergeants and other non-coms, with their escorts.

The young lady officers and members of the battalions were attired in dresses of white and pink instead of the regulation uniform with shining buttons and gold braid.

During the evening the battalions went through the wand and dumb bell drills. The first battalion, commanded by Major Irene Hogan, drilled with Legion clubs, while the second battalion, commanded by Major Mary Jacques, gave a delightful wand drill. Miss Leah DeMerritt, the physical instructor of the school had general supervision of the drilling.

The order of dances was entered upon about 9 o'clock and continued, with intermission until 1 o'clock this morning.

The matrons of the party were:

FRED E. JONES, Regent

Highland Council, Royal Arcanum, Has an Interesting History

In the spring of 1836 the late Jacob Murphy, then a member of Lowell Council No. 8, Royal Arcanum, conceived the idea of forming another council in Lowell and having obtained a dispensation from the Grand council he immediately commenced to solicit names for the charter list. A sufficient number was soon obtained and on the 15th of May in that year, Highland Council No. 970, Royal Arcanum, was instituted in Highland hall, Branch street with the following 26 charter members:

Jacob Murphy, Harry King Boardman, Benjamin F. Hale, George H. Prescott, Arthur W. Early, Alfred L. Smith, Willis G. Eaton, Charles A. Grant, Charles E. Frost, Horace P. Grosvenor, Charles E. Park, Fred C. Rand, Charles H. Cutter, Alfred E. Nichols, George E. Bicknell, Charles E. Graves, John E. Logan, Henry A. Weber, Julian W. Coburn, Herbert V. Hilbreth, John T. Farrell, E. P. Lovejoy, William A. Harris, John B. Carmichael, John Oliver and Clarence W. Whidden.

The first board of officers was: Regent, Harry K. Boardman; vice regent, B. F. Hale; orator, G. H. Prescott; past regent, Jacob Murphy; secretary, A. W. Early; collector, A. L. Smith; treasurer, W. D. Eaton; chaplain, C. A. Grant; guide, C. E. Frost; warden, H. P. Grosvenor; sentry, C. E. Park; trustees, F. C. Rand, C. H. Cutter and A. E. Nichols.

The instituting officer was Willis P. Burbank, grand regent of Massachusetts, and at that time a resident of Lowell. A history of Highland Council cannot be written without making it largely a history of the last thirteen years of Mr. Murphy's life. His interest did not cease with the institution of the council. With indomitable energy he and his fellow members continued to increase the membership until at the first anniversary in May, 1837, there were one hundred names upon the roll book of the council. In Arcanum circles, Mr. Murphy was always called "The Father of Highland Council," and the name was aptly chosen. The council was his ideal and outside of his domestic life, no work was too arduous, no sacrifice too great, if the welfare of the council demanded it. He was present at every meeting and fought with voice and vote for what he con-growth was maintained with no concerted action to increase the membership. In 1861, the Grand council projected that the councils of Lowell which then numbered five, should hold a "Class Initiation" each council to present as many candidates as possible. The suggestion met with favor and a joint committee was immediately formed.

Huntington hall was secured and the date set for Nov. 13th. Friendly rivalry immediately sprang up between the councils and Highland council entered into the work with a determination to lead. When the eventful day arrived it was found that the combined efforts of the different councils had brought together a class of 118 candidates. Of this number Highland council alone presented 48, the largest number presented by any other council being 27. Notwithstanding the great amount of work necessary to achieve this great success, continued efforts added 9 more names during December and January. In February, 1902, the council planned another class initiation of its own to take place on March 27th. In Odd Fellows Temple on which date 24 more names were added to the roll, making a total of 81 new members admitted to Highland council within a period of five months. The growth of the council continued month by month. Interpersed with the "classes," one held in October of the same year added 12 members, one in March, 1905, 20 members and one in May of the same year 9 members. In June 1905, occurred the memorable "change in the rates" by the supreme council, when the assessments which previous to that time had been abnormally low, were rearranged to conform to a mortality table embracing a study of more than four hundred thousand lives, thus placing the order upon an absolutely permanent basis. This radical change, however, occurring as it did so soon after the collapse of so many of the so-called "bureau orders" naturally alarmed many of the members, especially the new ones who had been admitted in the recent class initiations, and they "made haste quickly" to get out thinking that it was a forerunner of the end, and the council lost many of the members by suspension, but time has revealed the wisdom of the change and the Arcanum of today offers more than ever before to its members, and commands itself most strongly to those in search of the cheapest protection for their homes consistent with absolute safety and permanence.

Since its organization Highland Council has had upon its roll the names of 692 members. Its greatest membership at any one time, which was in the early part of 1905, was 107. Its present membership is 345 of due members, the twenty-four past regents of the council are living and still connected with the council. One of these, Alonzo G. Walsh, has been honored with the highest office in the state having served as grand regent and is at present a member of the supreme council. Since 1901 the council has maintained a de- scribe staff, which has been second to none in the state, and has been called upon to perform the degree work in many other councils not only in this city but elsewhere. The staff is in charge of Past Regent Arthur H. Dana, who is its regent; the other members of the staff are Fred Johnston, Fred E. Jones, J. E. Stuart, P. R. Kinney, W. J. Carey, J. W. McKee, C. E. Stuart, Fred Hall and L. M. Fuller. Much enthusiasm prevails in the council at the present time. This is due largely to the energy of its present regent, Fred E. Jones. Twenty new members have been admitted thus far this year under his administration, and a class initiation held April 13th by which fifteen new members were taken into the council owes its success largely to his efforts and was the largest class admitted to any council in this locality since 1905. The other officers of the council are: Vice regent, George B. Hutchins; orator, W. J. Carey; past regent, Arthur H. Dana; secretary, W. D. Hilt; collector, A. M. Hunt; treasurer, C. F. Butterfield; chaplain, Fred Hall; guide, J. W. McKee; warden, L. M. Fuller, and sentry, Fred Rand; representatives to Grand council, A. H. Dana, E. E. Maynard; alternate, Alonzo G. Walsh; Felix Langevin; auditing committee, C. E. Stuart, Charles W. Brown; financial committee, A. H. Dana, George E. Hutchins, William J. Carey; entertainment committee, William J. Carey, Loren M. Fuller, Fred Johnston, Earl Kinney, John Orrill, Charles Stewart, James Stewart, Charles Taylor.

Highland Council, since its organization has collected from its members and paid over to the widows and orphans benefit fund of the supreme council the sum of $172,273.52. Forty-seven of its members have died and to their beneficiaries the supreme council has paid out of the W. and O. B. fund the sum of $117,000. The amount paid by the deceased members to the W. and O. B. fund was $2,653.28, thus showing that the sum of $104,346.74 has been paid to the beneficiaries in excess of the amount into the W. and O. B. fund by the deceased members. The amount paid into the W. and O. B. fund by the council in excess of the amount received in settlement of death claims has been $55,279.52. The largest sum paid by one member to the W. and O. B. fund was by Bro. L. A. Worcester who died May 8th, 1903, and paid the sum of $511.15. His beneficiary received the sum of $3000. Bro. Wm. J. Mortha, who died Dec. 18, 1903 paid the smallest sum $4.68. His beneficiary received $1000.

These figures deal entirely with the monthly assessments which are paid directly into the W. and O. B. fund. The quarterly dues paid by the members are used to promote social events which are a distinctive feature of Highland Council. No other council of all kinds and everything is free to members of any council. Highland Council pays the dues and assessments of its members when sick for a period of four months and being connected as it is with the R. A. hospital association four weeks free treatment in any hospital is also secured to the member when necessary.

Highland Council is financially strong and in point of membership ranks seventh among the 155 councils of Massachusetts. On May 15th, next it will celebrate by a dance and whilst party the anniversary which marks the close of a quarter century of active and earnest work which extends the hand of brotherhood to a fellow-man and carries comfort and consolation as far as possible into the home of the widow and the orphan.

The past regents of the council are: Jacob Murphy elected at organization; B. K. Boardman, C. W. Whidden, B. F. Hale, A. W. Early, W. A. Harris, A. G. Walsh, Alonzo G. Walsh, J. C. Coram, W. Dana Hill, Edwin McKee, E. E. Maynard, J. F. Parker, G. A. Barnes, Frank Dodge, E. G. Cuykendall, James W. Jackson, C. E. Scilling, W. E. Smith, F. M. Robbitt, E. E. Maynard, F. D. Langevin, L. A. Jolley, M. H. Sawyer, A. H. Dixie and A. H. Dana.

The present secretary, Mr. W. Dana Hilt has been in office for the past 12 years, while the collector, Mr. A. M. Hunt, has held that position for 15 years. Mr. Frank Butterfield also holds a record as treasurer, for he has been in office for six years.

TO REDUCE THE SUGAR TARIFF

There is a movement on foot to reduce the tariff on sugar. It is estimated that about two cents per pound of the present price of sugar is tariff. If that were knocked off the price of sugar would be reasonable, but the trust would soon find some other pretext for increasing the price.

THE INCOME TAX AMENDMENT

The Massachusetts house is solidly for the income tax amendment. The efforts of Speaker Walker had no effect in preventing the affirmative vote. It is time Massachusetts, that elected a democratic and reciprocity governor, should take her place among the more progressive states that have declared in favor of the income tax amendment.

TO ADMIT ARIZONA

It is quite likely that Arizona will be admitted to the union regardless of the constitution which she has adopted and from which she will not recede. The chief objection to it in the eyes of most members of congress is, that it would apply the recall to the judiciary. Oregon has the same provision already in operation and Arizona is not going to take a back seat in the line of radical innovations.

HATTIE LEBLANC AGAIN

Lawyer Johnson of Waltham is reported to be on his way to see Hattie LeBlanc for the purpose of advising her in regard to the proceedings in the Glover will case. It is alleged that certain other lawyers feel that Hattie has information that would be of great importance to them, and Mr. Johnson doubtless wishes to have Hattie properly advised as to how far she should go in this direction.

TO REGULATE AIRSHIPS

The newspapers are poking fun at Governor Foss over his message suggesting laws to govern the use of aeroplanes. Some think his Excellency premature in this matter, but he is nothing of the sort. The prosecution of aviators in Europe for flying over certain forts indicates the wisdom of the governor's suggestion. Besides there are certain rules to be observed for the protection of life and property, and it is time to have them definitely stated.

RHODE ISLAND'S AMENDMENT

Next fall the state of Rhode Island will probably vote upon a constitutional amendment to abolish the property qualification for voting. Little Rhode is the last state in the Union that has any such anachronism on its statute books. It cannot rid itself of the disgrace any too soon. There is a vigorous element of the younger voters in both parties in favor of the reform, and it is bound to come in the near future, although a resolution in its favor has recently been sidetracked in the house. Louisiana has a property qualification for voters, but it is made an alternative for the ability to read and write. That is the nearest approach to the Rhode Island arrangement existing in the country today.

AFTER THE CONSUMER AGAIN

The state of Pennsylvania, that hotbed of graft, is preparing a scheme to put a higher tax on coal. Some few years ago there was a coal strike which is still well remembered. The strike was settled with the understanding that what the operators had to pay in increased wages they would add to the price of coal. They laid a heavy burden upon the consumer, and it has remained there ever since. Now the schemers at Harrisburg think they can make the consumers of the country pay still more for coal. When will this thing of levying upon the consumer come to an end? How is the consumer to stand all the raids that are directed at his pocket-book? It is time the consumer did something to stop these raids. He has the power but does not seem to know how to use it. He will have an opportunity in 1912.

DEMAND FOR MILL BOSSES AND SECOND HANDS

Some local mill agents complain of a difficulty in finding mill bosses and second hands. Somehow the present system does not qualify a man for a position higher than that which he holds. The aim is not to give the operatives a chance to rise, but to have them do the best work possible in the positions they hold. It was supposed that the Textile school would give the mill hands a chance to fit themselves for the position of boss and second hand, but yet the difficulty of getting the right kind of men for these positions is as great as ever.

In the meantime, however, the Textile school is turning out young men fitted to be mill agents, mill engineers and master mechanics, and these are going for the most part out of Lowell to fill positions in their own towns or elsewhere, while we support the Textile school and get what appears to be a wholly inadequate return in the number of our Lowell men helped to go higher.

Why would it not be a good idea for the Textile school to devote part of its attention to this particular problem of fitting experienced mill operatives for the positions of boss or second hand? Is it not strange that while we are supporting a very fine Textile school, it does not help the average mill worker to any great extent? Can the Textile school remedy this state of affairs? Undoubtedly it can by adopting a system of instruction that will come within the reach of the practical workers who, while they know their special lines of business, have but little education by which to enable them to explain the process. There is something wrong in the plane upon which the Textile school work is cast as indicated by the fact that neither the Lowell mill operatives nor the Lowell mills derive anything like the benefit they should derive from the Textile school as at present conducted. Some of the mills perhaps gain more from it than others and all gain more than do the operatives; but on the whole it must be said that the school exerts its best and highest efforts for the whole United States and not only that but for Japan, China and South America.

SEEN AND HEARD

THE WORLD MAKERS

We are the music makers. And we are the dreamers of dreams. Wandering by lone sea breakers, And sitting by desolate streams— World losers and world forsakers. On whom the pale moon gleams; Yet we are the movers and shakers Of the world forever, it seems.

With wonderful deathless ditties We build up the world's great cities, And out of a fabulous story We fashion an empire's glory; One man with a dream, at pleasure, Shall go forth and conquer a crown; And three with a new song's measure Can trample a kingdom down.

We in the ages lying In the buried past of the earth, Built Nineveh with our sighing; And drew itself in our mirth; To the old of the new world's worth; For each age is a dream that is dying, Or one that is coming to birth. —Arthur O'Shaughnessy.

In a special cabin of the United Fruit steamship Zepher, arriving last evening from Colon and the West Indies, were three Siamese cats, including a big male of the sterner sex that came pretty near losing the number of his mess on the way up. Each cat was marked "Miss Anne Cathcart, Cal-tory, Grade 1." The cats are of a rare breed and look a bit like tigers. They are of a light gray color with black ears, tail, nose and feet tipped with black. Their glistening eyes give them a wild look, but they are really very tame and affectionate, although highly nervous.

Only cats belong to the wife of the Peruvian minister to Panama, Federico A. Pezet, who had intended to come to Lowell with his wife and two children, but who became suddenly ill and was compelled to give up the trip. Senior Pezet wrote a letter to Col. Pezet asking him to look after the cats in case the senior representative was not at the pier to take them as they were very rare and precious to Senora Pezet. Purser Squire, who was responsible for the animals, got into a sweat just after the ship left Kingston, Jamaica, when he found that the big Tom had vanished from his cage (a silk lined and cushioned box big enough for a baby), and he started the crew searching for the cat. He decided that it was likely that the cat had not sailed with the ship, and sent a wireless to Mr. Haggart, the line's agent here, to find Tom. Mr. Haggart declared by wireless that there was no Siamese cat in Kingston. On Tuesday after two days search Tom was found hidden in a lot of linen in the laundry and seemed to be glad to get back to his cage.

"THINKING OF YOU" Remembering you, I picked the four-leaf clover I chanced to find upon my homeward way. And to myself I softly whispered ever, "For this is luck; I'll see you dear, today."

One short-stemmed early violet I found, That smiled at me from out a sheltered place; I knelt beside the springy ground And kissed it, for it had your modest grace.

The first pale pink of dawn in eastern skies Is like your cheeks when with the wild rose flushed; And in the clear brown pools I see your eyes— Now dark with shadow, now with sunshine touched.

The sudden flash of gayly colored wings, The hint of spring that trembles in the air, And all the promise of unfolding things Remind me of your sweetness everywhere. —Cincinnati Times-Star.

And the girl said, "forget it."

STATE MACHINE

Cannot Line Up Republicans for Langtry

BOSTON, April 22.—The republican state organization, better known as the state machine, is having some trouble lining up the republicans of the house for its candidate for secretary of state, Representative Albert P. Langtry of Springfield.

Both the democrats and the republicans are going to caucus on candidates next Tuesday morning at 10 o'clock. Yesterday the legislature voted to have the next convention for the election of a successor to Col. William M. Olin, late secretary of state, next Wednesday afternoon at 3 o'clock.

The ballot will be a secret one and the democrats have high hopes of being able to vote on a candidate and by casting the vote for the democratic strength of 126 votes for him, hand the job. The republicans are afraid that their political enemies will succeed and about 20 of them not committed either to Representative Langtry or Representative Russell A. Wood of Cambridge, a secret conference yesterday lasting for more than an hour.

At the conclusion of the conference the following statement was given out: "After the session this afternoon about 20 republican members of the house met in room 243 to discuss the question of a candidate for secretary of the commonwealth. Representative George H. Ellis of Newton was chairman. After some talk it was voted to appoint a committee to bring in the names of one or more candidates for the office and to report at an adjourned meeting of this conference to be held at 12 o'clock on Wednesday. Further action will be determined. This committee is made up of Nathan A. Tufts of Waltham, Courtenay Crocker of Ward 11, Robert N. Turner of Waltham, George H. Ellis of Newton, Roger Wolcott of Milton.

The next morning on that republican side is taken to mean that Langtry's candidacy is not altogether satisfactory to these members. In addition to these there are a number of others who are claimed by Representative Wood, but still Langtry and his friends say that they are sure he will receive the caucus nomination Wednesday.

Unless the republicans go into the house united, it would seem as if the democrats had an excellent chance of landing their man. On the democratic side there is no change in the situation. The names of Representatives McCarthy of Marblehead and Pope of Leominster, and of Frank J. Berry of Boston, are still being talked of, with Donahue in the lead.

TO BE HELD AT ST. JOHN'S PREPARATORY COLLEGE

Active preparations are in progress at St. John's Preparatory college, Danvers, for the second field day which is to be held on Banker Hill day, June 17th. Two meetings have already been held at the first of which the chief officers were appointed. Mr. D. T. Bresnahan of Andover, was reappointed permanent chairman.

At the second meeting, committees were selected from the nearby cities and towns to represent their respective localities, and the following heads of the committees were chosen: Mrs. Jane Murphy, Salem; Mrs. M. J. Flynn, Danvers; Mrs. Curran, Beverly; Mrs. Shanahan, Peabody; Miss Mary Ryan, Marblehead; Miss Collins, South Lawrence; Mrs. McManus, Lynn.

A third meeting has been called for Sunday afternoon, April 23d, at which it is expected that all remote preparations for the event will be completed. It is the aim of those in charge to have this field day surpass that of two years ago at which it is estimated 6000 persons were in attendance, and with this end in view every effort is being made to make the affair as attractive as possible. In addition to the field and track events in which most of the high schools and athletic associations of Essex county will be represented, there will be a baseball game between the school's first team and a team representing the Father Mathew T. A. society of Lynn.

OF INTEREST TO MASONS

Rev. John Whitehead, A. M., Th. B. of Boston will give a lecture in Middlesex hall, 20 Palmer street, Sunday evening at 7.30 o'clock on the symbolism of the temple of Christ's body and the parallelism between Him, the temple, the church, and the church as the body of Christ. The symbolic character of the sacred scriptures is shown and applied to the incarnation, the works and the resurrection of Christ. The lecture will be illustrated by charts, and will be open for questions at the close. Swedenborg's doctrine of correspondence will be used to show that the Bible has a spiritual meaning within the literal story. The public is cordially invited. Seats free.

THE OPERA HOUSE

The last two performances of Cleveland Moffatt's sensational play of business and tenement life, "The White Sister," will be given at the Opera House today, afternoon and evening. This is a play that held the boards for over six months at the Savoy theatre, New York city and attracted wide attention. Messrs. Thompson & Flynn's clever players are giving a fine performance of this play and one well worth seeing.—Adv.

"THE WHITE SISTER"

Next week's bill at the Opera House commencing Monday night, will be "The White Sister," in which Miss Viola Allen, is now appearing as Viola Allen, is now appearing as Viola Allen, which she was seen here last spring. "The White Sister" is the work of P. Marion Crawford, the famous novelist who was selected as the official biographer of the late Pope Leo. In it, Mr. Crawford tells a story of a girl who is the stage drama of love and duty, in which the ending is at no time in plain view, but all the time the auditor is hoping the end will come about just as it really does in the final act.

Miss Viola Allen, who is now appearing in "The White Sister," is meeting with great success everywhere and her managers, Messrs. Liebler & Co., have received the following telegram from Joseph M. Hanley, representing the Catholic citizens of Charleston, S. C.: "The Catholics of Charleston feel grateful to Miss Viola Allen and her magnificent company. She could have played the theatre for a week and not remained. We wish her Godspeed and will look for her return next season in 'The White Sister.'"

In presenting this play at the Opera House next week, it will be one of the first times that a stock company has been allowed to present a play that was still in use by a prominent star.

"MADAME SHERRY"

Local playgoers are fortunate not to be compelled to wait a year or longer before they are given a chance to enjoy "Madame Sherry." Usually it requires two seasons for a success of such proportions as this unique French vaudeville to reach here from New York, but in the case of this phenomenal Woods, Frazee and Lederer musical success, the local public will have an opportunity to see it Thursday, April 27th, just as it is now being presented to overflowing audiences at the New Amsterdam theatre, New York. One of the two New York companies which have been interchanging performances in New York, left that city a few days ago and will appear in a few of the principal cities as one of the special treats of the year. "Madame Sherry" is without a doubt the most talked-of musical comedy of a generation, and is sure to prove as great here as it was in Paris, Berlin, London, Chicago and New York. Seats go on sale Monday morning.—Adv.

"THREE TWINS"

Theatregoers of this city will be delighted to learn that Jos. M. Gaites' "Three Twins" with Clifton Crawford and the original New York cast, and production will come to the Opera House, Saturday matinee and night, April 29th. This amusing and clean musical comedy contains real humor and furnishes a great diversity of entertainment. The wit is as brilliant as the stage settings, costumes and effects. Clifton Crawford, the bright particular star of an exceptionally clever cast is excruciatingly funny at all times; Jos. Allen and Hugh Fay are also most provoking. Mayne Gehrue has a great hit in the unique "Yama-Yama" song. Others in the cast are Della Niven, Daisy Leon, Elsie Myrnes, George Hart, Russell Tenenon, Ralph Locke. The chorus is made up of pretty girls who sing, dance and work with well trained precision.—Adv.

HATHAWAY THEATRE

A good laugh is better than a bottle of medicine for many a spring ailment and good laughs by the score may be had at the Hathaway theatre next week when the Donald Meek stock company with Severn DeWayn will present Louis Mann's funniest of comedies, "All On Account of Eliza," which has made countless hundreds roar with laughter. It is a laugh-a-minute production, who's chief aim is to cause merriment and written as it was by a most eminent actor-playwright, the object has been attained. Mr. Mann in writing the play created a part for himself that would best bring out his drill humor, the character being that of a crusty old German who runs his town and everyone in it except his own housekeeper who succeeds in bossing him. This part will be presented next week by Donald Meek who excels in comedy roles and whose versatility and ability to delineate character parts is well known to Lowell theatre-goers. Mr. Meek has previously played the part at the Castle Square theatre where he scored a tremendous hit. The play deals with the experiences of a pretty little school teacher who gets a position in a small town and who in a short time has all the men of the town at her feet to the evident disgust of the women who proceed to make things interesting for her. Even the old German succumbs to her charm and confides in his son who is at the top of the list of the school teacher's admirers. By golly, she's a nice gal! As may be expected from the nature of the play it is extremely funny and without any coarse or horseplay features, being replete with genuine humor. Laugh follows laugh from curtain to curtain. Miss Estelle, Miss Nelderauer, Miss Allen and Mr. DeWayn, Mr. Cairns, and in fact every member of the company will be found in a congenial part, each contributing an essential part to the genuine merriment. Seats are now on sale for next week's performances.—Adv.

ACADEMY OF MUSIC

An extra fine vaudeville and picture program is presented at the Academy today. The Katzena Troupe of Japanese acrobats and jugglers are very clever. The Terry Twins are surprisingly like each other and have a monolog offering and funny boxing finish and Frederick Wright & Co., in a dramatic playlet, "The Master of Men." A sacred concert will be given on Sunday with special program. The vaudeville features for Monday include McNamee, clay model, The Stanton singers and talkers and Steel Sisters and Escorts, singing, dancing and costume changing.—Adv.

THEATRE VOYONS

Today's feature at the Theatre Voyons is a magnificently staged and finely acted story of mother love entitled "Madame Rex," the sacrifice of a woman of the world who puts away her life's happiness for that of her only daughter is well told and the whole subject is strong from beginning to end. Tomorrow the usual excellent Sunday concert will be given and included in the program will be found several pictures of the very highest class. On Monday a bill of unusual excellence will be offered the feature being a most thrilling dramatic subject "The Mother."—Adv.

COLONIAL THEATRE

The vaudeville includes Lorry & Duell who present the laughing playlet, "Dad's Daughter Nell"; Felix Thibault, singing comedian; George Whelan, a baton juggler without an equal. The new illuminated motion picture making a big hit. The hundred seats at $5, 1000 at 10c. Sacred concert Sunday.—Adv.

Handsome Veils for Wearers of Harem Skirts

the car is in motion. One edge of the veil is shirred for a short space over elastic or ribbon, which fits around the neck like a collar and fastens with a snap button at the back. The wide veil is tossed over the hat, with the ends hanging down the back, and the shirred portion is fastened snugly around the throat over the trailing folds, making a perfect protection for hat, hair and face.

Oculists may complain as they like of the damage which the large dots are likely to inflict on the sight. Women will continue to wear dotted veils. Indeed, their popularity seems to grow from day to day. If one may judge by the increased size of the spots. The mesh of some of these veils is so fine that the effect of the dots at the distance is most remarkable. It gives the face the appearance of being tattooed. Instead of being arranged in diagonals the mesh is blocked or striped. The finer meshes seem to be preferred, and this is bad for slender pocketbooks, as the two or three appearances of such fragile affairs generally end their usefulness. Perhaps, after all, this is as it should be, for beauty specialists so warn us against the microbes that lodge in the veil that we might be led to think it a veritable disease trap. It is quite likely that the net does gather in a great deal of dust from the air. It would be well if a veil could be rinsed out in benzine or gasoline after two or three wearings. Some fastidious women cast aside a veil after one wearing.

The automobile craze has brought in one particular convenience in the motor veil, which is cut on such ample lines and so closely woven that it forms a real protection in cold or windy weather. The size of the veils permits of their being used as scarfs, some of the new ones being forty inches wide by two and three-quarter yards long.

Economists may make their veils at home if they choose. For a chiffon veil in any of the new spring colors purchase the required length of the stuff, but allow it three inches extra width. Lay the chiffon on tissue paper and baste it down in order to give it the necessary firmness for working. Then run a hem an inch deep below and a half inch hem at the top. Stitch down on the machine. The lower hem, which is a double one, may be embroidered in some simple pattern, and a ribbon may be threaded through the top to draw the veil snugly around the hat.

Prattly veils may be made of plain tulle decorated with narrow lace insertion. Tuck the insertion about an inch above the bottom or put it on in fancy designs. When the lace has been attached in place cut away the net behind it, whip the edges of the net to the edges of the lace, then put a hem at the top for the ribbon, and you have a handsome and convenient veil.

A chiffon veil may be embellished along the wide lower hem with French knots, the knots being to keep the hem in place and being about half an inch apart. Then a plain scallop in satin stitch may finish the edge.

CATHERINE TALBOT.

NEVER has there been a time when veils were so little needed to keep the hair in order, for the hats settle far down over head and hair, and it is quite possible to slip one's hat on over a very incomplete coiffure and set forth looking irreproachably trim and smart. Therefore veils in order to hold their own have to make an appeal through their ornamental and not their utilitarian characteristics, and never have veils been more beautiful or more becoming than now. Even with the small, close fitting toques, which do not really need a veil, many women continue to wear face veils. They know how smart is a carefully adjusted veil with a tailored suit.

This new veil is mostly of the shadow or cobweb patterns, which are very becoming to the complexion, provided the design is not grotesque or conspicuous enough to attract attention from its wearer's prettiness. After all, a veil is simply a medium through which one looks at beauty, and when this medium ceases to be flattering to the face beneath, or, worse still, obtrudes itself ostentatiously, it ceases to be admirable or in good taste.

When draped loosely from the hat brim the cobweb veils are at their prettiest, and just now this is a much smarter method of arranging the veil than drawing it back under the chin in folds. Even the fillet and chenille dotted "face veils" which are sold by the yard are now being draped in this manner from the hat brim, and the folds fall gracefully at the back without being fastened at all save for the single pin which keeps the upper edge of the veil on the hat brim.

Two illustrations show the correct manner of adjusting the veil—one on a large hat and the other on a small, closely fitting toque. With the large hat is used one of the white lace veils, which are particularly becoming and which give a delicate, spirituelle look to the face. The upper edge of this white veil is draped in soft folds over the brim of the hat, and the veil falls evenly all around just over the shoulders.

It is rather a clever trick to arrange one of these lace veils over a small toque so that the top of the veil follows the line of the toque and the lower edge falls straight to the shoulder all around. The veil in the photograph is a beautiful chintilly model with black tracery on a white net ground.

The woman who freckles or tans easily should veil herself well all through

Many Quaint New Furnishing Fabrics

There is nothing on which the true lover of old furniture will bestow more careful attention than the choice of the furnishing fabrics which are to be used with his or her treasures in oak, mahogany or walnut. The most carefully furnished period room may fall short of success by the intrusion of modern looking curtains, and the beauty of some old setting may be impaired by a covering that is out of harmony with its own distinctive character.

Quite admirably are the needs of the fastidious votary of period decoration catered for in the delightful private copies of old printed calicoes, linens and other fabrics supplied this season by the shops. Many of the designs, apart from their decorative value, are of special historic interest—as, for example, the reproduction of a printed linen of the Jacobean period. The groundwork is covered with a close scroll work in black outline upon a natural toned ground, and above this are printed here and there the quaintest architectural and figure subjects.

All these picture motives are in dull reds and greens upon a plain velvety toned ground, the whole making a combination of color and design that seems imperatively to call out for companionship with old oak paneling and furniture. Another fascinating linen, printed entirely in a purplish gray upon cream, after the fashion of an old woodcut, is the reproduction of the Fontanges linen in the Victoria and Albert museum, London, the scenes depicted in the design showing Louis XIV. and Mme. de Fontanges strolling in the gardens at Versailles, with a greyhound in attendance and a pastoral background in which farmyard animals disport themselves and nymphs and shepherds play and sing to the accompaniment of plashing fountains.

A Spitalfields brocade of the late eighteenth century is delightfully revived in an old rose taffeta, with a design of flowering trees and baskets of roses interwoven in mellow cream color, and the Chinoiserie of the Chippendale period are echoed in a printed linen with queer Chinese figures and impossible but none the less delightful flowers and animals.

Light summer window draperies will be a requirement of the near future. First come the curtains of durable net. Just improvement and development have been made in this class of goods during the last few years. The designs, based in a great many instances on fine antique examples of fillet, Venetian and other laces, are noticeably good, and many of the curtains have a style and decorative value that are very striking.

Then follows an attractive section devoted to varied designs in swiss applique, this perennially favorite class of lace curtains, after which we have hemstitched and lace inserted book muslins, simple but remarkably effective curtains of real lace on strong net, novelty real lace curtains enriched with hand embroidery and incrustations of cluny and renaissance lace and Marie Antoinette curtains in graceful French style. Lastly come the vitrages, the bordered nets and the brissoles, a fascinating collection in all the newest patterns.

EMBROIDERED LINEN JUMPER

This jumper is still a part of the fashionable woman's wardrobe. This handsome design is of linen worked in eyelet embroidery.

BLACK AND WHITE HATS. The rage of the moment in millinery is for black and white stripes. It is seen in straw—very smart—with trimmings in plain black straw, black silk, black velvet or black satin. A charming little Napoleon hat is trimmed with white straw braid lightly twisted and sewed on black velvet in regular lines all round the brim. The braid is very narrow. A turban in black and white cymeline has a bunch of pink roses and a black aigret at one side.

DRESS PHILOSOPHY

Why Fashions Have Varied With Political Changes

CONCENTRATION on the matter of dress is necessary nowadays because of the ever changing fashions.

In the eighteenth century—probably owing to the fact that England was incessantly involved in long, costly foreign and colonial wars and was, moreover, actually building the empire as it exists today—the fashions for both men and women changed very little for a hundred years. From the advent of Queen Anne in 1702 until the French revolution brought in the neo-classic costumes of 1802.

Hoops might be large or small, overdresses bunched up or drooping, hair might be closely dressed or swell out into monstrous wigs with nodding plumes and scarfs, but the general design of dress remained identical.

But with the French revolution all was changed. The outward aspect of men and women altered as much as their mental attitudes. The scanty costumes, as well as the austere virtues of the republic of ancient Rome, were "assiduously spied," so that ladies of the directoire, overdoing the part, wore diaphanous classical drapery in the Champs Elysees, and their mankind adopted garments so exigent as to make the devotees of the ancient regime blush.

The neo-classic costume was a political cry, a declaration of the rights of man and incidentally of woman. The stiffness of whalebone and brocade, the tyranny of the monstrous headgear, were to be abolished with the Bastille, crowned heads and an overbearing aristocracy.

For dress and politics have ever been closely allied, and those well meaning Socialists of today who imagine that men and women will ever be content with a kind of eternal woolen blanket fastened with a high art brooch show a plentiful lack of humor as well as a lack of knowledge of human nature.

Perhaps the all pervading idea of socialism accounts for the return to those scanty draperies, severe outlines and heads which look as if they had been treated surgically which we see everywhere around us at evening parties and at the play.

The harem skirt, perhaps the most curious of all the "divided" gowns, is possibly a protest on the part of woman, an effort to show her independence, though why she should have gone behind the oriental purdah for inspiration is one of those mysteries which only creators of fashions can elucidate.

SATIN AFTERNOON FROCK

A TUNIC gown of apricot colored satin is shown here. It follows the popular idea with its gracefully draped tunic skirt and sleeves of beaded net. Heads form an important part in the decoration of the elaborate spring gown appearing in the shape of fringes, beaded ornaments and beaded fabrics. Satins in all their various varieties are also ultra modish. Satin charmeuse is the quality used in the construction of this elegant costume, suitable for smart afternoon functions.

UNDERWEAR FOR NARROW SKIRTS.

Woven silk knickers are to some extent necessary for the best exploitation of the narrow walking skirt, while in the evening the tight fitting nylon petticoat may be worn. In pale blue, for example, trimmed with the finest Irish lace insertion lined with pink satin ribbon, the nylon evening petticoat is a delicious circumstance in the world of undress.

Black nylon petticoats may be commended made with one deep sparse flounce bordered with silver lace insertion threaded with pale blue ribbon tied into a bow with long ends above the left knee with a couple of tiny pink roses thrust through the knot. The advent into luxurious circles is chronicled of garters or suspenders of gold metal elastic buckled with paste. Hosiery soft and mal y pancel

The Fascinating Woman

Many of the most fascinating women, women whose fame has outlived them by some thousands of years, would not have been called beautiful by their nearest friends or dearest enemies, if they had any.

Wherein lay the secret of their power? A fascinating woman gives herself up absolutely and entirely to the people in whose company she happens to be thrown. Her own sorrows and joys are thrust into the background, while she listens attentively to the joys and sorrows of others. A good listener is always appreciated. There are so many people who are willing to talk, but alas, so few who are willing to listen!

She makes a point of finding out the subject of paramount interest to the person whom she is with, and she discusses that subject, or, to be more accurate, lets him discuss it while she listens. If her companion is interested in agriculture she lets him talk agriculture, drinking in every word that falls from his lips with a look of rapt attention even though she be bored to death. "Really?" "How interesting!" and numerous other expressions of a similar nature fall from her lips at the right time and in the right place.

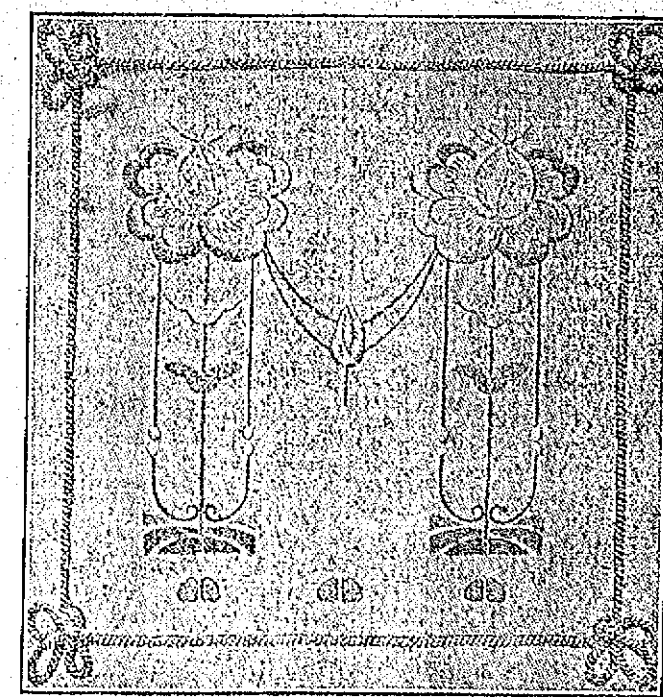

So that when he leaves her he takes away with him the impression that she is the cleverest woman he has ever met. "Knows all about agriculture," by Jove, and was most interested in one or two little things I told her."

The fact that she knew nothing whatever about agriculture, but had simply listened while he talked, would never for one moment occur to him.

STRAW FLOWERS AND LOOPS.

Toques made entirely of straw, nowers and all, are as useful a form of headgear as could be imagined. Straw roses mingled with loops of straw and trimming, a toque of straw folded over the crown and crinkled round the brim, may not be as poetic as the roses in silk and velvet, but they are favorable to ease of mind and that economy which circumstances enforce occasionally on almost every one.

A Gorgeous Cushion Cover

THE sofa cushion shown here is of gold satin embroidered in blue and piquee green. While somewhat elaborate for everyday use, elegance of this sort may be protected with washable lawn or muslin covers. The embroidery is done almost entirely in satin and outlining stitch, several shades being utilized for the flowers. The petals are worked in outline with satin stitch. When working satin stitch no padding is needed, the thread being so thick as to give the embroidery an excellent relief without it. The corolla of the flower is worked in blue of the lightest shade in satin stitch. The three small leaves branching out at the top are in piquee green. The graduated spots, which consist of two or three stitches in satin stitch, are done in green. Piquee green is also used for the lines of stitches completing the petals. Alternate long stitches and short stitches are used, but as these are marked in the design there is no difficulty in getting the correct curve. Dark green fiber in stem stitch is used for the stems, and the leaves at the stem and those of the foot are shades in green in satin stitch, each pair of leaves being worked in the same shade. The bud in the center, the small round spots which break the lines and the six ornaments at the foot of the design are worked in shades of blue fiber in satin stitch. The fine lines between the flowers are done in piquee green.

Coronation China

MANY USEFUL THINGS MADE UP IN THE FORM OF SOUVENIRS.

CORONATION souvenirs of all sorts are being shown in London. Some already have made their way to this country, and others undoubtedly will follow. Coronation colors—shades of purple and red—are with us already. Coronation jewelry, spoons, laces, etc., are novelties we may look for. Queen Mary, with her simple housewifely tastes, is a difficult person to exploit as an originator of fads. Some of the manufacturers have solved the problem by adopting china. Queen Mary, being very fond of it and much interested in those handsome collections in Windsor castle which Queen Victoria assembled during her long life. Coronation china appears in every grade of china and in all sorts of pieces, from cups and saucers to serviceable bedroom sets. The British lion or the arms of Great Britain appear on some, while the interlaced monograms of the king and queen adorn others. The bedroom set illustrated here is decorated with gold lions rampant on a white background, shamrocks for good luck forming a scattered decoration. The set includes wash basin, pitcher, soap dish, toothbrush holder, candlesticks, etc. In this country the stationary washstand makes the bedroom set less necessary than in England, where hot and cold water thus supplied would be considered an anachronism in some of the proudest castles of England.

RECIPROCITY BILL THREE ARRESTED

Passed by the House by Vote of 265 to 89 Plot to Burn Cambridge Apartment Building is Alleged

The Majority of the Republicans Opposed the Measure — The Democrats With Few Exceptions Voted for the Bill — Many Amendments Killed by the Democrats

WASHINGTON, April 22.—President Taft's Canadian reciprocity agreement, supported by all but a handful of democrats and opposed by a majority of the republicans, passed the house of representatives early last evening by a vote of 265 to 89. With nearly 200 democrats in control and their action endorsed by a large body of the republicans, the bill to put the agreement into force was adopted with no amendments and in almost identical form in which it passed the house in the last session of the preceding congress.

The bill seeks to vitalize the formal agreement reached between President Taft and members of the Canadian cabinet for a reduction of tariff rates on many articles and free trade in many others across the Canadian border. Added to it by the democratic leaders is a section which "authorizes and requests" President Taft to make further efforts to obtain still freer trade relations with Canada in the form of additional reciprocal relations.

Passage Never in Doubt

The passage of the bill marked the close of a fight which had raged in the house six days. During that time the safety of the measure was at no time threatened; but the democratic and republican leaders working for its passage conceded all the opportunity desired by its opponents for debates and protest against it. Following the same policy, amendments were admitted in the house yesterday for almost every section of the bill, and in each case they were rejected by an overwhelming vote by the friends of the measure on both sides of the house on the theory that any amendment would nullify it.

Ten democrats voted against the bill.

Men Were Captured on the Roof — Owner of Building is Among Those Accused — Kerosene and Gasoline on the Walls and Floors

BOSTON, April 22.—Three men are under arrest and the police are seeking a fourth man charged with an attempt to burn, for the insurance, a three-apartment wooden dwelling house at 9 Fourth street, East Cambridge, at 2 o'clock yesterday morning.

One of the prisoners is David Pearlstein, 24 years old, of 148 Williams street, Chelsea, who owns the house which is charged the men conspired to burn.

Pearlstein was arrested at 11:45 o'clock last night at the corner of Williams and Walnut streets, in Chelsea, by Patrolman John M. Bartley of Chelsea. Bartley had spent all day with the Cambridge policemen seeking Pearlstein in Chelsea, Malden, Cambridge and Boston.

Two other prisoners in the case, who are held at Station 3 in East Cambridge and who, it is charged, made the actual attempt to fire the apartment house, are said to have made a complete confession of the alleged conspiracy to the Cambridge police.

Their names are being withheld by the police, who say they are seeking the arrest of a fourth man. This man, it is charged, acted as the go-between and procured the two Cambridge prisoners as agents for Pearlstein to burn his apartment house.

Heard Noises on Roof

The street and top floors of the house are vacant. The middle apartment is occupied by a large family. At 2 o'clock yesterday morning the occupants of the middle apartment of the house were awakened by hearing noises on the roof of the house.

The man of the house made a hasty investigation and finding nothing, he went out and called in Patrolman Harry Davis and Michael McMahon and they made a thorough investigation but found no one. They found the plaster broken from the wall and walls and littered about the floors.

The officers left the house thinking that the noise was made by the falling plaster. The occupant of the apartment in the house went to bed but he was soon awakened again by the strange noises. He called the policemen into the house again and they found an alarming condition of affairs.

They went to the roof and there they found a man lying prostrate. He was taken to the police station where he gave a Hebrew name and a Boston address.

He said he was walking from the West End of Boston across the bridge into East Cambridge earlier in the evening, when he encountered a crowd of young men who started after him crying, "Kill the Jew," and that he was chased and almost and assaulted until he made his escape from the mob and concealed himself in the house at 9 Fourth street. He said he was hiding upon the roof for safety. He was released and he left the station house and hurried away to Boston.

Later the same officers were called into the house. Upon investigation they found a second man had fallen through a skylight and later made his escape.

The two policemen then made a thorough investigation and found a perfect fire trap, they allege. Gasoline and kerosene had been spread throughout the house. Old rags, papers and pieces of rope were scattered through the halls and the refuse and the walls were saturated with the inflammable oils. The floors were also wet with the same liquids.

On the roof the policemen found a large coil of rope which they allege was soaked with gasoline and kerosene. The police took this and other objects away to use at the hearing.

Word was sent to Boston police headquarters to arrest the suspect who had been found on the roof and later released because of the plausible story he had told. At 4 o'clock yesterday morning he was found at the address he had given the Cambridge police.

After a rigid examination he is alleged to have said that he was prepared to make a clean breast of the entire affair. It is alleged he said he and another young man, who had represented to them that he was the agent of Pearlstein, to burn the buildings. He said, the police declare, that they were promised $200 each if they succeeded in their attempt to burn the house and Pearlstein collected his insurance.

This prisoner furnished the Cambridge police with the name of his alleged accomplice and he also gave them the name and address of the alleged go-between and of Pearlstein.

SHOT IN BACK

Man is Not Expected to Live

MIDDLEBORO, April 22.—There was a sensational shooting affair at East Middleboro last night in a camp occupied by Cape Verde Islanders, employed in building cranberry bogs by Edward P. Washburn. Joseph Santos, the boss workman, was shot in the back.

It is charged that Manuel Gonsalves did the shooting. Santos was rushed to a New Bedford hospital in an automobile and it is said his life is in danger. Gonsalves fled to the woods after the shooting and a posse of officers is scouring the country for him. Chief of Police Swift has taken charge of the hunt and he is assisted by Patrolman Harry P. Snow and Kimball Harrison, Constable Fred C. Sparrow and a large company of volunteers.

It is said the gang have been jealous of Santos, who had steady work and was the boss. His orders to the gang were offensive, it is said, and a few days ago he came out victor in a sharp first fight with Gonsalves.

Since then ill blood is said to have existed and there have been frequent quarrels. What precipitated the shooting last night is not known to the police and the other men occupying the bogs have little to say. All will be gathered in by the police as witnesses.

Santos has been employed by Mr. Washburn for 10 years and was considered a fine workman. He has a wife and family in the western islands.

Men Accused by Customs Official

Machine Was Struck by a Train

BOSTON, April 22.—The U. S. grand jury, which has been in extra session several weeks, made a report to U. S. Dist. Court Judge Dodge in the federal building yesterday afternoon. The jury will come in again May 2. William S. Gregg, special assistant U. S. attorney general, who has been here two weeks presenting the witnesses connected with the milk investigation, left the federal building for Washington after the jury reported its small list of indictments. The milk case is expected to be resumed when the body reconvenes.

Yesterday afternoon indictments were returned against Michaelangelo De Spigno of Providence and Giuseppe Rastine of Genoa, charging them with offering a gratuity to a U. S. revenue officer. Ragine was a passenger on the steamship Canopic, from Italian ports, which arrived more than a week ago. De Spigno met him at the pier in Charlestown. It is alleged the defendants offered Herbert D. L. Lawton, a customs inspector, $5 apiece to allow the baggage of Ragine and Rastine to pass. Also a passenger, to be transported irregularly from the docks. There are two counts in each indictment.

Richard Phillips of Philadelphia was indicted on charge of using the mails in a scheme to defraud. Phillips, who is 55 years old, has a patent for a "reflector" for an electric car trolley pole and is charged with having sold an interest in the device to various people without delivering it. Four persons are mentioned as having had dealings with Phillips—Samuel H. Kimball of Boston, George M. Newgent of 18 Hoyt street, Boston, R. B. Smith of 74 Fremont street, Boston, and Daniel E. McGrath of 33 Prospect street, Worcester.

A secret indictment was also returned. The district attorney's office declined information concerning it.

SPEAKER CLARK A Card

Invited to Visit the Philippines

WASHINGTON, April 22.—Speaker Champ Clark and other democrats of the house who have taken an interest in the Philippines today were invited by Commissioner Manuel L. Quezon to visit the islands as guests of the Philippine assembly.

A cablegram received by Mr. Quezon from Sergio Osmeña, speaker of the assembly is as follows: "If Speaker Champ Clark and other congressmen will come to the Philippines we will not only show that our hospitality goes hand in hand with our high aspirations for freedom but will give the American people the opportunity to learn the fitness of the Philippines for independence. In giving the Philippines their independence the American people will be complying with the sacred duties they have assumed before the world in the Philippine islands. Such action will prompt the eternal gratitude of the Philippines to America. Invite them."

MRS. SCOTT CHOSEN

Illinois Woman Again Elected President General of D. A. R.

WASHINGTON, April 22.—Mrs. Matthew T. Scott of Illinois was declared last night to have been re-elected president general of the Daughters of the American Revolution for the next two years.

Of the 1086 votes cast, Mrs. Scott received 611; her opponent, Mrs. William C. Story of New York, 466, and six of the votes were blank.

The tellers spent almost 24 hours in counting Thursday's vote and the result, which it was expected, would be announced at the morning session of the congress, had to be postponed until last night.

With Mrs. Scott was elected the entire administration ticket, except one vice president general who received 10 votes less than the number necessary to elect and for which position a new ballot will be taken today.

Then Mrs. Scott entered Continental hall after the vote had been announced, preceded down the center aisle by a dozen charming young women and followed by a score more of her friends.

Scarcely had she mounted the platform before Mrs. Story asked recognition. She declared that she felt no bitterness because of her defeat, and urged all the members of the organization to uphold, as she intended to do, the hands of their newly-elected president general.

The others elected were: Mrs. Henry L. Mann vice president general in charge of organization of chapters, Miss Elizabeth Pierce chaplain general, Mrs. Howard T. Hodgkins, recorder, Mrs. W. A. Dennis, corresponding secretary, Mrs. G. B. Brimbaugh, general, Mrs. William D. Hoover, treasurer, and Mrs. Charles Bassett, historian general, Miss Amylles Gillette, district of Columbia, except Mrs. Bassett, Maryland, and Mr. Thompson, Massachusetts.

Ten vice presidents general were elected, but only nine received enough votes. All elected were Scott candidates, as also was Miss Harriet I. Lake of Iowa, who, although 10th in point of numbers had 10 votes too few to elect. The nine declared elected, in the order elected, were:

Miss Sophie Waples, Delaware; Mrs. Clayton R. Truesdale, Ohio; Mrs. Allen P. Perley, Pennsylvania; Mrs. Jas. P. Brayton, Michigan; Mrs. Ben Gray, Jr., Missouri; Mrs. James M. Fowler, Indiana; Mrs. Edwin C. Gregory, North Carolina; Mrs. Charles B. Bryn, Tennessee; and Mrs. R. H. Edmondson, Virginia.

Mrs. J. Morgan Smith of Alabama was elected an honorary vice president general and Mrs. Elmyr M. Avery was re-elected editor of the American Monthly Magazine, the official organ of the D. A. R.

In banking the society for her reelection Mrs. Scott said that while the members sometimes differed in their interpretations of questions of privilege or points of order, when it comes to questions of vital patriotic principles the D. A. R. heart beats true.

After last night's session a reception was given to Mrs. Scott at the hotel where she has her headquarters.

GOOD FRIDAY
Observed at the Greek Church

Good Friday was observed in a fitting way at the Greek Orthodox church in Jefferson street last night. Services began at 7 o'clock and consisted of the singing of hymns and a sermon by the pastor, Rev. Costas H. Demetriou. A huge epiphany of flowers on which reposed a sacred icon, representing the dead body of Christ was placed near the sanctuary, and two rows of members of the Greek military society, in uniform, opened a way to it from the door to the sanctuary.

Between these two rows of military guards, hundreds of men and women passed. Near the epiphany were also placed huge baskets containing natural flowers, and to each of the faithful a flower was given. The Greek priest and several acolytes, stood about the epiphany and chanted during the long service which lasted four hours. Shortly before 10 o'clock, a procession, headed by the priest, proceeded to the altar of the church. The procession was headed by 12 directors of the Greek community, six men relieving the first six bearers half way along the route.

The line of march was from the church through Little, Dunsmuir, Market, Adams, Cross, Suffolk and Lewis streets, back to the church.

The floral epiphany was a remarkable structure, standing about eight feet high and about six feet long. The flowers were fastened upon a wooden frame, the cover of which rose pillars supporting a dome. All of the frame was covered with carnations and roses of a bright hue, lilacs and greenery, the effect being superb.

Services will be held again tonight beginning at 10 o'clock and lasting until two a. m., at which time the faithful will receive holy communion. This is called the vigil of Easter and tomorrow Easter will be observed with an elaborate program.

COLONEL SIBLEY PEACE IN MEXICO

Reports on Conditions Chances Now Seem at Douglas Bright

WASHINGTON, April 22.—Official reports received by the war department by Col. Sibley commanding the department of Colorado, confirmed the Associated Press, despatches from Douglas, Ariz., as to recent incidents there.

Col. Sibley declares the Mexican consul probably made a report to his government too soon and certainly at a time when public opinion was still running strong.

It is known that the Mexican government based its representations regarding the Douglas incidents on the reports of its consul and the fact that conflicting news reached Washington and Mexico city regarding the disturbances has been inferred by the state department as the reason for the misunderstanding.

In passing sentence, Judge Landis scathingly arraigned the five-cent theatre as a destroyer of girlhood.

RACING BILL DEFEATED

DENVER, Colo., April 22.—Hopes of race followers that legislative action would permit of horse racing in Colorado with betting permitted were killed today when the senate, by a vote of 23 to 11, failed to pass the Cornforth racing and gambling bill over Governor Shafer's veto. The measure lacked only one vote of being passed over the veto.

The bill legalized race meetings by regularly incorporated organization with the pari-mutual system of betting. If you want help at home or in your business, try The Sun "Want" column.

MAN FROM LOWELL

Proves Wrong Identification of Dead Burglar

LOWELL, April 22.—The burglar killed by Officer Charles H. Newton, Andover, Thursday morning, was positively proven not to be James Papazis last night. Papazis is living in Haverhill and was greatly surprised last night when told he was thought to be dead.

Louis Papazis of Lowell, cousin of James Papazis, went to Bennett's undertaking parlors last night. He took one look at the remains and rushing from the room exclaimed:

"It is my cousin!"

Louis immediately left for 38 Locke street, Haverhill, where his cousin has been residing for the past three years. He had hardly stepped into the house when Papazis calmly walked in, greatly to the surprise of the Lowell cousin.

Arthur Charles, Essex street, and Louis Papazis, Common street, friends of Papazis, were with Louis Papazis when he viewed the remains at the undertaker's rooms. They were doubtful if the remains were those of

A LIVELY SCENE

In Mayor's Office in
Lawrence

LAWRENCE, April 22.—Paving block purchases by the city of Lawrence are again forcefully brought before the public by the claim of Michael J. O'Donnell of the Lawrence Granite company that he is being unfairly treated in not being given an opportunity to submit bids.

He complained to the mayor a day or two ago that Superintendent Lyons had recently purchased from Snow & Horsfall of Lowell, seven car loads of paving blocks for which from $10 to $15 more per thousand had been paid than he would have furnished them had he been given an opportunity.

The mayor arranged for a conference in his office Friday, and the two men met there. Mr. O'Donnell repeated his accusation, but the superintendent would neither acknowledge or deny the truth of it. The superintendent felt insulted by the insinuations said to have been made by Mr. O'Donnell and refused to answer his questions. The men nearly came to blows during the "conference," and were prevented from a clash by the mayor who stepped between them. Superintendent Lyons soon after left the office.

The mayor said he had no authority to compel Superintendent Lyons to answer the questions of Mr. O'Donnell, nor had he any supervision over the purchase of supplies for the street department. Mr. O'Donnell differed with him and a warm discussion followed between them. Mr. O'Donnell said he should bring the matter before the board of aldermen at the meeting next Monday night.

Neither the superintendent nor Mr. O'Donnell would talk on the trouble last night.

DRASTIC BILL

To Prevent the Use of
Cigarettes

DENVER, Colo., April 22.—The lower house of the legislature yesterday passed a drastic anti-cigarette bill which at the time it was introduced was considered a joke. The bill makes it a misdemeanor to buy, sell, give away, or have in one's possession cigarettes or cigarette papers. Credit for the passage of the measure is given to the Federated Women's clubs who have conducted a lobby several weeks at the state house. Friends of the bill declare that it will pass the senate.

BOTH LEGS FRACTURED

Geo. Gowan Had a Narrow Escape
From Being KilledHe Was Crushed Between a
Trolley Pole and Horse—
"Green" Animals Were Scared
by Automobile—Gowan is in
a Serious Condition

George Gowan, employed as a teamster for Alvin D. Boynton of 1438 Gorham street, was nearly killed shortly after 10.30 o'clock this morning as a result of being crushed between a horse and a trolley pole at the corner of Broadway and Fletcher street when the horses which he was driving became frightened and, running away, smashed into the pole.

The injured man was attended by two physicians and later taken to the Lowell hospital where upon examination it was found he was suffering from a compound fracture of the right leg, simple fracture of the left leg and probably internal injuries. At the time of going to press neither of the man's lower limbs had been amputated and the surgeons are in hopes that it will not be necessary. His condition is precarious.

Mr. Boynton has a contract for hauling coal from the railroad yards to the Beaver Brook mills in Collinsville, and this morning Gowan and several helpers after delivering one load of coal were going back to the yards for another. To the large wagon were attached four horses, the two leaders being horses which had been used for several years, while the other two were "green" horses.

Gowan was driving and while passing through Fletcher street at a point near Cross street, an automobile operated by Dr. Foster H. Smith, city

HATTIE LEBLANC HELD IN $5000

Questioned Again in the Glover Will Case

ST. JOHN, N. B., April 22.—The interrogation of Hattie Leblanc in connection with the Glover will contest at Cambridge, Mass., was continued here today before Barrister John Kerr of this city, who holds a special commission from the supreme court of Massachusetts to take the deposition of the Cape Breton girl, who a few months ago was acquitted of the murder of Clarence Glover of Waltham, over whose estate a contest is now being waged. Attorneys Edward P. Barry, representing the four brothers of Glover who are contesting the allowance of the will, and Samuel Elmore, the executor of the estate, expressed the opinion today that the examination of the Leblanc girl would not be finished before Monday. In that event it might be possible for the attorneys to prevent the deposition in the supreme court at Cambridge some time Tuesday. It had been expected that the proceedings here would be concluded in time to allow the Boston lawyers to return on tonight's train.

Hattie Leblanc was under cross-examination by Mr. Elmore all the morning and the questioning was resumed again in the afternoon.

Mr. Barry said today that he is exceedingly well pleased with the testimony of the girl, who, he says, has stood the strain of a searching cross examination in an excellent manner. He also expressed the belief that her story would be of the utmost importance to the trial of the will case.

It was said today that ten minutes after Hattie Leblanc left the stand last night she sank into a deep slumber, that it was impossible to arouse her, having been greatly fatigued by the ordeal she had undergone.

But Mexican Insurrectos and Federals Are Ready for Battle

Young Madero is Not Anxious to Make Peace—2000 Rebels are Camped Outside of Juarez—Americans Supply Articles of Food to the Mexicans

EL PASO, Texas, April 22.—Whether the day will develop peace or a fight only Francisco I. Madero, Jr., can say. Yesterday afternoon the Mexican government gave orders to drop all negotiations with him, declaring that he is unreasonable. Last night his aged father arrived after an effort of several weeks to plead in the interest of peace. This resulted in a stay of activity until the father can have a talk with the son. Pending the outcome of this conversation the two armies are resting within rifle shot of each other. Each side has its cannon in position and in each army the soldiers are keeping close to their rifles. Juarez is not making any attempt to take the offensive in the campaign and the Madero men therefore do not have to be as careful as do the defenders of the town. The garrison inside Juarez must watch every minute for the expected assault. The insurrectos have to be ready only to go into action at the pleasure of their commander-in-chief for they have no idea that there is to be an assault from Juarez and in fact there is no danger of one inasmuch as the garrison in Juarez numbers but 750 men as against 2000 outside the town. In the rebel ranks the insurrectos have not changed their position. They still occupy the mountain range in a crescent shape about the city, one point of the crescent being northwest of Juarez and the other southeast, the army extending around the west side. The mountains, the draw or gullies and the foothills are full of dirt, unkept, half clad men carrying arms of every description and wearing clothes of an equally conglomerated character. They busy themselves during the pending negotiations washing their meagre clothing supply at the river; but it is a very noticeable fact that there are more Americans performing this task, regardless of their small percentage in the army, than there are Mexicans—bathing their tired feet or

PEACE MISSION

MADERO, SR., TO TALK TERMS WITH HIS SON

EL PASO, Texas, April 22.—Francisco Madero, Sr., and the other members of the peace mission, went early to the insurrecto camp today for what was intended to be a thorough discussion of the situation. The elder Madero, who is exceptionally proud of his son, the rebel leader, said that his mission "would come out right," incidentally, he told of the remarkable change in his son's way of living about a year ago.

"It is remarkable," said the father, "my son, he liked good wine and good beer, you know, and good food of all kinds. He was what you call a good fellow. One day he just quit everything almost. He stopped drinking and smoking and eating meat, all at the same time. He won't eat even eggs. He is a vegetarian."

"In those days he could not make a speech, could not even return simple thanks at a dinner. I have seen him blush and stammer when called upon. Now they tell me he talks wonderfully to large crowds. I have not heard him but they say he is a fine orator. Never did a boy change so."

It is not to be inferred from the foregoing that young Francisco was previously dissolute, for he was not. His habits were temperate.

Colonel Tambor, commanding the military post at Juarez, expressed himself in sarcastic vein today with reference to Madero's announcement that he would not attack the city within 24 hours.

"Bah, bah," exploded the colonel. "He will never attack. He is afraid. He will make one excuse after another but there will be no attack. You will see."

Madero and the leaders under him would like to take the city across the river. They outnumber the federal forces and believe that the task would be comparatively simple despite Navarro's artillery. Madero does not wish to waste life, however, and he listened today with great attention to the argument that the revolution already has accomplished every reform demanded except the resignation of Diaz and the latter is a consummation not to be desired, it is argued. There can be no doubt, also, that Dr. Gomez has impressed him with the fear of American intervention. That is a development no Mexican desires on the river.

LUTHER C. LADD

Story of His Last Night in Lowell

AND HIS FAREWELL TO HIS FRIENDS

Told By His Roommate, Mr. Theodore F. Gardner, Son of Mrs. Gardner, Who Conducted the Boarding House on Machine Shop Corporation.

Here is a little story that seems to have escaped the writers who sought reminiscences of the martyrs for the 60th anniversary of their fall at Baltimore: Theodore F. Gardner, residing at 75 Pine street, this city, whose sons are known as the firm of Gardner Bros., was the room-mate of Luther C. Ladd. On coming to Lowell as a mere stripling, young Ladd became a boarder at the house kept by Mrs. Mary C. Gardner, No. 25 Machine Shop corporation. There he roomed with Theodore F. Gardner, son of the boarding mistress, and about the same age as young Ladd.

One night, says Theodore F. Gardner, young Ladd came home late and threw something so heavily on the bed that it woke me up. It was his uniform. I asked him if he was going. "Yes," he said; "it is all settled; I go tomorrow."

"Tomorrow?" I said, getting up in the bed. "Isn't that awfully sudden?"

"Yes," he said, "but the company goes and I will not be alone. I would like a little more time to prepare."

"Then," said Mr. Gardner, "the poor boy sat down to write letters to his parents and friends and I was so much grieved myself at his going that I lay awake speaking to him occasionally. For I noticed the tears streaming down his cheeks as he wrote letter after letter to dear friends whom I suppose he felt even then he might never see again. It was after 3 o'clock when he finished writing and turned into bed, and he had but a few hours to sleep. On his departure he seemed more cheerful. He bade everybody in the house a fond good bye, and as he was about to say a last farewell to all he spied a little baby girl with whom he had often toyed, and running back he kissed the baby and in a moment was on his way, only turning to wave adieu to those who watched him until he passed out of sight. The name of the baby was Annie Leach and she is now a member of the Calvary Baptist church."

"Everybody at the boarding house loved young Ladd, and all were deeply grieved on hearing of his fall just three days after he left Lowell."

As to the manner of his death Mr. Gardner says the report at the time was that when the Baltimore mob closed in upon the detached companies, a big husky fellow tackled Ladd and tried to take his gun away from him. In the scuffle Ladd's gun was discharged, the bullet severing the fatal artery and causing him to bleed to death. The companies held out too long without firing in compliance with the order not to shoot until attacked by firearms.

REBEL CHIEF

Identified as Oscar Wheelock, a Boston Absconder

BOSTON, April 22.—Through photographs taken on the Mexican border, Oscar Creighton, the daring Mexican rebel leader, recently killed, was yesterday identified as Oscar M. Wheelock, the absconding auditor of the Massachusetts Bonding & Insurance company of Boston.

As Captain Creighton, soldier of fortune, Wheelock during the past three months gained widespread fame on the Mexican border as a dare-devil rebel leader. His forte was the dynamiting of roadways and bridges, and he was marked as an extremely bold and dangerous man by the United States troops guarding the border. In a foolhardy attack against the federal forces he was shot down.

Two days ago photographs of Captain Creighton, the American soldier of fortune, were published and at once recognized by scores of his friends as Oscar M. Wheelock, the one time chess and billiard expert of Boston and the embezzler of nearly $10,000 from the bonding company, who left Boston in 1910.

President T. J. Falvey of the bonding company and every member of the office staff of the concern were unanimous yesterday in declaring the picture of Captain Creighton to be none other than that of Oscar Wheelock. Billiard and chess players by the score, men who knew him well during his sporting days in Boston, stated positively last night that they recognized the portrait on the day it was first published.

"There is no mistake," said one well known billiard player. "I played chess with him for years and I am dead sure that this picture of the Mexican rebel leader is he. The very expression on his face, the pose, everything about it convinces me. I knew it the moment I first saw it and remarked it at the time, and that was before it was even suspected that Captain Creighton was Oscar Wheelock."

LEAGUE SEASON

Will Open at Spalding Park on Monday Afternoon

Parade and Band Concert Prior to Game—Mayor Meehan Will Pitch First Ball—Team Looks Good at Start

The New England league season will open on Monday and Lowell will play its first game at home with Worcester as the opposing team.

The opening exercises will start with a parade of the principal players of both teams headed by the Lowell band. The latter will give a brief program in Merrimack square after which cars will be taken for Spalding park.

At the park at 3 o'clock, His Honor Mayor Meehan will throw the first ball and the game will then be on.

Lowell will present a much stronger team than at the opening of last season, and will have a first division proposition for the season. Out of the unusually large number of recruits tried out, Manager Gray has selected a promising looking aggregation.

One cannot judge the strength of the local team by the players who are as the management gave all the recruits a chance to show what they could do, regardless of what the results might be. In many cases since the boys started playing, the home team has been well in hand but lost it by putting in a player who toward the close, the idea being to give everyone a chance, and the survival of the fittest.

To begin with, Lowell has an outfield that can't be beat in the league. In Magee, Berrows and Flaherty. In the infield, Moulton has shown the necessary goods at second base, while Gates has done likewise at third. Conroy is all right at short stop. Then there is Jake Boutles. The management wants him to pitch this season but he wants to play third again. At first base, there are two candidates who will be held for a time. Wright, who comes from Panama, was brought here on the recommendation of Magee and Moulton who have played with him. These men would not fold any gold brick on the management and hence Wright while he has not been connecting with the ball is still held. Coming directly here from Panama, he has not become acclimated as yet. He is a graceful feller. J. John Dugan is a heavy-hitting candidate.

Behind the bat there are Harry Huston and Spring, whose ability is well known. A young catcher named O'Connor from Attleboro was brought here and will be tried out. He is said to be one fine catcher.

In the pitching department there are Wolfgang, Dural, Yount and Hadley for a starter. Hadley is a new recruit who has had a favorable impression every time he has gone on the slab and he looks awfully good to the critics.

DIAMOND NOTES

All up for the opening of the league season Monday with Worcester as the attraction, band concert, Mayor Meehan to pitch the first ball and a fine time generally. Bring your overcoat.

"Dead Rabbit!" came a voice from the players' bench as Jimmie Magee scooped in a fly, and we knew that Harry Huston had struck town.

Pitcher Yount, just as fat as ever, is on hand. Young came all the way from the south, and found quite a change in the climate.

The can was applied last night to the following: Connelly, Murray, catchers; Sullivan, Stevens and Munroe, pitchers; Rossman, outfielders; Wilder, Orcutt and Peterson, infielders; and Evans, third base.

Wright and Dugan are still held as first base candidates. Wright is highly recommended by Magee and Flaherty as yet has not been connected at the bat while Dugan has, though Wright seems to be a more graceful feller.

Gates looks good at third base, and likewise Moulton at second.

Steve Managan of Brockton has purchased Pitcher Buzick from the Boston Americans and Catcher Wainleugh from Hartford of the Connecticut league. Buzick pitched for Lynn a short time last season.

"We must be pretty close to the North Pole," remarked Harry Huston yesterday as he kicked himself to keep from freezing. He had just come from New Mexico where the flowers are in bloom and swimming is good.

RED SOX OPENED TOMMY BERGIN

Was Not So Clever as Kid Mercer

LEWISTON, Me., April 22.—Kid Mercer of Lawrence, Mass., and Tommy Bergin of Lewiston fought two six-round bouts before a large crowd in city hall last night. The men were in fine condition. Mercer was the cleverer and averaged to land about two blows to Bergin's one and was entitled to the decision had one been given.

The match was about even up to the fourth round, when Mercer administered severe punishment to the Lewiston boy. The fifth and sixth rounds were Mercer's and Tommy was groggy when the gong sounded.

In the second half of the bout Bergin was kept on the defensive, although he landed some telling blows toward the end of the fifth round. There was considerable clinching.

For the semi-final offering, Mike Cunningham and Morris McCormick, both of Lewiston, fought two six-round bouts. Mike had a shade better of the match.

DROPS BURKE TWICE

NEW YORK, April 22.—Tom McMahon gave Sailor Burke a sound wallop in a 10-round bout at the Twentieth Century Athletic club at the St. Nicholas rink last night. McMahon dropped Burke twice to the floor. It was a slugfng affair.

The bout was the eighth of the night and ninth McMahon had the better of the argument.

The warrants charge the persons named with violating the city ordinance relating to "good order and decency," which provides a penalty for its violation of a fine of not less than $25 and not more than $100.

BIG FOOTBALL GAME

LONDON, April 22.—The final for the Association cup, the greatest trophy in British football, was played at Crystal Palace between Newcastle United, holders of the trophy, and Liverpool City today and resulted in a tie.

Much dash and cleverness were shown by both teams, but the defense of the ends was magnificent. Neither team was able to score.

The usual enormous crowds, estimated as high as a hundred thousand, streamed in from the country during the night to witness the final match. The principal railroads operated 2,200 special trains.

CONTAGIOUS HOSPITAL

Water Board Thinks Location at Farm Might Contaminate Wells

Engineer of State Board of Health to be Called in to Decide Upon the Matter

Before the contagious hospital commission decides upon a location for the proposed hospital the water board will ask the state board of health to look into the matter.

The location that a majority of the commission favors is on a direct line with the Cook wells and while the danger to those wells may be very remote the water board believes that it is best to take the safe side and run no risk. The board met last night and decided to ask the state board of health to send an engineer here to look the ground over.

Dr. McCarthy, chairman of the board of charities, is a member of the hospital commission and he is not in favor of the site selected at the Chelmsford contagious hospital. The site favored by a majority of the commission lies between Chelmsford street and the hospital and Dr. McCarthy objects to it because of the fact that it blankets the view from the street and he says the site is not large enough to build upon in the future. He would locate the contagious disease hospital at the farm, near the Chelmsford line where there is no view to obstruct and where there is plenty of land.

A like objection is raised, however, against the site favored by Dr. McCarthy. It is on a line with the Cook wells but is not as near to these wells as is the other site to the Cook well.

Smaller Pipes Too

Another important matter considered by the water board at its meeting last night had to do with the reduction in the size of pipes leading from mains to the supply pipes used by the electric sprinklers. The board has received a great many complaints of late relative to the water supply. There is considerable loss in the city water, but the iron does not create a rust unless it meets with violent disturbance that sends it rushing back and forth through the pipes and it is for the purpose of checking this disturbance that the board voted to reduce the size of the pipes from the mains to the supply pipes from the mains to the supply pipes and three inch instead of six inch pipe will be used. The great force from the six inch pipe is what disturbs and rolls the water and it is believed that the trouble can be overcome by the use of a smaller pipe.

The city mains will be blown off tomorrow afternoon between the hours of 1 and 5 o'clock. The water board makes this announcement in another column in order that the water takers may not find themselves inconvenienced by lack of water for household purposes during the afternoon.

Turned Down by License Commissioners in Lawrence

LAWRENCE, April 22.—The agony is over! The licenses have been granted, and while there are some disappointments the grant as a whole seems to have given satisfaction to those interested.

Fifteen new licenses were granted of which two, Dennis McCarthy and James William Cooper, were given wholesale or fourth class licenses, while the others granted were first class.

The commissioners went into session in the early evening and at 8.30 o'clock they had completed their work. There was much interest in the grant throughout the city and the newspaper telephones were kept busy during the evening.

One license was not granted, but was decided upon by the commission, it being decided to give a first class license to John Granski & Co., at 93 Lawrence street. The firm first applied for a fourth class license and later withdrew the application and applied for a first class license and the advertising period on the latter had not expired.

WOMAN TESTIFIED

Told Her Story at the Trial of the Camorrist Today

VITERBO, Italy, April 22.—Today it was Vincenzo Avolio, the butcher, who disputed the law with the judge; Antonio Peracocco, the seller of tortoise shells to Chicagoans, frankly expressing the hope that he would get some free advertising out of his mistreatment; and Maria Stendardo, "the beauty of Naples," who chose imprisonment rather than betray the man she loved, that were the principal performers in the trial of camorrist.

Three men are charged with bringing the trial to the Alda tavern in Baginola on May 16, 1906, when Genaro Cuocolo was condemned to death, the state being engaged just now chiefly with those accused of formulating the plan resulting in the murder of Cuocolo, and his wife. When Avolio placed the blood-stained apron of the meat shop for street dress he chose the best in texture and cut, and this morning he fairly dazzled the spectators with his fashionable get-up. He is a handsome man and spoke like a scholar, with surprising effect.

Avolio made the usual unqualified denial of guilt and then drew from his pocket a small copy of the Italian criminal code and from it read passage after passage in support of his claim that there was no excuse in law for his detention as a suspect in the Cuocolo case.

President Bianchi listened with some show of interest and amusement and finally interrupted:

"Int. Avolio, you usurp my profession."

Unabashed, the butcher responded: "I might say much more but I do not wish to steal the thunder of my lawyer."

Antonio Peracocco, smiling graciously, was next called for examination. He declared he had not been at Baginola at the time the death sentence was passed on the Cuocolos. Then, in a whimsical vein, he concluded: "I am not a murderer; I am a business man and trade in tortoise shells. I send my goods to the United States, particularly to Chicago, and I do hope that in the midst of my misfortunes that this trial will be a good advertisement for my wares."

ANNUAL PARTY THE FRATERNITIES

Of Officers of Lowell High School Girls' Battalions

Associate hall was the scene of a delightful social last night, the occasion being the 16th annual party of the officers of the Lowell High School Girls' Battalions. The interior of the hall was decorated in an artistic manner with bunting and potted plants. There was a large attendance, the young people predominating and many of the former pupils of the school, together with college students were present.

White and green were predominating colors in the decorations, while the orchestra which furnished music for dancing was hidden behind potted plants and greenery.

One of the features of the evening was the grand march in which fifty couples participated and which was led by Mr. William Sullivan and Major Irene Hogan, while following them were: Mr. Harry Brown and Major Mary Jacques; Mr. Herbert Blaney and Captain Charlotte Greene; Mr. William Liddell and Captain Pauline Woodworth; Mr. Brodie Reeson and Captain Margaret Woodworth; and Mr. Captain Dorothy Braham. Then came captains and lieutenants and sergeants and other non-coms, with their escorts.

The young lady officers and members of the battalions were attired in dresses of white and pink instead of the regulation uniform with shining buttons and gold braid.

During the evening the battalions went through the waltz and dumb bell drills. The first battalion, commanded by Major Irene Hogan, drilled with Indian clubs, while the second battalion, commanded by Major Mary Jacques, gave a delightful waltz drill. Miss Leah DeMerritt, the physical instructor of the school had general supervision of the drilling.

The order of dances was entered upon about 9 o'clock and continued, with intermission until 1 o'clock this morning.

The matrons of the party were:

Highland Council, Royal Arcanum, Has an Interesting History

In the spring of 1885 the late Jacob Murphy, then a member of Lowell Council No. 8, Royal Arcanum, conceived the idea of forming another council in Lowell and having obtained a dispensation from the Grand Council, he immediately commenced to solicit names for the charter list. A sufficient number was soon obtained and on the 18th of May in that year, Highland Council No. 970, Royal Arcanum, was instituted in Highland hall, Branch street with the following 26 charter members:

Jacob Murphy, Harry King Boardman, Benjamin F. Hale, George B. Prescott, Arthur W. Early, Alfred L. Smith, Willis G. Eaton, Charles A. Grant, Charles E. Frost, Horace P. Grosvenor, Charles E. Park, Fred C. Rand, Charles H. Cutler, Alfred E. Nichols, George E. Bicknell, Charles E. Graves, John B. Logan, Henry A. Weber, Julia W. Coburn, Herbert V. Hildreth, John T. Farrell, E. F. Lovejoy, William A. Harris, John B. Garndt, John Oliver and Clarence W. Whidden.

The first board of officers was: Regent, Harry K. Boardman; vice regent, B. F. Hale; orator, G. H. Prescott; past regent, Jacob Murphy; secretary, A. W. Early; collector, A. L. Smith; treasurer, W. D. Eaton; chaplain, C. A. Grant; guide, C. E. Frost; warden, H. P. Grosvenor; sentry, C. E. Park; trustees, F. C. Rand, C. H. Cutler and A. E. Nichols.

The instituting officer was Willis P. Burbank, grand regent of Massachusetts, and at that time a resident of Lowell. A history of Highland Council cannot be written without making it largely a history of the last thirteen years of Mr. Murphy's life. His interest did not cease with the institution of the council. With indomitable energy he and his fellow members continued to increase the membership until at the first anniversary in May, 1887, there were one hundred names upon the roll book of the council. In Arcanum circles, Mr. Murphy was always called "The Father of Highland Council," and the name was aptly chosen. The council was his ideal and outside of his domestic life, no work was too arduous, no sacrifice too great, if the welfare of the council demanded it. He was present at every meeting and fought with voice and vote for what he con-growth was maintained with no concerted action to increase the membership. In 1894, the Grand Council proposed that the council of Lowell which then numbered five, should hold a "Class Initiation," each council to present as many candidates as possible. The suggestion met with favor and a joint committee was immediately formed.

Huntington Hall was secured and the date set for Nov. 13th. Friendly rivalry immediately sprang up between the councils and Highland Council entered into the work with a determination to lead. When the eventful day arrived it was found that the combined efforts of the different councils had brought together a class of 118 candidates. Of this number Highland Council alone presented 45, the largest number presented by any other council being 27. Notwithstanding the great amount of work necessary to achieve this great success, continued efforts added 9 more names during December and January. In February, 1902, the council planned another class initiation of its own to take place on March 27th in Odd Fellows Temple on which date 24 more names were added to the roll making a total of 81 new members admitted to Highland Council within a period of five months. The growth of the council continued month by month, interspersed with "classes." One held in October of the same year added 13 members, one in March, 1903, 20 members and one in May of the same year 2 members. In June 1903, occurred the memorable "change in the rates" by the supreme council, when the assessments which previous to that time had been abnormally low, were rearranged to conform to a mortality table embracing a study of more than four hundred thousand lives, thus placing the order upon an absolutely permanent basis. This radical change, however, occurring as it did so soon after the collapse of so many of the so-called "bureau orders" naturally alarmed many of the members, especially the new ones who had been admitted in the recent class initiations and they "made haste quickly" to get out thinking that it was a forerunner of the end, and the council lost many of its members by suspension, but time has revealed the wisdom of the change and the Arcanum of today offers more than ever before to its members, and commends itself most strongly to those in search of the cheapest protection for their homes consistent with absolute safety and permanence.

Since its organization Highland Council has had upon its roll the names of 692 members. Its greatest membership at any one time, which was in the early part of 1905, was 467. Its present membership is 315. Seventeen out of the twenty-four past regents of the council are living and still connected with the council. One of these, Alonzo G. Walsh, has been honored with the highest office in the state having served as grand regent and is at present a member of the supreme council. Since 1901 the council has maintained a degree staff, which has been second to none in the state, and has been called upon to perform the degree work in many other councils not only in this city but elsewhere. The staff is in charge of Past Regent Arthur H. Dana, who is its regent; the other members of the staff are: Fred Johnston, Fred E. Jones, J. E. Shurt, P. R. Kinney, W. J. Carey, J. W. McKoon, C. E. Stuart, Fred Hall and L. M. Fuller. Much enthusiasm prevails in the council at the present time. This is due largely to the energy of its present regent, Fred E. Jones. Twenty new members have been admitted thus far this year under his administration, and a class initiation held April 14th by which fifteen new members were taken into the council owes its success largely to his efforts and was the largest class admitted to any council in this locality since 1905. The other officers of the council are: Vice regent, George E. Hutchins; orator, W. J. Carey; past regent, Arthur H. Dana; secretary, W. D. Hill; collector, A. M. Huntton; treasurer, C. E. Butterfield; chaplain, Fred Hall; guide, J. W. McKoon; warden, L. M. Fuller; and sentry, Fred Rand; representatives to Grand Council, A. H. Dana, E. E. Maynard; alternates, Alonzo Gray, Felix Langevin; auditing committee, Fred Johnson, Charles W. Brown; financial commit-

Highland Council, since its organization has collected from its members a large benefit fund of the supreme council the sum of $172,292.52. Forty-seven of its members have died and to their beneficiaries the supreme council has paid out of the W. and O. B. fund the sum of $117,000. The amount paid to the deceased members to the W. and O. B. fund was $12,632.25 thus showing that the sum of $104,367.74 has been paid to the beneficiaries in excess of the amount into the W. and O. B. fund by the deceased members. The amount paid into the W. and O. B. fund by the council in excess of the amount received in settlement of death claims has been $55,278.52. The largest sum paid by one member to the W. and O. B. fund was by Bro. L. A. Worcester who died May 6th, 1906, and paid the sum of $311.15. His beneficiary received the sum of $3000. Bro. Wm. J. Murtha, who died Dec. 16, 1903 paid the smallest sum $4.68. His beneficiary received $1000.

These figures deal entirely with the monthly assessments which are paid directly into the W. and O. B. fund. The quarterly dues paid by the members are controlled by the council and are used to promote social events which are a distinctive feature of Highland Council. No other council offers more in the line of entertainment of all kinds and everything is free to members of any council. Highland Council pays the dues and assessments of its members when sick for a period of four months and being connected as it is with the R. A. hospital association four weeks free treatment in any hospital is also secured to the member when necessary.

Highland Council is financially strong and in point of membership ranks seventh among the 155 councils of Massachusetts. On May 15th, 1911, it will celebrate by a dance and whist party the anniversary which marks the close of a quarter century of active and earnest work which extends the hand of brotherhood to a fellow-man and carries comfort and consolation as far as possible into the home of the widow and the orphan.

The past regents of the council are: Jacob Murphy, deceased; at organization, H. K. Boardman, C. W. Whidden, B. F. Hale, A. W. Early, W. A. Harris, A. G. Walsh, Alonzo Gray, J. C. Coram, W. Dana Hill, Edwin McKee, E. E. Maynard, J. P. Parker, G. A. Barnes, Frank Dodge, E. G. Crockett, James W. Jackson, C. E. Stillings, W. E. Smith, E. M. Robitaille, E. E. Mansur, E. D. Langdon, L. A. Valley, M. H. Sawyer, A. H. Bixby and A. H. Dana.

The present secretary, Mr. W. Dana Hill has been in office for the past 12 years, while the collector, Mr. A. M. Huntton has held that position for 18 years. Mr. Frank Butterfield also holds a record as treasurer, for he has been in office for six years.

Handsome Veils for Wearers of Harem Skirts

NEVER has there been a time when veils were so little needed to keep the hair in order, for the hats settle far down over head and hair, and it is quite possible to clap one's hat on over a very incomplete coiffure and set forth looking irreproachably trim and smart. Therefore veillings in order to hold their own have to make an appeal through their ornamental and not their utilitarian characteristics, and never have veils been more beautiful or more becoming than now. Even with the small close fitting toques, which do not really need a veil, many women continue to wear face veils. They know how smart is a carefully adjusted veil with a tailored suit.

The new veils are mostly of the shadow or cobweb patterns, which are very becoming to the complexion, provided the design is not grotesque or conspicuous enough to attract attention from the wearer's prettiness. After all, a veil is simply a medium through which one looks at beauty, and when this medium ceases to be flattering to the face beneath, or worse still, obscures itself ostentatiously, it ceases to be admirable or in good taste.

When draped loosely from the hat brim the cobweb veillings are at their prettiest, and just now this is a much smarter method of arranging the veil than drawing it back under the chin in folds. Even the fillet and chignon dotted "face veils" which are sold by the yard are now being draped in this manner from the hat brim, and the folds fall gracefully at the back without being fastened at all save for the single pin which keeps the upper edge of the veil on the hat brim.

Two illustrations show the correct manner of adjusting the veil—one on a large hat and the other on a small closely fitting toque. With the large hat is used one of the white lace veils, which are particularly becoming and which give a delicate, spirituelle look to the face. The upper edge of this white veil is draped in soft folds over the brim of the hat, and the veil falls evenly all around just over the shoulders.

It is rather a clever trick to arrange one of these lace veils over a small toque so that the top of the veil follows the line of the toque and the lower edge falls straight to the shoulder all around. The veil in the photograph is a beautiful chignon model with black tracery on a white net ground.

The woman who freckles or tans easily should veil herself well all through the car is in motion. One edge of the veil is shirred for a short space over elastic or ribbon, which fits around the neck like a collar and fastens with a snap button at the back. The wide veil is tossed over the hat, with the ends hanging down the back, and the shirred portion is fastened snugly around the throat over the trailing folds, making a perfect protection for hat, hair and face.

Oculists may complain as they like of the damage which the large dots are likely to inflict on the sight. Women will continue to wear dotted veils. Indeed, their popularity seems to grow from day to day. If one may judge by the increased size of the spots, the mesh of some of these veils is so fine that the effect of the dots at the distance is most remarkable. It gives the face the appearance of being tattooed. Instead of being arranged in diagonals the mesh is blocked or striped. The finer meshes seem to be preferred, and this is bad for slender pocketbooks, as the two or three appearances of such fragile affairs generally end their usefulness. Perhaps, after all, this is as it should be, for beauty specialists so warn us against the microbes that lodge in the veil that we might be led to think it a veritable disease trap. It is quite likely that the net does gather in a great deal of dust from the air. It would be well if a veil could be rinsed out in benzine or gasoline after two or three wearings. Some fastidious women cast aside a veil after one wearing.

The automobile craze has brought in one particular convenience in the motor veil, which is cut on such ample lines and so closely woven that it forms a real protection in cold or windy weather. The size of the veils permits of their being used as scarfs, some of the new ones being forty inches wide by two and three-quarter yards long.

Economists may make their veils at home if they choose. For a chiffon veil in any of the new spring colors purchase the required length of the stuff, but allow it three inches extra width. Lay the chiffon on tissue paper and baste it down in order to give it the necessary firmness for working. Then run a hem an inch deep below and a half inch hem at the top. Stitch down on the machine. The lower hem, which is a double one, may be embroidered in some simple pattern, and a ribbon may be threaded through the top to draw the veil snugly around the hat.

Fretty veils may be made of plain tulle decorated with narrow lace insertion. Tack the insertion along an inch above the bottom or put it on in fancy designs. When the lace has been stitched in place cut away the net behind it, whip the edges of the net to the edges of the lace, then put a hem at the top for the ribbon, and you have a handsome and convenient veil.

A chiffon veil may be embellished along the wide lower hem with French knots, the knots being to keep the hem in place and being about half an inch apart. Then a plain scallop in satin stitch may finish the edge.

Many Quaint New Furnishing Fabrics

There is nothing on which the true lover of old furniture will bestow more careful attention than the choice of the furnishing fabrics which are to be used with his or her treasures in oak, mahogany or walnut. The most carefully furnished period room may fall short of success by the intrusion of modern looking curtains, and the beauty of some old settee may be impaired by a covering that is out of harmony with its own distinctive character.

Quite admirably are the needs of the fastidious votary of period decoration catered for in the delightful private copies of old printed calicoes, linens and other fabrics supplied this season by the shops. Many of the designs, apart from their decorative value, are of special historic interest—as, for example, the reproduction of a printed linen with queer Chinese figures and impossible but none the less delightful flowers and animals.

Light summer window draperies will be a requirement of the near future. First come the curtains of durable net. Vast improvement and development have been made in this class of goods during the last few years. The designs, based in a great many instances on fine antique examples of fillet, Venetian and other laces, are noticeably good, and many of the curtains have a style and decorative value that are very striking.

printed entirely in a purplish gray upon cream, after the fashion of an old woodcut, is the reproduction of the Fontanges linen in the Victoria and Albert museum, London, the scenes depicted in the design showing Louis XIV. and Mme. de Fontanges strolling in the gardens at Versailles, with a greyhound in attendance and a pastoral background in which farmyard animals disport themselves and nymphs and shepherds play and sing to the accompaniment of plashing fountains.

A Spitalfields brocade of the late eighteenth century is delightfully revived in an old rose taffeta, with a design of flowering trees and baskets of roses interwoven in mellow cream color, and the Chinoiserie of the Chippendale period are echoed in a printed linen with queer Chinese figures and impossible but none the less delightful flowers and animals.

Then follows an attractive section devoted to varied designs in swiss applique, that perennially favorite class of lace curtains, after which we have hemstitched and lace inserted book muslins, simple but remarkably effective curtains of real lace on strong net, novelty real lace curtains enriched with hand embroidery and incrustations of cluny and renaissance lace and Marie Antoinette curtains in graceful French style. Lastly come the vitrages, the bordered nets and the brise-bises, a fascinating collection in all the newest patterns.

EMBROIDERED LINEN JUMPER

THE jumper is still a part of the fashionable woman's wardrobe. This handsome design is of linen worked in eyelid embroidery.

BLACK AND WHITE HATS.
The rage of the moment in millinery is for black and white stripes. It is seen in straw—very smart—with trimmings in plain black straw, black silk, black velvet or black satin. A charming little Napoleon hat is trimmed with white straw braid lightly twisted and sewed on black velvet in regular lines all round the brim. The braid is very narrow. A turban in black and white crinoline has a bunch of pink roses and a black aigret at one side.

DRESS PHILOSOPHY

Why Fashions Have Varied With Political Changes

CONCENTRATION on the matter of dress is necessary nowadays because of the ever changing fashions.

In the eighteenth century—probably owing to the fact that England was incessantly involved in long, costly foreign and colonial wars and was, moreover, actually building the empire as it exists today—the fashions for both men and women changed very little for a hundred years. From the advent of Queen Anne in 1702 until the French revolution brought in the neo-classic costumes of 1802.

Hoops might be large or small, overdresses bunched up or drooping, hair might be closely dressed or swell out into monstrous wigs with nodding plumes and scarfs, but the general design of dress remained identical.

But with the French revolution all was changed. The outward aspect of men and women altered as much as their mental attitudes. The scanty costumes, as well as the austere virtues of the republic of ancient Rome, were "assiduously aped," so that ladies of the directoire, overdoing the part, wore diaphanous classical drapery in the Champs Elysees, and their mankind adopted garments so exiguous as to make the devotees of the ancient regime blush.

The neo-classic costume was a political cry, a declaration of the rights of man and incidentally of woman. The stiffness of whalebone and brocade, the tyranny of the monstrous headgear, were to be abolished with the Bastille, crowned heads and an overbearing aristocracy.

For dress and politics have ever been closely allied, and those well meaning Socialists of today who imagine that men and women will ever be content with a kind of eternal woolen blanket fastened with a high art brooch show a plentiful lack of humor as well as a lack of knowledge of human nature.

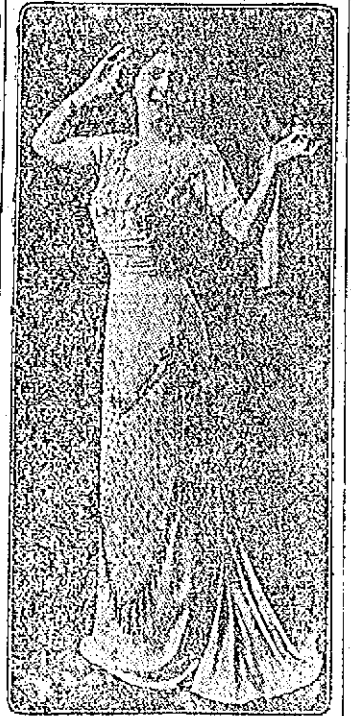

Perhaps the all pervading idea of socialism accounts for the return to those scanty draperies, severe outlines and heads which look as if they had been treated surgically which we see everywhere around us at evening parties and at the bazaar.

The harem skirt, perhaps the most curious of all the "divided" gowns, is possibly a protest on the part of woman, an effort to show her independence, though why she should have gone rushing the oriental purdah for inspiration is one of those mysteries which only creators of fashions can elucidate.

Lemon colored silk stockings are the latest fashion. Tailor made coats are very short. They have one large revers and the lace jabot on one side.

SATIN AFTERNOON FROCK

A TUNIC gown of apricot colored satin is shown here. It follows the popular idea with its gracefully draped tunic skirt and sleeves of beaded net. Beads form an important part in the decoration of the elaborate spring gown appearing in the shape of fringes, beaded ornaments and beaded fabrics. Satins in all their various varieties are also ultra modish. Satin charmeuse is the quality used in the construction of this elegant costume, suitable for smart afternoon functions.

UNDERWEAR FOR NARROW SKIRTS.

Woven silk knickers are to some extent necessary for the best exploitation of the narrow walking skirt, while in the evening the tight fitting nylon petticoat may be worn. In pale blue, for example, trimmed with the finest Irish lace insertion lined with pink satin ribbon, the nylon evening petticoat is a delicious circumstance in the world of undress.

Black nylon petticoats may be recommended made with one deep apricot source bordered with silver lace insertion threaded with pale blue ribbon tied into a bow with long ends above the left knee with a couple of tiny pink roses thrust through the knot. The advent into innoxious circles is chronicled of garters or suspenders of gold metal elastic buckled with paste. Honi soit qui mal y pense!

The Fascinating Woman

Many of the most fascinating women, women whose fame has outlived them by some thousands of years, would not have been called beautiful by their dearest friends or dearest enemies, if they had any.

Wherein lay the secret of their power? A fascinating woman gives herself up absolutely and entirely to the people in whose company she happens to be thrown. Her own sorrows and joys are thrust into the background, while she listens attentively to the joys and sorrows of others. A good listener is always appreciated. There are so many people who are willing to talk, but alas, so few who are willing to listen!

She makes a point of finding out the subject of paramount interest to the person whom she is with, and she discusses that subject, or, to be more accurate, lets him discuss it while she listens. If her companion is interested in agriculture she lets him talk agriculture, drinking in every word that falls from his lips with a look of rapt attention even though she be bored to death.

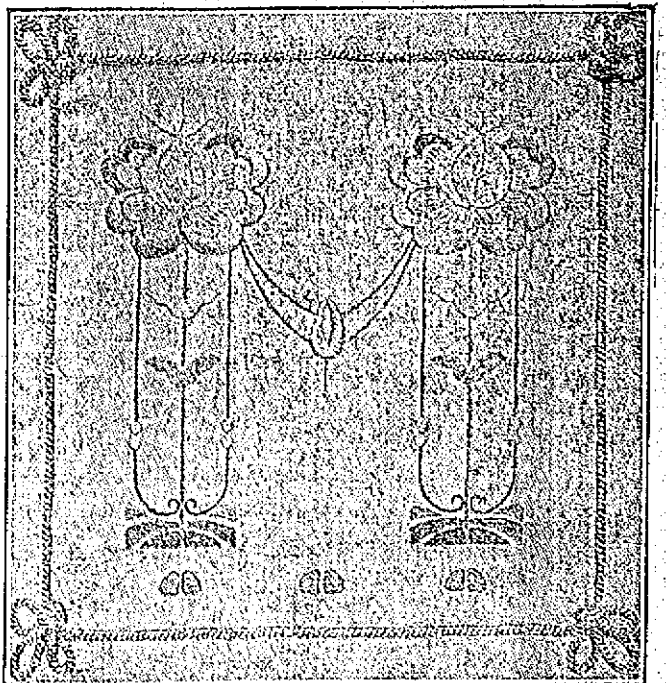

"Really?" "How interesting!" and numerous other expressions of a similar nature fall from her lips at the right time and in the right place.

So that when he leaves her he takes away with him the impression that she is the cleverest woman he has ever met—"Knows all about agriculture," says Jove, and was most interested in one or two little things I told her." The fact that she knows nothing whatever about agriculture, but had simply listened while he talked, would never for one moment occur to him.

STRAW FLOWERS AND LOOPS.

Touques made entirely of straw, flowers and all, are as useful a form of headgear as could be imagined. Straw roses mingled with loops of straw and trimming, a touque of straw folded over the crown and crinkled round the brim, may not be so poetic as the roses in silk and velvet, but they are favorable to ease of mind and that economy which circumstances enforce occasionally on almost every one.

A Gorgeous Cushion Cover

THE soft cushion shown here is of gold satin embroidered in blue and plectee green. While somewhat elaborate for everyday use, elegance of this sort may be protected with washable lawn or muslin covers. The embroidery is done almost entirely in satin and outline stitch, several shades being utilized for the flowers. The petals are worked in outline with satin stitch. When working satin stitch no padding is needed, the thread being so thick as to give the embroidery an excellent relief without it. The corolla of the flower is worked in blue of the lightest shade in satin stitch. The three small leaves branching out at the top are in plectee green. The graduated spots, which consist of two or three stitches in satin stitch, are done in green. Plectee green is also used for the lines of stitches completing the petals. Alternate long stitches and short stitches are used, but as these are marked in the design there is no difficulty in getting the correct curve. Dark green fiber in stem stitch is used for the stems, and the leaves at the stem and those of the foot are shades in green in satin stitch, each pair of leaves being worked in the same shade.

The bud in the center, the small round spots which break the lines and the six ornaments at the foot of the design are worked in shades of blue fiber in satin stitch. The fine lines between the flowers are done in plectee green.

Coronation China

MANY USEFUL THINGS MADE UP IN THE FORM OF SOUVENIRS.

CORONATION souvenirs of all sorts are being shown in London. Some already have made their way to this country, and others undoubtedly will follow. Coronation colors—shades of purple and red—are with us already. Coronation jewelry, spoons, laces, etc., are novelties we may look for. Queen Mary, with her simple housewifely tastes, is a difficult person to exploit as an originator of fads. Some of the manufacturers have solved the problem by adopting china. Queen Mary being very fond of it and much interested in those handsome collections in Windsor castle which Queen Victoria assembled during her long life. Coronation china appears in every grade of china and in all sorts of pieces from cups and saucers to serviceable bedroom sets. The British Lion or the arms of Great Britain appear on some, while the Interlaced monograms of the king and queen adorn others. The bedroom set illustrated here is decorated with gold lions rampant on a white background, shamrocks for good luck forming a scattered decoration. The set includes wash basin, pitcher, soap dish, toothbrush holder, candlesticks, etc. In this country the stationary washstand makes the bedroom set less necessary than in England, where hot and cold water thus supplied would be considered an anachronism in some of the proudest castles of England.

RECIPROCITY BILL THREE ARRESTED

Passed by the House by Vote of 265 to 89 Plot to Burn Cambridge Apartment Building is Alleged

The Majority of the Republicans Opposed the Measure—The Democrats With Few Exceptions Voted for the Bill—Many Amendments Killed by the Democrats

Men Were Captured on the Roof—Owner of Building is Among Those Accused—Kerosene and Gasoline on the Walls and Floors

WASHINGTON, April 22.—President Taft's Canadian reciprocity agreement, supported by all but a handful of democrats and opposed by a majority of the republicans, passed the house of representatives early last evening by a vote of 265 to 89. With nearly 200 democrats in control and their action endorsed by a large body of the republicans, the bill to put the agreement into force was adopted with no amendments and in almost identical form in which it passed the house in the last session of the preceding congress.

The bill seeks to vitiate the formal agreement reached between President Taft and members of the Canadian cabinet for a reduction of tariff rates on many articles and free trade in many others across the Canadian border. Added to it by the democratic leaders is a section which "authorizes and requests" President Taft to make further efforts to obtain still freer trade relations with Canada in the form of additional reciprocal relations.

Passage Never in Doubt

The passage of the bill marked the close of a fight which had raged in the house six days. During that time the safety of the measure was at no time threatened, but the democratic and republican leaders working for its passage conceded all the opportunity desired by its opponents for debates and protest against it. Following the same policy, amendments were admitted in the house yesterday for almost every section of the bill, and in each case they were rejected by the overwhelming vote by the friends of the measure on both sides of the house on the theory that any amendment would nullify it.

Ten democrats voted against the bill.

EDWARD T. HARRINGTON CO. Exclusive Agents, Boston Office 293 Washington Street.

BOSTON, April 22.—Three men are under arrest and the police are seeking a fourth man charged with an attempt to burn, for the insurance, a three-apartment wooden dwelling house at 9 Fourth street, East Cambridge, at 2 o'clock yesterday morning.

One of the prisoners is David Pearlstein, 24 years old of 118 Williams street, Chelsea, who owns the house which it is charged the men conspired to burn.

Pearlstein was arrested at 11:45 o'clock last night at the corner of Williams and Walnut streets, in Chelsea, by Patrolman John M. Bartley of Chelsea. Bartley had spent all day with the Cambridge policemen seeking Pearlstein in Chelsea, Malden, Cambridge and Boston.

Two other prisoners in the case, who are held at Station 2 in East Cambridge and who, it is charged, made the actual attempt to fire the apartment house, are said to have made a complete confession of the alleged conspiracy to the Cambridge police.

Their names are being withheld by the police, who say they are seeking the arrest of a fourth man. This man, it is charged, acted as the lookout and procured the two Cambridge prisoners as agents for Pearlstein to burn his apartment house.

Heard Noises on Roof

The street and top floors of the house are vacant. The middle apartment is occupied by a large family. At 3 o'clock yesterday morning the occupants of the middle apartment of the house were awakened by hearing noises on the roof of the house.

The man of the house made a hasty investigation and found nothing. He went out and called in Patrolman Harry Davis and Michael McMahon and they made a thorough investigation but found no one. They found the plastering broken from the hall walls and littered about the floors.

The officers left the house thinking that the noise was made by the falling plastering. The occupant of the apartment in the house went to bed but he was soon awakened again by the strange noises. He called the policemen into the house again and they found an alarming condition of affairs.

They went to the roof and there they found a man lying prostrate. He was taken to the police station where he gave a Hebrew name and a Boston address.

He said he was walking from the West End of Boston across the bridge late last night. He was in the crowd of young men who started after him crying, "Kill the Jew," and that he was chased and stoned and assaulted until he made his escape from the mob and concealed himself in the house at 9 Fourth street. He said he was hiding on the roof for safety. He was released and he left the station house and hurried away to Boston.

Later the same officers were called into the house. Upon investigation they found a second man had fallen through a skylight and later made his escape.

The two policemen then made a thorough investigation and found a perfect fire trap, they allege. Gasoline and kerosene had been spread through out the house. Old rags, papers and pieces of rope were scattered through the halls and the refuse and the walls were saturated with the inflammable oils. The floors were also wet with the same liquids.

On the roof the policemen found a large coil of rope which they allege was soaked with gasoline and kerosene. The police took this and other objects away to use at the hearing.

Word was sent to Boston police headquarters to arrest the suspect who had been found on the roof and later released because of the plausible story he had told. At 4 o'clock yesterday morning he was found at the address he had given the Cambridge police.

After a rigid examination he is alleged to have said that he was prepared to make a clean breast of the entire affair. It is alleged he said he and another young Hebrew had been engaged by a third man, who had represented to them that he was the agent of Pearlstein, to burn the buildings. He said, the police declare, that they were promised $200 each if they succeeded in their attempt to burn the house and Pearlstein collected his insurance.

This prisoner furnished the Cambridge police with the name of his alleged accomplice and he also gave them the name and address of the alleged go-between and of Pearlstein.

SHOT IN BACK

Man is Not Expected to Live

MIDDLEBORO, April 22.—There was a sensational shooting affair at East Middleboro last night in a camp occupied by Cape Verde islanders, employed in building cranberry bogs by Edward P. Washburn. Joseph Santos, the boss workman, was shot in the back. It is charged that Manuel Goncalves did the shooting.

Santos was rushed to a New Bedford hospital in an automobile and it is said he is in danger. Goncalves fled to the woods after the shooting and a posse of officers is scouring the country for him. Chief of Police Swift has taken charge of the hunt and he is assisted by Patrolman Harry P. Snow and Kimball Harrison. Constable Fred Sparrow and a large company of volunteers.

It is said the gang have been jealous of Joe, as he had steady work and was the boss. His orders to the gang were offensive, it is said, and a few days ago he came out victor in a sharp fight with Goncalves.

Since then the blood is said to have existed and there have been frequent quarrels. What precipitated the shooting last night is not known to the police and the other men occupying the shanty have little to say. All will be gathered in by the police as witnesses. Santos has been employed by Mr. Washburn for 10 years and was considered a fine workman. He has a wife and family in the western islands.

BRIBERY CHARGE AUTO WRECKED

Men Accused by Customs Official Machine Was Struck by a Train

BOSTON, April 22.—The U. S. grand jury, which has been in extra session several weeks, made a report to U. S. Dist. Court Judge Dodge in the federal building yesterday afternoon. The jury will come in again May 2.

William S. Gregg, special assistant U. S. attorney general, who has been here two weeks presenting the witnesses connected with the milk investigation, left the federal building for Washington after the jury reported its small list of indictments. The milk case is expected to be resumed when the body reconvenes.

Yesterday afternoon indictments were returned against Michelangelo De Spigno of Providence and Giuseppe Ragione of Genoa, charging them with offering a gratuity to a U. S. revenue officer. Ragione was a passenger on the steamship Canopeo from Italian ports, which arrived more than a week ago. De Spigno met him at the pier in Charlestown. It is alleged the defendants offered Herbert D. I. Lawrence, a customs inspector, $5 apiece to allow the baggage of Ragione and Marianna Casalic, a passenger, to be transported irregularly from the docks. There are two counts in each indictment.

Richard Phillips of Philadelphia was indicted on charge of using the mails in a scheme to defraud. Phillips, who is 65 years old, has a patent for a "revolver" for an electric car trolley pole and is charged with having sold an interest in the device to various parties without delivering it. Four persons are mentioned as having had dealings with Phillips—Samuel H. Kimball of Boston, George M. Newcomb of 13 Boylston street, Boston, R. B. Smith of 708 Tremont street, Boston, and Daniel E. McGrath of 33 Prospect street, Worcester.

SPEAKER CLARK

Invited to Visit the Philippines

WASHINGTON, April 22.—Speaker Champ Clark and other democrats of the house who have taken an interest in the Philippines today were invited by Commissioner Manuel L. Quezon to visit the islands as guests of the Filipinos. A cablegram received by Mr. Quezon from Sergio Osmeña, speaker of the assembly is as follows:

"If Speaker Champ Clark and other congressmen will come to the Philippines we will not only show that our hospitality goes hand in hand with our high regard for freedom but will give the American people the opportunity to learn the fitness of the Philippines for independence. In giving the Philippines their independence the American people will be complying with the sacred duties they have assumed before the world in the Philippines islands. Such action will prompt the eternal gratitude of the Philippines to America, invite them."

MRS. SCOTT CHOSEN

Illinois Woman Again Elected President General of D. A. R.

WASHINGTON, April 22.—Mrs. Matthew T. Scott of Illinois was declared last night to have been re-elected president general of the Daughters of the American Revolution for the next two years.

Of the 1886 votes cast, Mrs. Scott received 614; her opponent, Mrs. William C. Story of New York, 466, and six of the ballots were blank.

The tellers spent almost 24 hours in counting Thursday's vote and the result, which was expected, would be announced at the morning session of the congress, had to be postponed until last night.

With Mrs. Scott was elected the entire administration ticket, except one vice president-general who received 10 votes less than the number necessary to elect and for which position a new ballot will be taken today.

Then Mrs. Scott entered Continental hall, after the vote had been announced, preceded down the center aisle by a dozen charming young pages and followed by a score more bearing great baskets and arms full of American beauties, bouquets, and other flowers. She was received with wild applause.

Scarcely had she mounted the platform before Mrs. Story asked recognition. She declared that she felt no bitterness because of her defeat, and urged all the members of the organization to uphold, as she intended to do, the hands of their newly-elected president-general.

The other vice president-general, Mrs. Henry J. Mann, vice president-general in charge of organization of chapters, Miss Elizabeth Pierce, chaplain general, Mrs. Howard T. Hodgkins, recording secretary general, Mrs. W. A. Dennis, corresponding secretary general, Mrs. Galus Brunhugh, register general, Mrs. William D. Hoover, treasurer general, Mrs. Charles Bassett, historian general, Miss Amory H. Gillette, librarian general, all residents of the district of Columbia, except Mrs. Bassett, Maryland, and Mr. Thompson, Massachusetts.

Ten vice presidents general were to be elected, but only nine received enough votes. All elected were Scott candidates, as also was Miss Harriet L. Lake of Iowa, who, although 10th in point of numbers had 10 votes too few to elect. The nine declared elected, in the order elected, were:

Miss Sophie Waples, Delaware; Mrs. Clayton R. Trudale, Ohio; Mrs. Allen P. Porley, Pennsylvania; Mrs. J. P. Braxton, Michigan; Mrs. Ben Gray, Jr., Missouri; Mrs. James M. Fowler, Indiana; Mrs. Edwin C. Gregory, North Carolina; Mrs. Charles B. Bryan, Tennessee; and Mrs. R. H. Edmondson, Virginia.

Mrs. J. Morgan Smith of Alabama was elected an honorary vice president general and Mrs. Elroy M. Avery was re-elected editor of the American Monthly Magazine, the official organ of the D. A. R.

In thanking the society for her reelection Mrs. Scott said that while the members sometimes differed "in interpretation of questions of privilege or points of order, when it comes to questions of vital patriotic principles the D. A. R. heart beats true."

After last night's session a reception was given to Mrs. Scott at the hotel where she has her headquarters.

GOOD FRIDAY

Observed at the Greek Church

Good Friday was observed in a fitting way at the Greek Orthodox church in Jefferson street last night. Services began at 7 o'clock and consisted of the singing of hymns and a sermon by the pastor, Rev. Costas H. Demetriou. A huge epiphany of flowers on which rested a sacred icon, representing the dead body of Christ, was placed near the sanctuary, and two rows of members of the Greek military society, in uniform, opened a way to it from the door to the sanctuary. Between these two rows of military guards, hundreds of men and women passed. Near the epiphany were also placed huge bouquets containing natural flowers, and to each of the faithful a flower was given. The Greek priest and several acolytes, stood about the epiphany and chanted during the long service which lasted four hours. Shortly before 10 o'clock a procession took place. The procession was headed by the Greek Holy Regiments. The priest in his vestments preceded the flower epiphany which was carried by 12 directors of the Greek community, six men relieving the first six bearers half way along the route.

The line of march was from the church through Little Dummer, Market, Adams, Cross, Suffolk, and Lewis streets, back to the church.

The floral epiphany was a remarkable structure, standing about eight feet high and about six feet long. The flowers were fastened upon a wooden frame, the lower part of which represented a couch, from which rose pillars supporting a dome. All of the frame was covered with carnations and roses of a bright hue, and greenery, the effect being superb.

Services will be held again tonight beginning at 10 o'clock and lasting until two a. m., at which time the faithful will receive holy communion. This is called the welcome of Easter and tomorrow Easter will be observed with an elaborate program.

SCHOONER FREE PORT OF LONDON

Half of Cargo Thrown Is to be Greatly Improved

PROVINCETOWN, April 22.—After half of her cargo of paving stones had been hoisted over her side, the Rockland, Me. schooner, Caroline Gray, which was hauled into deep water today by the tug Neponset and towed into the harbor, apparently uninjured. The Gray had an easy berth under the finger of the cape, well protected from the fury of the easterly gale which was still howling outside at dawn today. Once in a while a big roller would surge around the point and rushing down Wood End would give the Gray a bump, but these were infrequent and the Neponset had no difficulty in running a line to her.

The Wood End life-savers, who helped the crew of the Gray jettison several hundred granite stones yesterday, assisted the tug, while the revenue cutter Gresham hovered in the offing ready to send an additional line in case the tug failed.

The easterly gale at 8 a. m. today had been blowing for more than 36 hours continuously and the sea off the back side of the cape was rougher than any time last winter.

Some of the regular coasting steamers managed to founder round from Nantucket Shoals into Cape Cod bay but other shipping, including tugs and barges, have been in sheltered harbors since Wednesday.
